75% Tax Forgiveness Adopted By Conferees on 11 to 3 Vote; No Hitch Expected in Passage

Doughton Breaks Deadlock; Program Now Will Go to House for Approval

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Compromise pay-as-you-go tax legislation, to abate at least 75 per cent of a year's taxes for all payers, with up to 100 per cent for the lowest brackets, was blasted free of a five-day conference deadlock late yesterday.

An 11-to-3 vote sped the embattled tax bill back to the House floor, where a favorable vote is expected for it late this week. From the House the measures goes to the Senate, and its bipartisan sponsors said they expected it to be sent to the White House without a hitch.

What President Roosevelt will do with the compromise plan was still a question at the Capitol, with Democrats saying they did not know his plans, and the Republicans saying they expected he would allow the legislation to become law without his signature.

Collection July 1

The new income tax collection system contained in the bill calls for starting July 1 to collect income taxes by a payroll levy affecting some 30 million persons.

Support for the compromise has come, among others, from those who saw in the proposal to spread payment of 25 per cent of a year's liability over the next two years an insurance against Congress having to increase individual tax rates. On this point, Representative Knutson of Minnesota, leader of the House Republican conferees, said, "I don't think there'll be another tax bill dealing with personal income taxes this year providing the two houses accept the compromise."

Doughton Breaks Deadlock

Representative Doughton (Democrat) of North Carolina, 79-year-old chairman of the powerful Ways and Means Committee, furnished the vote that broke the conference deadlock. He sided with the three House Republicans, the four Senate Democrats, and three Senate Republicans, to indorse the compromise. Representatives Cooper of Tennessee, Dingell of Michigan, and Disney of Oklahoma, voted against the agreement, with Disney being recorded by proxy.

Since the House and Senate conference committees each voted as a unit, each with seven members, it was necessary for four House members to join with at least four from the Senate to order the compromise.

Combination Proposed

As approved by the conference group, the bill was designed to strike a "middle ground" between the modified Ruml skip a year plan aproved by the Senate, and the Robertson - Forand compromise passed by the House. Chief authors of the compromise plan were Senators George (Democrat) of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Senator Vanden-

WLB Denies Miners' $2 Raise; Other Boost Likely

Coal Operators, Workers Ready To Thresh Out Portal Pay Question

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

The War Labor Board yesterday flatly denied the demands of the Nation's coal miners for a $2 a day "across the board" wage increase, but simultaneously held out a promise of "more money" by ordering the operators and miners to bargain out the demand for "portal to portal" pay within 15 days.

Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the Northern coal operators, promptly announced that representatives of Northern and Southern operators would meet at 10:30 a. m. today with representatives of the United Mine Workers for the reopening of negotiations.

K. C. Adams, editor of the Mine Workers Journal and spokesman for President John L. Lewis of the U. M. W., stated that the miners were "ready and willling" to meet the operators in collective bargaining conferences.

Decision Well Received

Although detailed comments on the board's decision were not available, it was indicated that it was generally well received by both operators and miners.

The miners also won a number of concessions, including a $30 annual increase in vacation bonuses to $50 per miner, payment for occupational charges previously deducted from the miners' pay checks, worth 8 to 15 cents a day, and an order making the operators responsible for delivering mine cars to and from the working faces in the mines.

No official estimate was available on the amount the miners' pay might be increased through "portal to portal" payment, but unofficial estimates generally ranged around 75 cents a day, calculated on the basis of compensation for about three-quarters of an hour for time spent going from the "portal" to the miners' working place and back. The concessions already ordered were estimated to average about 25 cents a day, thus giving the miners a possible total increase of about $1 a day.

Want Mines Back

Much was expected to depend on the attitude taken by the operators in forthcoming conferences. During collective bargaining conferences starting in March, the operators declined to make any concessions, deadlocking the negotiations. U. M. W. officials who declined to be quoted predicted that the operators would bargain more readily this time because of their desire to regain possession of the mines which were seized by the Government on May 1 after a brief general strike.

The board directed the parties to report in 15 days with the presumption that the board itself would settle any still undetermined issues at that time.

Lewis was not required to appear before the board to get instructions, a sore point which prevented resumption of bargaining earlier when the WLB coal panel made a similar recommendation. However, it was specified that any agreed-upon pay adjustments be submitted to the WLB for final approval.

It was believed that one of the first acts of the resumed collective bargaining conference would be to extend the present "truce" under which the mines are operating. The truce now is slated to expire next Monday midnight.

The labor members of WLB entered a vigorous dissent against the denial of the $2 a day general increase, even though this action was a foregone conclusion under

House Passes Antipoll Tax Bill After Sailor's Plea From Gallery

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

A blue-eyed, 21-year-old sailor yesterday sat with mixed emotions through a turbulent House session on poll tax repeal, then jumped to a gallery ledge and addressed the House.

Before gallery attendants pulled him from his perch, he had delivered the day's most effective speech for the antipoll tax bill, later passed by a 265 to 110 majority.

"Why should we be taxed to vote?" shouted the sailor. "Why should a man be taxed to vote when he can fight without paying?"

A few minutes later in a Capitol guardroom, Signalman Second Class Evan Owen Jones, U. S. N., of Los Angeles, Calif., completed his speech to House Sergeant at Arms Kenneth Romney.

"These people are fighting the Civil War all over again," said the sailor. "They should be spending their time fighting this war. Why should anybody in this great democracy have to pay a poll tax to vote?"

Jones told attendants he was on 48 hours' leave from his ship after two years of active sea duty, during which he took part in the Battle of Singapore, adding "I came here to see what makes the country click, and I'm disgusted."

Romney rebuked the sailor for "a serious breach of the House rules," then turned him over to Dr. George W. Calver, Capitol physician, who holds a captain's rank in the Navy. Calver delivered Jones to Naval authorities, presumably to be returned to his ship. Capitol police said the sailor was "strictly sober," and that no civilian charges would be preferred. Calver said only: "This is strictly a naval affair, and all off the record."

Signalman Jones, who had been seated unnoticed in the men's gallery directly across from the Speaker's rostrum, clambered onto the narrow gallery ledge after angry Congressmen from Southern poll-tax States had stormily denounced the move to end head taxes as a prerequisite to voting.

Akron Strike Spreads to Fourth Plant

50,000 Men Spurn WLB's Order to Resume Rubber Production Jobs

By the Associated Press

Fifty thousand rubber workers remained idle at Akron, Ohio, last night in a walkout launched as a protest against a War Labor Board wage ruling.

The Akron stoppage was the most serious of several walkouts in scattered sections of the country. After involving the workers of the Firestone, Goodyear and Goodrich plants, it spread yesterday to General Tire & Rubber Co. The C. I. O. United Rubber Workers called a meeting of its executive board for today to consider the situation. The walkouts started Saturday in protest against a WLB grant of a 3-cent an hour basic wage increase; the union sought 8 cents.

The WLB told the strikers yesterday that it would not agree to rehear their petition until work was resumed in the rubber plants, which produce war goods ranging from tires to self-sealing gasoline tanks. But WLB indicated it was standing by its wage decision, saying that it was ordered only because any other grant would have had an unstabilizing effect on the rubber industry.

Baltimore Transit Co. employes voted to strike today in a dispute over an independent union of employes and the discharge of a worker. The strike was voted by an A. F. of L. union.

Striking bus drivers at Utica, N. Y., voted to return to work pending arbitration of a dispute that centered around discharge of three workers.

Maryland Walkout Short-lived

A walkout of 180 coke oven workers at Bethlehem Steel's Sparrows Point (Md.) plant was short-lived. C. I. O. union officials persuaded the men, seeking more money, to return to posts.

A work stoppage of 1200 unionists curtailed production at the Timken Roller Bearing Co.'s main plant at Canton, Ohio, Federal Conciliator A. T. Pinkney reported.

Pinkney asserted the stoppage began yesterday when 350 employes refused to work because women employes had been promoted to grinding machine jobs. The union claims the promotions violated its contract with the company for advancement on the basis of seniority, he said.

Racial Flare-up

In Mobile, Ala., yesterday the assignment of Negroes to work with white welders in a shipyard provoked a disturbance in which, Police Chief D. E. McFayden said, several Negroes were beaten. The Negroes were sent home, and about 7000 more men became idle when the A. F. L. Central Trades Council ordered all A. F. L. workers engaged in any construction jobs in the city to return to their homes.

Police took several steps to prevent a spread of disorder in Mobile, including the closing of all liquor stores and prohibition of the sale of beer. Mayor Charles A. Baumheaur said companies of State guards stood alert to patrol the waterfront and business district.

Five thousand men were affected by a shutdown of the Spicer Manufacturing Co. plant in Toledo, Ohio.

Nonstop Schedule

By Daniel De Luce
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, May 25.—Italy's southern ramparts—weak imitations of indomitable Malta—are fast being crippled by nonstop, 'round-the-clock air attacks in which United States fliers are spearheading the Allies' massed aerial offensive.

Under a unified command and with one big plan, every American and R. A. F. squadron assembled in the huge Allied air fleet in the Mediterranean basin is ready to keep this offensive soaring forward over the southern front of the Axis.

More than 300 American warplanes smashed yesterday at the harbors, airfields and communications of Sardinia, additional formations of American fighter-bombers slashed at little Pantelleria again, and the R. A. F. continued its heavy bomber operations and Intruder sweeps against other Italian defenses.

Fear Grips Italians

Axis press reports left no doubt that the Italian people fear this air war and the officially announced arrival of German troops to defend Sardina appeared to have little effect on the growing anguish in Italy. (A Rome radio report recorded by Reuters in London said the civil population is being evacuated from Cagliari, the Sardinian capital. Reuters also reported to London that a Zurich, Switzerland, report said refuges were streaming northward to escape raids in southern Italy.)

329 in Six Days

Waves of Flying Fortresses, medium Mitchell and Marauder bombers and Lightning and Warhawk fighters threw a storm of bombs at Sardinia, which would be an early and prime objective of an Allied thrust across the Mediterranean from Tunisia. One supply ship blew up, four small vessels were sunk and seven others damaged, while docks, shipping and airfields suffered heavily under the stream of explosives.

Twelve more Axis planes were shot down during the last 24 hours and an unestimated number de-

Two-Way Punch

Japan Will Be Struck as Hard As Germany, Says Churchill

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Prime Minister Winston Churchill yesterday envisioned the Allies waging war with equal vigor simultaneously on both great fronts—the Pacific and Europe.

In a joint press conference with President Roosevelt, Churchill said the White House council of war had arrived at some conclusions about smashing Japan that he believed were sound and good.

Growing Allied strength, he said, must be applied on the widest possible global front until we shake the life out of the Axis enemies. The Allied side is the stronger side, he said, and this has already been demonstrated in aerial warfare.

The great British leader did not specifically disavow the get-Hitler-first strategy. He did say, however, that the question of priority in going after Germany or Japan was no longer the sharp question it was when he first came to the White House, in the winter of 1941-42 just after Pearl Harbor.

Today, he said, the Allies' resources in men and weapons are greatly expanded, so much so that it will be possible to wage the war on both grand fronts with equal vigor, and concurrently. The problem was, he said, of bringing our growing strength to bear against the enemy, and this, he added, was a problem of distances, of shipping and of time.

Churchill, who only a few months ago was down with pneumonia, looked like a million dollars as he sat in a high-back plush chair alongside President Roosevelt in the latter's office, facing 155 reporters.

His face was pink with health, his blue eyes merry, and his general attitude one of buoyant confidence. He wore a dark coat with a D. S. M. rosette in the lapel and a button on the shoulder—apparently for carrying his gas mask at home. Gray trousers, a white shirt, a polka-dot bow tie and a white breast-pocket handkerchief completed the ensemble.

The Prime Minister puffed serenely on a long cigar, while the President drew on a cigarette held in a yellow ivory holder. When Mr.

Attu Thrust Costs Japs 12 Bombers

Annihilation of Enemy Troops on Island Progresses

By John Hightower
Associated Press Staff Writer

Piecemeal destruction of entrapped Japanese troops still clinging to Attu Island continued steadily yesterday, as new reports disclosed that an attempted enemy counterstroke by air had met almost complete disaster.

A Navy communique reported that 12 of 16 Japanese twin-engine bombers which attempted to raid American positions and ships were either definitely or probably destroyed. Previously the Navy had said only 5 were shot down in the Sunday encounter. Yesterday's war bulletin added 7 additional bombers probably wiped out and declared that the remaining 4 fled westward, in the direction of their supposed base in the Kurile Islands, 630 nautical miles west of Attu.

Continuing Advance

This havoc among the bombers was wrought by six Army Lightning fighters which intercepted them over the eastern part of Attu, far from the battle zone. When the fighter squadron was sighted by the enemy "the bombers unloaded their bombs but did not attack any of the United States positions," the Navy said. Two United States planes were lost but one of the pilots was rescued.

The communique reported on operations ashore only through Sunday, saying that Army forces were continuing their advance through the mountainous area at the northeastern tip of Attu where the enemy remnants still possessed a toehold on the island, but that operations on that day had been handicapped by sleet, snow and rain.

The communique said that Army planes, presumably operating from the American base on Amchitka Island, had bombed the Japanese main camp area at Kiska again on Sunday.

Word that the assured American victory on Attu had not yet been

Antisub War Encouraging, Knox Reports

42 Seamen Missing

Boston, May 25 (AP).—Survivors of an early April, Midatlantic torpedoing of a medium-sized United Nations merchantman in which 42 of 80 crew members are missing, reported today after arrival in Boston that their captain disappeared in a raging sea after obeying the U-boat commander's order to swim to the submarine.

Before the sinking, the ship was pursued by a submarine in a running fight in which numerous shots were exchanged. Heavy seas made the submarine's fire inaccurate, but the freighter's gun crew scored several very near misses and the attacker, giving up the chase, submerged.

That night, however, the vessel was torpedoed. Approximately 23 of her crew, trying to launch a motor lifeboat, were killed when a torpedo struck close by.

Postwar Alliance Is Eden's Hope

London, (Wednesday), May 26 (AP).—President Michael Kalinin of the Russian Supreme Council and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today expressed hope that the British-Soviet Alliance would be carried forward in the post war period, with Kalinin suggesting that the United States, Britain and Russia might act in concert in the years of peace.

Kalinin messaged King George VI and Eden sent a telegram to Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov on the first anniversary of the signing of the treaty.

Washington's Gas Outlook Still Dismal

Emergency Measures Afford Little Relief; Doctors Voice Plea

By Tom Moore McBride
Post Staff Writer

The Washington-Baltimore area last night remained the worst stricken of the Northeast's gasoline famine section, and the Petroleum Administration for War began emergency movement of tank cars to Greensboro, N. C., and barges to Richmond to bring additional supplies to the Capital.

In Washington there still was little gas for private cars and the District Medical Society renewed its pleas for gasoline for physicians, reporting that many doctors are unable to attend their patients.

15,000 Gallons Daily

As the area settled down for the long gasless siege predicted by the Office of Defense Transportation, the PAW announced that 15,000 barrels of fuel probably would begin arriving each day next week from the Plantation pipeline at Greensboro, via rail to Richmond and barge to the District. This supply will supplement the 9000 barrels already arriving daily by barge. A PAW spokesman said about 8000 barrels a day constituted the normal ration demand for Washington and that the extraordinary movement would be used to meet "essential needs" of private cars, needs of utilities and the expanded needs of farm equipment in the vicinity.

Despite the gravity of the situation there still were pleasure drivers in evidence. OPA inspectors listed 216 at the night ball

Potato, Onion Ceiling Prices Rolled Back

OPA at Same Time Limits Number of Distributor Markups

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

The Office of Price Administration yesterday rolled back the retail ceiling prices of potatoes and onions by approximately 7 per cent and at the same time increased the price growers get for their potatoes by 30 cents per 100 pounds.

This "white magic" was performed, without the aid of subsidy, by limiting the number of distributor mark-ups to one and stating it could be 60 cents per 100 pounds of potatoes handled and 80 cents for 100 pounds of onions.

The retail maximum ceiling for Alabama potatoes sold in Washington thus becomes 5¼ cents a pound rather than 6, the OPA figured. The chain store ceilings on onions is lowered about 1 cent a pound. Both orders were effective immediately.

$2.80 To Grower

Whether this move into the "middle man's" field will be followed by other unsubsidized rollbacks, the OPA last night was not ready to say. But it was admitted the whole markup system is being studied.

The Alabama farmer whose potatoes now will sell for 5¼ cents in Washington—when and if they arrive through proper channels—will get $2.80 per 100 pounds for them under the new grower increase.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones yesterday told the Senate Agriculture Committee the R. F. C. could subsidize the 10 per cent OPA rollback on meat, coffee, and butter ordered for June 1 for an over-all cost of 450 million dollars for one year.

With military and lend-lease purchases taken out, this cost will be lessened to between 325 million dollars and 350 million dollars, he estimated. "We will not pay the subsidy for these transactions," he said.

Meeting Tomorrow

Senator McNary (Republican) of Oregon declared he believed the R. F. C. could subsidize only to increase production. "Do you consider this food subsidy will increase production, or is it to roll back the prices to consumers?" he asked.

Jones replied he thought the subsidies would prevent a decline in production by preventing a rollback to farm price levels. He declined to say whether he believed

President Barclay Of Liberia Is Due This Afternoon

Edwin Barclay, president of Liberia, is expected to arrive in the Capital this afternoon, the State Department announced yesterday. The presidential party will include W. V. S. Tubman, president-elect, and Capt. Alford Russ of the Liberian Frontier Force.

President Barclay also will be accompanied by Walter F. Walker, consul general of Liberia at New York; Brig. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis, U. S. A., and Frederick P. Hibbard, former charge d'affaires ad interim at Monrovia, Liberia.

A luncheon in honor of Barclay will be given Saturday at 1:15 p. m. at Lucy Diggs Slowe Hall, Third and U Streets Northwest.

Maggie Here, Lacks Ax to Grind

Joan Lyle, 5, of 1860 Clydesdale Place Northwest, and her new dog, Maggie

Maggie came to Washington yesterday with no ax to grind.

This is news in the Nation's Capital.

You may say, of course, that Maggie is only a little dog and why should she complain.

But, anyhow, let's take Maggie as an example and stop griping.

Five-year-old Joan Lyle, daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. John D. Lyle, 1860 Clydesdale Place Northwest, got Maggie by express from her cousin Evelyn Lyle of Benton, Tenn.

To assure the safe delivery of the puppy, Evelyn, 16, attached this note to the box:

"My name is Maggie—I'm just a pup, I'm on my way to Washington, not to protest or growl about anything that has been done or left undone, but to be a playmate for a lieutenant's daughter that is on his way to the war front to do his bit to help make this country a safe place for even me to live a normal dog's life."

Lieutenant Lyle, a former employe of the General Accounting Office, has been in the Army since last July. Mrs. Lyle has just returned from a visit to her husband at which time he saw his 3-month-old son, Johnny, for the first time.

Maggie, by the way, is also three months old.

Officials Plan Relief

All Mississippi Levees Broken In 90 Mile Stretch in Illinois

By the Associated Press

A host of soldiers and townsmen fought last night to hold levees still standing against the devastating waters sweeping down the Mississippi and Illinois River Valleys.

Lieut. Col. W. F. Lawlor of the United States engineers reported every levee on the Illinois side of the Mississippi from Columbia to Gale—approximately 90 miles—had broken, but the walls on the Illinois bank between Alton and East St. Louis withstood the terrific pressure.

Northward a weak spot developed in the earthen levee protecting the east part of low-lying Beardstown, Ill., from the rampaging Illinois River, and sandbags were rushed to the strained section.

Meanwhile, with 160,000 persons homeless in a six-State area and more than 3,000,000 acres inundated, State and Federal officials took steps to help the refugees and plan measures to get food production under way again.

Downstream Mississippi, more than 1,000,000 sandbags were put in place in an attempt to save Dupo from the flood. Sandbags were used also to block an invasion of Prairie Du Rocher. The levee held at Columbia. The Kaskaskia Island levee stood up to the task of protecting 10,000 acres in a section

Nichols May Quit As Congressman From Oklahoma

Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat) of Oklahoma was reported in reliable quarters last night to be ready to announce his resignation as a member of the House.

Nichols, who has served five consecutive terms in Congress, has been planning for some time, close associates said, to leave public life to take a position with one of the airlines. It was said that the announcement of his resignation would be made shortly, possibly today.

Nichols was out of the city and not available for comment.

Nichols was returned to Congress last November 3 by a close vote in the Second Oklahoma District.

An influential member of the House, Nichols was a member of the Rules Committee and chairman of the select Committee to Investigate Air Accidents.

It's Audible Now

District's 13th Blackout Friday To Test New All-Clear Signal

The District's thirteenth blackout will be held this week on Friday, some time between 8 o'clock and midnight, to test the new audible all-clear signals.

The new all-clear signal—a 15-second steady blast of sirens and horns—was approved on an experimental basis last weekend by Commanding Gen. John T. Lewis of the Washington Military District, to whom a report of the results of the test will be sent.

Lewis yesterday approved the elimination on Sundays of the daily noon sounding of air-raid horns and sirens. These short blasts, used to check each day on the working condition of Washington's air raid warning system, were said to interrupt church services, and it was decided that one day a week they could be skipped without endangering the city.

On the other side of the picture the War Production Board yesterday revoked approval of materials to install 15 master switches to turn off street lights, which the Commissioners had hoped would correct the spotty performance during recent blackouts.

WPB said that the priorities on these switches to replace the 187 control boxes now in use had been withdrawn " in the public interest and to promote national defense."

The last blackout, held in April, was reckoned one of the least satisfactory of the series of tests held since Pearl Harbor.

Germans Bolstering Danish Jutland

War Sidelights

Umberto Reported Infantry Head

Moscow, May 25 (AP).—A Tass dispatch from Geneva today said it had been officially announced in Italy that Crown Prince Umberto had been appointed commander in chief of Italian infantry.

"According to information which has just been received from Milan," the dispatch said, "Prince Umberto accepted the new appointment under strong pressure on the part of Mussolini and Fascist circles. Mussolini insisted on appointment of Umberto to the leading army post in the hope of retarding the process of demoralization of the army, which of late has assumed threatening proportions."

10 Reported Slain

Bern, May 25 (AP).—A Budapest dispatch to the Neue Zuercher Zeitung said today that 10 persons were shot at Dugo Celo, near Zagreb, last Friday in reprisal for the assassination of a high official of the Croatian Fascist organization.

They Just Scoop Fish

San Francisco, May 25 (AP).—The Army's landed in a sherman's paradise—Amchitka—and the equipment doesn't include fishing tackle.

Gregory Reeser, Coast Guardsman from Cincinnati who was on the first Army transport to land men on that Aleutian outpost, discovered the men had a fair substitute, though, until friends in the States get some tackle up to them.

"They just use shovels. They actually scoop fish out of the streams—that's how plentiful they are."

Woman Gets Red Title

Moscow, May 25 (AP).—The title of Hero of the Soviet Union was awarded today to a woman flier for the first time in this war. The pilot was Junior Lieutenant Vkokiansol.

Enemy Reported Reducing Size of Norway Garrison

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, May 25 — The German high command was reported today to have shifted unusually strong troop reinforcements to Danish Jutland and to have strengthened coastal fortifications in Norway, apparently in the fear that the Allies might strike at northern Germany as the shortest route to Berlin.

Reliable reports here from Denmark said German garrisons in the Jutland area had been increased from 60,000 to 200,000 troops in recent months. The Germans were said to have assigned 20,000 soldiers to Esbjerg, largest port in west Denmark.

While the west coast of Jutland offers ideal facilities for landing barges, Esbjerg is about the only western port large enough to handle supply ships necessary for an extensive invasion.

In the event of a landing in the Hamburg and Bremen areas, the Jutland territory would offer an ideal setting for air bases that would place Germany in a vulnerable spot.

The troop reinforcements were reported accompanied by a speed-up in the construction of elaborate fortifications, mostly concrete pillboxes and tank barriers. Denmark's large cement industry is being worked to capacity to fill the orders.

The concentration of large troop detachments in Jutland coincided with reliable reports that the Germans have reduced the size of their occupation army in Norway from 300,000 to 200,000 men.

Many of these troops, however, are reported to be marine units responsible for the vital coast defenses of that possible gateway to Europe.

With fewer Allied convoys taking supplies to Russia by the northern route to Murmansk—most supplies now are going through the Near East—the Nazis are understood to have shifted the bulk of their air force in Norway from the north to the southern part of the country.

Raids Cripple Italy's Ramparts

stroyed on the ground, bringing to at least 329 the number of enemy aircraft blown to junk in the last six days. Thre American planes were lost in the Sardinian sweeps, which hit almost every vital point o nthe island's perimeter.

Pantelleria, raided three times within five hours on Sunday and again that night, received two more visits yesterday from bomb-carrying Lightnings and Warhawks, while a heavy force of American four-engined sluggers from Cairo heaped additional destruction on San Giovanni and Reggio Calabria at the toe of the Italian boot.

R. A. F. medium bombers hit the Sicilian harbor of Messina Sunday night and gave the railway yards, ferry terminal and oil storage tanks a heavy pounding. The Malta air force joined in the drubbing with an attack on Catania in Sicily.

Terranova Hardest Hit

Flying Fortresses dealt perhaps the heaviest single blow of the attacks on Sardinia when they struck dock installations, warehouses and an ammunition dump at Terranova on the northeast coast. One supply ship was blown up there, another set afire and a third badly damaged.

The big Fortresses also bombed the Sardinian naval base of La Maddalena in the north, causing severe damage to the causeway and a swinging bridge, hitting an oil pier and a mole and destroying a number of seaplanes at the nearby island of Caprera.

Points attacked by American medium bombers and Fighters included the Olbia-Venafiorita airfield, Carloforte Harbor, Arbatax, Iglesias and Alghero Airfield. Marauder bombers completely covered Alghero Airport with bomb bursts, setting a hangar and a fuel dump ablaze.

"We sowed bombs on Alghero like we sow wheat in North Dakota," said Technical Sergt. Ealing O. Sem of Landa, N. Dak.

Bomb-carrying Lightnings led the attack on Carloforte Harbor. They enveloped a supply ship in flames from two direct hits and sank four smaller craft. Warhawk Fighters then swept across the harbor and scored a hit on a large supply ship.

First Lady Urges Radio Crusade On Black Markets

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at her press conference yesterday said she thought a direct broadcast on the part of food administrators and OPA officials should be made to consumers asking them not to buy on the black market.

"It should be explained that when you do it's hurting the whole war economy," she said.

The First Lady also said she thought grade labeling very important to consumers, and expressed regret there were "no really very strong consumer groups" in the country. "Truthful labeling is most important for all of us," she declared. "There is nothing really as valuable as to have to put the exact truth on everything."

Russian Artillery Scatters Nazis Northwest of Kharkov

London (Wednesday), May 26 (AP).—Thundering Soviet artillery scattered German troop concentrations northwest of Kharkov and smashed Nazi defenses southeast of that enemy-held pivotal base Tuesday, the Russian midnight communique reported early today.

At sea, Red navy men manning two patrol cutters in the Gulf of Finland outfought 13 enemy cutters, sinking two, heavily damaging a third, and forcing the others to withdraw, said the war bulletin as recorded by the Soviet monitor here.

The communique did not identify the enemy ships as Finnish or German.

About one battalion—approximately 800 men—of enemy infantry was dispersed and "partly annihilated" when Russian artillery ponded "concentrations of enemy troops and equipment" in the Sevesk area, northwest of Kharkov, the Rusians said.

Blasting at German lines in the Lisichansk area, 125 miles southeast of Kharkov on the Donets River front, Soviet artillery destroyed seven Nazi mortar batteries, four guns, several blockhouses and dugouts "and other fortification," the communique asserted.

Snipers were credited with killing 208 enemy troops in three days.

A separate Moscow broadcast reported Soviet air attacks Sunday upon railway junctions, munition dumps, and troop and supply concentrations at Roslavl and Yelyna, southwest and west of Smolensk, and upon Demyansk, below Staraya Russa.

Southeast of Leningrad on the Volhow front, Russian units also wrecked German positions and batteries.

Save for the artillery outbursts, the midnight communique pictured the Russian front as almost ominously quiet, in apparent preparation for the explosion of a new offensive.

Russian scouts northeast of Novorossisk, it reported, broke through German positions and discovered the disposition of enemy artillery batteries, possibly holding up the Red army squeeze upon this last Caucasian stronghold of the Germans.

Driver Charged With Homicide In Guard's Death

Benjamin D. Conley, 22, of Hyattsville, Md., was charged under the Negligent Homicide Act yesterday after a coroner's inquest into the traffic death of Florence A. Donohue, 65, of 1723 M Street Northeast.

He was booked at the Traffic Division and will be arraigned at Municipal Court this morning.

The victim, a guard at the Army War College, was struck at Bladensburg Road and Meigs Place Northeast Sunday night and died a few hours later at Casualty Hospital.

It was testified Donohue was crossing Bladensburg Road in the crosswalk and that the defendant's automobile had defective brakes.

In the meantime a 3-month-old girl escaped injury in a trolley-automobile accident which sent her mother, Mrs. Laura Kinchloe, 38, of Dumphries, Va., to Providence Hospital with leg injuries.

The collision occurred at Independence and Delaware Avenues Southwest.

RAF Bombers Again Roar Over Channel

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), May 26.—Big Royal Air Force formations, apparently including large numbers of heavy bombers, were heard roaring outbound over parts of the English coast late last night and after midnight today—an indication that Britain was resuming her major aerial blows against the enemy.

Yesterday Mitchell medium bombers, with an escort of Spitfires, hammered the oft-battered airfield at Abbeville while other Spitfire fighter squadrons made supporting sweeps elsewhere over northern France.

At home Spitfires ambushed a flight of German Focke-Wulf 190's heading toward a southeast coast town at dusk and smashed up the formation so effectively that most of the raiders were turned back from the English shore.

Four of the German planes were sent spinning into the sea and several others were believed to have been damaged.

Shortly before noon, four other Focke-Wulf 190's were blasted out of the sky when 25 fighter-bombers and fighters raided a south coast town

Last night's operations in western Europe were confined to small-scale intruder patrols over northern France by the R. A. F. as British heavy bombers remained in their hangars following their unprecedented assault on Dortmund, which was pulverized Sunday night with more than 2000 tons of bombs.

This month already has brought industrial Germany four great saturation raids, including two of the top weight bombings of the war.

From the fact that the R. A. F. carried out the greatest raid in history against Dortmund Sunday night, after losing close to 750 planes since the first of the year, informed sources foresaw the ultimate strength of the front-line bomber force mounting so high this summer that the sheer weight of the attacks would cripple Germany's ability to defend herself and leave the skies clear for almost continuous assaults.

All four of the concentrated attacks have been directed at the heart of Germany's war production.

Jap Yangtze Thrust Believed Part of Chungking Drive

By the Associated Press

Chungking, May 25—Japanese forces driving westward through western Hupeh province south of the Yangtze River have made new progress, the Chinese high command announced tonight, and belief grew in Chinese quarters that this might be the initial stage of a drive on Chungking itself.

The Chinese communique said one Japanese column captured Changyang, 18 miles south of Ichang, the main enemy base on the upper Yangtze, while other columns have been reported still farther west. Enemy forces in this area are within 275 airline miles of the capital although the routes which must be covered to reach Chungking are much longer, some 400 miles, one column was said to be approaching Wufeng, 50 miles southwest of Ichang.

The communique indicated that the invaders might even be commencing an attempt to force the Yangtze gorges, the 200 miles of turbulent waters which begin a few miles upstream from Ichang. It told of an attack by Japanese infantry under cover of planes and artillery against Chinese positions west of Ichang below the eastern end of the gorges. At one point, the communique said, the enemy broke through Chinese positions but then his troops were "surrounded and annihilated."

Nevertheless Japanese reinforcements were brought up and "the attacks were renewed from several directions," the high command said.

The communique asserted that "large numbers of well equipped troops" were moving into the Ichang area to reinforce the enemy, whose strength in these operations previously had been estimated at five divisions.

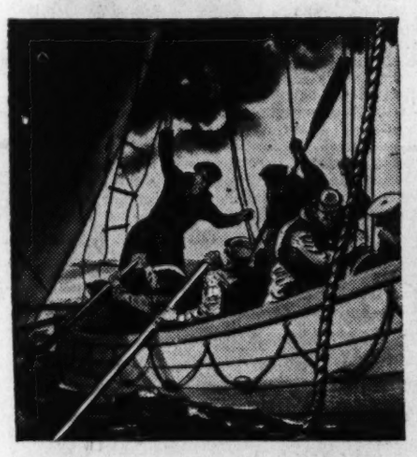
"Who'd have thought the Skipper had a soft spot?"

Long days in a lifeboat had taught him a lesson. On his next trip... just in case... he came well prepared. An amusing true story about an Alcoa Skipper, told by his First Mate.



"The Skipper was out of the modern school ... smart ... strict ... on his toes. Which was lucky for us. Because when our ship was hit she went down fast! Only a carefully trained crew could have gotten all hands off safely.

"We were all in one lifeboat. The Skipper estimated his bearings—all he had was the lifeboat compass—and we set out for land. Well, what with the crew's perfect discipline and the Skipper's sweet job of navigation, we made shore just 8 days later... and only a quarter mile off our point.

"Back in the States, the Skipper and I got orders to fly to our new ship. We arrived with a few hours to spare, and the Skipper goes off in a great hurry, mumbling something about doing a little quick shopping. Puzzled, I headed for the ship.

"When the Skipper came aboard, he was carrying a carpenter's plane. 'Would that be a secret weapon for the U-boats, sir?' I asked. 'Well, Mr. McKenna,' he said, 'last time I was in a lifeboat, that seat just about ruined me. If I ever have to get into another one ... you can be sure I won't be a victim of those blankety-blank sharp edges!'

"We laughed as he went to work with his plane... So the Skipper does have a soft spot, I thought to myself. And maybe it's a clue to the spirit of the Merchant Marine... the way all hands round off the 'sharp edges'—with a laugh—and keep coming back for more."

The American Merchant Marine needs the services of every experienced man who has a license as a deck officer, or as an engineer. If you hold such a license, and are now working ashore, you may serve your country far better by going back to sea, even though the present shore job is war work. The hundreds of new ships which will be completed this year will need men like you as officers. Get full information at the nearest office of the U. S. Employment Service or write the War Shipping Administration, Washington, D. C.

Delegates Propose Interim Food Body

Commission Would Devise Permanent Plan of Operation

By Wade Werner
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hot Springs, Va., May 25—The United States and Chinese delegations to the United Nations Food Conference proposed today the creation of an interim commission to carry forward the work of the conference after it adjourns and to formulate plans for a permanent international body to deal with problems of food and agriculture.

At the same time Chairman Marvin Jones emphasized that no governments represented here will be bound by conference action.

The American proposal was submitted in the form of a draft resolution defining the functions of the proposed interim commission but suggesting only in general terms the posible fields of action of the permanent international body.

The Chinese delegation, on the other hand, after formally recommending creation of an interim commission to draw up plans for a permanent international organization, stressed that:

"This permanent machinery should not be merely an information service, but also an executive body to carry out the ultimate objective of the conference," which is achievement of a better fed world. The organization would include a division of agricultural credit "to finance buffer, stocks, to extend financial assistance to agricultural and banking institutions; to finance agricultural projects in various countries."

Jones meanwhile issued a statement impelled, he said, by "some confusion in the public mind about the purpose of this conference."

"No commitments of any kind will or can be made," said the Washington judge, assistant to James F. Byrnes, the economic stabilization director. "Each government may take whatever action it deems wise in respect to any or all of these recommendations."

The conference, Jones declared, has "nothing whatever to do with the question of relief during or after the war."

Budget Rule

U. S. Purchase Of 28 Office Items Barred

In a step toward economy in dollars and scarce war materials, the Budget Bureau, it was learned yesterday, has told heads of all Federal agencies to halt "commercial market" purchases of a list of 28 types of office equipment.

In his cease-buying order, Budget Director Harold D. Smith disclosed that some agencies, especially through their field offices, have "ignored" War Production Board priority regulations in the purchase of equipment in local markets at "exorbitant prices."

"Any steps necessary should be taken to prevent such purchases," Smith decreed.

The necessity for "maximum curtailment of expenditures by all agencies," as well as the scarcity of materials, Smith declared, "require immediate administrative action to limit the purchase of luxury and nonessential items."

The Smith order came to light on the eves of a series of reports on alleged Federal extravagances by the Joint Economy Committee headed by Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia. The committee is scheduled to make public in a few days reports criticizing Federal agencies for excessive expenditures for telephone calls, telegraph messages and travel, and attacking over-sized Government payrolls.

Included on Smith's list of banned items were all kinds of steel and leather-upholstered furniture, metal waste baskets, book ends, calendar pads and stands, carafe sets, carpets, leather brief cases, clocks, rubber or cork chair cushions, cuspidors, picture frames, desk and floor lamps, letter openers, rubber chair mats, mirrors, fountain pens, glass desk tops, shears, smoking stands and ash trays.

Man Gets 3 Years, $1500 Fine for Assaults on Women

Joseph Hockenberry, 20, of 815 North Carolina Avenue Southeast, pled guilty in Municipal Court yesterday to charges of assaulting three women and was sentenced by Judge George D. Neilson to three years in jail and fined $1500. If he defaults payment of the fine he serves an additional year and a half.

Police testified Hockenberry attempted to rape two white women here Monday and a Negro girl March 24, but in each case the screams of the victims drove him away. Judge Neilson said that Hockenberry would receive a medical examination in jail.

'Killing' of FSA A Mistake, Goss Tells Committee

Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange, told a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee yesterday it would be a mistake to "kill off" the Farm Security Administration.

Opposing a House Appropriations Committee proposal to transfer functions of the embattled FSA to the Farm Credit Administration, Goss declared:

"Making large sums of money available without a clear definition as to how it should be used invites bad administration. In our judgment, the remedy is not to kill off the institution, which has a worthwhile purpose to serve, but to define clearly the purpose for which it was created and the purposes for which appropriations can be expanded."

He said he believed the activities of the agency should be confined to tenant purchase loans and rehabilitation loans.

Allies Raid 4 Jap New Guinea Bases

Allied Headquarters in Australia (Wednesday), May 26 (AP).—Single Allied bombers raided four Japanese bases yesterday in adverse weather which limited operations in the Southwest Pacific, the high command announced.

The only deviation from use of single planes was in attacks by small formations of bombers on New Guinea villages on the Huon Peninsula.

Rat Hitchhikers Enter U. S. By Air

Two hitchhiking rats, found on planes from foreign ports, have been added to the United States public health service list of unwelcome visitors.

More than 14,000 returning planes have been inspected and only two rats found. But, says one health service official, the problem of keeping disease-bearing rodents from entering the United States via plane may become more serious as huge new cargo ships go into service over great distances.

Roosevelt Reveals Russia Got Over Billion in Fighting Gear

President Roosevelt, accounting for $11,102,472,000 in lend-lease aid in a little more than two years, disclosed yesterday that more actual fighting equipment had been sent to Russia than any other country.

Through March 31, the Soviet Union received $1,041,000,000 in planes, tanks, motor vehicles, ammunition, ordnance and watercraft to help check the Nazi hordes, Mr. Roosevelt said in a letter to Congress.

"Today, we are outbuilding the aggressors in every category of modern arms," he asserted, "and we are delivering them in the amounts necessary to build up the striking power for offensives that will end only in Berlin and Tokyo.

"As lend-lease moves ahead in its third year, our armed forces, our supplies, and the combined efforts of the United Nations are driving ahead to complete victory over the enemy."

Some of the lend-lease assistance has been in the form of goods and services made available in this country, such as training planes and the repair of ships. So the export total from the time lend-lease operations began on March 11, 1941, through last March 31 is only $7,105,000,000. That is exclusive of 700 million dollars in planes and ships delivered by air or sea.

The United Kingdom got $3,116,000,000 worth of the exports and Russia $1,822,000,000. But in actual fighting gear, Russia's $1,041,000,000 overshadowed Britain's $881,000,000.

The Soviet Union, the report said, has obtained thousands of planes, tens of thousands of trucks, jeeps and other motor vehicles, more than one million tons of food, several million pairs of army boots, hundreds of thousands of tons of armor plate, steel, aluminum, copper, zinc, TNT and chemicals and various types of machine tools, power generating equipment and railway supplies.

The report indicated more emphasis would be placed on food shipments to Russia from now on "in order to maintain the rations of the Soviet Army." It said food will have this year a priority on a par with planes and trucks on Russian-bound vessels.

Russia's delegation to the United Nations food conference at Hot Springs, Va., emphasized at a press conference Monday that the Soviets were in urgent and immediate need of food.

The extent of lend-lease aid to China was lumped together in the President's report with that for India, Australia and New Zealand. Those four countries have received exports valued at 875 million dollars.. China received 88 million dollars in material.

United Nations' leaders, including the President and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain, repeatedly have emphasized the importance—and the difficulty—of greater assistance for the Chinese. Mr. Roosevelt said last week that fairly satisfactory progress was being made.

"New land routes are being developed to increase lend-lease shipments into China," the report to Congress asserted, "and the reopening of the Burma Road is among the strategic objectives of our forces."

Convicted Saboteur 'Slugged' for Profit

Baltimore, May 25 (AP).—Harley Brastus Miller, 20, was sentenced in Federal Court today to 18 months' imprisonment after being convicted of violating the National Sabotage Act by performing improper welding on a Liberty ship.

Assistant United States District Attorney T. Barton Harrington introduced as State's evidence a statement signed by Miller that he had done improper welding, known as "slugging," to increase his pay.

Vatican Seeks Help of Poles To Win Russia

New York, May 25 (INS).—The Vatican radio today reported that Pope Pius had received the Polish Ambassador in private audience and that a series of ceremonies had been held in Rome for "the hastening of Russia's return to the true faith."

The ceremonies commemorated the 300th anniversary of the raising to sainthood of the Russian martyr, St. Josaphat, who was murdered after he had converted many persons of the Russian Orthodox religion back to the Roman Catholic faith.

The Vatican broadcast, recorded by the C. B. S. listening station, told of an exhibition at Rome's Russian college of old Russian paintings, featuring pictures of "all the more famous churches in Russia, including many that no longer exist."

Finns See Allied Landing 'Certain'

New York, May 25 (AP).—The Helsinki newspaper Uusi Suomi was quoted in a Finnish home broadcast today as saying that an Allied landing in Europe this summer "must be considered as likely, we may even say as a certainty."

Because of this "certainty," said the broadcast, which was reported by the Federal Communications Commission, Germany's Eastern Front offensive this summer probably will have "only a limited objective."

WAR HEADLINES BRING CHANGES
DIRECTLY AFFECTING YOUR CAR!

When war came to America . . . "driving as usual" ended for Americans. Each day's headlines brought new changes—new shortages or restrictions—affecting you and your car. High speeds, long trips, plentiful gasoline were ruled out. Everything changed. And here's the important point, your car and your car's service program should be changed, too, to fit these new conditions. Have you attended to this?

DEC. 1941
AUTOMOBILE PRODUCTION STOPPED!
WILL YOUR CAR LAST OUT THE DURATION?
Among the first to go "all-out" on war production were the automobile manufacturers. That meant no more cars would be built. It meant your present car must last. You assumed a new responsibility to "care for your car . . . for your country."

OCT. 1942
35 MILES PER HOUR LIMIT SET!
HAS YOUR CAR BEEN "TUNED DOWN"?
Your car was designed for performance over a wide range of speeds. You can get greater economy in today's kind of driving by having its timing, distributor points, spark plugs, choke and heat control readjusted for low speeds.

JAN, 1942
RATIONING OF TIRES STARTED!
ARE YOU DOING YOUR BEST TO SAVE TIRES?
The rubber shortage made tire protection vitally important. You learned about inflation and proper wheel alignment, and you probably learned that your Oldsmobile dealer's was the best place to get complete tire-saving service.

DEC. 1942
GASOLINE RATIONING BEGINS!
ARE YOU GETTING THE MILEAGE YOU'RE ENTITLED TO?
No matter what type of gas ration book you have, it's unpatriotic to waste fuel. Let us tune your engine for maximum economy. We'll also check for dragging brakes, fuel leaks and other causes of gas waste.

APRIL, 1942
PUBLIC IS GETTING LOWER OCTANE GAS!
HAS YOUR CAR BEEN ADJUSTED FOR THIS?
America's air forces require the highest octane gasolines, so we at home are getting lower octane fuels. What you may not know is that your car should be adjusted to its new diet. Let us perform this important fuel-saving service for you.

JAN. 1943
MECHANICS DECLARED ESSENTIAL TO WAR EFFORT!
SKILLED MANPOWER TO KEEP YOUR CAR ROLLING!
Since the Government has recognized auto mechanics as essential workers, car owners can be assured of competent service to keep their cars rolling . . . the same quality Oldsmobile service as in the past.

Here's another fact the war headlines tell us: Our boys need more weapons . . . more weapons cost more money . . . all of us must buy more War Bonds.

Tax Parley Agrees on 75% Tax Rebate

berg (Republican) of Michigan.

Senator George suggested abating 75 per cent of a year's taxes and spreading the remaining 25 per cent over the next two years. Senator Vandenberg suggested abating in full the income tax up to $50. In combination, the proposals form the tax abatement compromise which Congress will be asked to write speedily into law.

Chief features of the compromise are these:

1. Abatement of income tax liability applies to the income of 1942 or 1943, whichever was lower. Taxes will be paid currently on income of the higher year.

2. One hundred per cent of tax liability on the lower year of income up to $50 will be erased. For the groups with a tax slightly over $50, tentatively those with tax up to $66.67) the amount erased will be at least $50. Beyond that 75 per cent of the year will be abated.

3. Unabated tax will be payable over two years, one-half of it on March 15, 1944, the other half March 15, 1945.

4. Tax paid last March 15, and the installment due on June 15, will be considered credit on settlement of tax on 1943 income.

5. Starting July 1, income taxes will be collected directly from salaries and wages as they are paid, through a 20 per cent levy applied against income above basic exemptions. These are $12 a week for a single person, $24 a week for married, and $6 extra for each dependent.

6. In the last half of this year, a current collection system for those unaffected by the payroll income collection levy will be started. Taxpayers in this group will estimate their annual income a year ahead, with the exception that this year's estimate will be due September 15, and pay currently on that estimate.

These advance estimates will be required from all who can expect $100 or more income during the year from non-wage sources. In addition they will be required from single persons who "reasonably" expect to receive more than $2700 from wages or salaries during the year, and married persons who expect more than $3500.

7. As under present law a final report on the income of one year would be made on March 15, of the next year. At that time taxpayers would make the final settlement on their income tax and victory tax of the year before, or collect any refund due.

The first estimates of tentative income for the current year would be made at the same time, and the first quarter of the tax on the tentative income would be due.

How Tax Works

The following table, indicates the effect on various income groups of the compromise pay-as-you-earn tax plan approved by the joint conference committee.

The figures are for a married person with no dependents.

The first column shows net income before personal exemption. The second shows the amount of tax on 1942 income that would be abated. (Actually abatement would apply to 1942 or 1943, whichever year had the lower income.) The third column shows the approximate burden, assuming present rates continue, which the individual would have to carry in 1944 and 1945 to pay off unabated 25 per cent of a year's tax, on top of pay-as-you-go collection of current taxes.

Net income before personal exemption	Amount of 1942 tax forgiven (1943 income was lower than 1942)	Tax payment at present rates in 1944 and 1945 to meet current taxes and wipe out unabated 25 per cent of a year's tax completed came from Secretary Knox, who told a press conference yesterday: "the fight is continuing."

Knox said that the American forces ashore there include a unit of "Seabees," men of the Navy's construction battalion whose job it is to go with the combat forces into battle and construct the bases from which operations are conducted. One of the first jobs of the construction crew may be to complete an airbase which the Japanese began building on the inhospitable island several months ago.

The Secretary was questioned about recent Japanese claims of having destroyed the American warship force at Attu and described it as "another fishing expedition." Subsequently, a Navy spokesman said flatly that the enemy claims were "not true."

While attention remained concentrated on the fighting in the North Pacific, yesterday's communique reported a new burst of activity in the South Pacific over the weekend. Three Japanese cargo vessels in the Shortland Island area of the northwestern Solomons were bombed Sunday by Liberator heavy bombers.

Three Japanese craft attacked Guadalcanal, but "no damage was inflicted on United States personnel and positions," the official report stated.

Helicopter to Go To Sea Shortly

By International News Service

Plans to install small decks on Liberty ships to carry newly developed amphibious helicopters as an added weapon against submarines were announced last night by the Army.

The helicopters, which can hover noiselessly above the surface of the sea, were regarded as effective in spotting U-boats and as directing gunfire from the decks of merchant ships at emerging undersea marauders.

WLB Denies Coal Mine Raise

the board's "Little Steel" formula. The dissent charged that "weakness, vacillation and indecision are the prominent characteristics which have marked recent attempts to regulate prices," and announced the labor members' intention to register objections to application of "Little Steel" "not only in this specific case, but also in general."

The rest of the decision was unanimous.

WLB specifically denied the demand for a guarantee of six days' pay, 52 weeks a year, as "imposing an undue burden on the industry or greatly increasing the cost of coal to the public," but suggested "that the parties mutually agree on a reasonable contract provision, wherever the mines are operating six days a week, whereby the operators will give a fair and equal opportunity to individuals to work during each of the six days."

The board indorsed, but did not order, the appointment of a commission of experts to study such problems as "possible improvements in working conditions, matters of safety and improvements in living conditions for the miners and their families, and improved efficiency in mining operations as well as in the transportation and marketing of coal."

In addition to turning down the general increase, the board denied the miners' demands for double time for Sunday work because of the President's order on overtime pay, use of union-made explosives, and payment for shoes and hats estimated at $13 a year.

Occupational charges which the operators will be required to stand included those for safety equipment and working tools (including cap lamps worn by each underground miner) and blacksmithing.

Levees Broken Along Mississippi

where 500 troops were at work.

From Gale to the Cairo drainage district there were no levees, but the two sizable communities—Thebes and Fayville—are on high ground, and engineers evacuated residents of all unprotected regions. Dogtooth Bend was inundated, but Chester was on elevated land.

Scott Field sent 2400 soldiers to Dupo, Columbia and Granite City, where 800 high schoolers were released from classes to help fill sandbags.

At Beardstown, the Illinois River level remained virtually stationary at 29.65 feet—about 7 feet above the level of downtown streets. A heightened dike there afforded protection up to 30 feet 8 inches. But seepage began in an earthen levee upriver from the main barrier.

Farther upstream, at Peoria, the river was at a 28.56 stage and dropping slowly. Nevertheless, 12,000 men labored to save a sewage disposal plant.

A crest on the Arkansas River moved swiftly toward Little Rock and troops braced for another struggle to hold levees.

Psychiatrist Doesn't Expect New World

"We aren't going to have any bright new world after the war," Dr. Isadore Rodis told members of the newly consolidated family and child welfare division of the Council of Social Agencies yesterday at Barker Hall in the K Street Y. W. C. A. Dr. Rodis, phychiatry professor at Georgetown Medical School, contending that man is essentially an emotional creature, said he had no answers to questions of what to do about causes of wartime emotional upset, but he did outline progress in psychiatric diagnosis and methods of prevention of mental troubles in the armed forces.

In the last war, he said, draft boards put their neurotics, psycopaths, alcoholics and malcontents into the Army to get rid of them. Now the services weed them out, he said, realizing that not only are they not good fighters but that they are dangerous sources of hysteria and lack of discipline among their fellows.

Problems for which he had no solution are conditions which cause women and men to become upset because they are deprived of normal sexual relationships, conditions which take security away from women and children and cause responsibility and aggression to be thrust upon them. He pondered the readjustment of young men who must now be trained as commando killers and children who are uprooted periodically to follow fathers about the country to their new posts. He said mental repercussions follow such situations.

Before Dr. Rodis spoke, Mrs. Henry P. Chandler was named chairman of the division subject to approval and appointmen by President John Ihlder of the Council of Social Agencies. Elected by the division at the same time were Jacob Kammen, vice chairman; A. Patricia Morss, chairman of the nominating committee and Mrs. C. F. Alexander, Adj. Ray Brown, Mrs. Martin Codel, Mrs. I. S. Falk, Marita Redington, and Anne Rogers, members; Joseph Dayton, Donald Gray, Mrs. Mildred Kilinski, Mrs. Harold Sinton and Mildred Terrett, members at large of the steering committee. Forty-four others were named members at large of the division.

Rift Between Administration And Congress Laid to Emotion

Emotion, plain old-fashioned human emotion, was blamed yesterday for the sharpened differences between Congress and the Administration by Attorney General Francis Biddle.

Speaking before a conference of the Society for the Advancement of Management at the Washington Hotel, he said the answer to the problem was nothing so drastic as overall changes in the whole system of government, but simply more "daily give and take" between the two branches of government.

He attacked Congress' "unusual method of getting rid of administrators they don't like," by taking away the salaries of officials it calls "subversive." Taking away a man's salary is the same as firing him, Biddle said, charging that in so doing "Congress impinged on our administrative prerogatives."

Varied means of closer collaboration between Congress and Administration, such as more committees, more talks, more planning and more paper reports for "mutual education" were suggested by other speakers at the two-day conference.

War Manpower Czar Paul V. McNutt, speaking at the night sessions, told the gathering that the problem of absenteeism was one for plant labor-management and not the Government, and emphasized that the WMU had "no intention of doing any part of the job that can be done by management."

McNutt continued, "we must make sure that men are not absent because they have not enough to do when they are on the job and that they do not quit—as some have reported to us—to go where they can do an honest day's work."

The manpower chief said "somewhere ahead" is a point where nearly all women who can will be in the labor force. "We will have contracted civilian services to the barest essentials. We will have exhausted the pools of manpower among the aged, the handicapped, the minority groups and the loyal aliens.

An informal committee made up of several Congressmen and several administrators to draw up a "code of fair practices" between the two and iron out general difficulties was proposed by John B. Blandford, jr., administrator of the National Housing Agency.

Experience of the Truman Committee has shown that no records are kept by administrative officials of "lots that's done," Hugh Fulton, the chief counsel of the committee, told the conference. On matters involving millions of dollars, he said, often no records are to be found, and in many cases where they are kept, they are "so sketchy and fragmentary they are not worth the paper they're on," he said, asking that men in public office put down their stand in dealing with important matters.

More careful planning based upon actualities "would go a long way toward restoring confidence in management," stated Representative Calvin Johnson who cited his experience as a contractor when he had 93 changes ordered in one building between the time the job was begun and its completion date.

Other speakers on yesterday's roster were Representative Robert Ramspeck; Richard B. Gilbert, adviser to OPA Chief Prentiss Brown; and the Librarian of Congress Archibald MacLeish.

Pleasure Boat Mount Vernon's Fuel Tangle Ends

The Wilson Line's pleasure boat Mount Vernon last night ended its 25-day argument with the District Office of Price Administration for fuel and, filled with 5000 gallons of oil allotted for the purpose, steamed back to its home port in Wilmington, Del.

The line's efforts to obtain sufficient coupons to operate this summer began May 1 when the Mount Vernon docked at the Maine Avenue waterfront. The OPA refused to grant fuel to the Mount Vernon on the grounds that all available oil was conserved for essential use.

In a similar plight were officials of the Potomac River Line and the Robert E. Lee Steamship Co. The steamboat Potomac probably will be converted to coal, but owners reported that neither the Robert E. Lee nor the Mount Vernon is so adaptable.

Agencies to Study Aid for Young Migrants

All phases of the problems confronting young migrants to wartime Washington will be considered here today and tomorrow at an institute, sponsored by the Alliance for Guidance of Rural Youth, in which representatives of agencies which assist the incoming workers will coordinate their services.

Purpose of the institute will be establishment of a more effective rural service to youth before migration, and development of a directory to make readily available information on the services offered to them after arrival here.

Special sections of both rural and urban specialists have been designated to study the young migrants' problems in the sequence they normally arise, and discuss means by which their needs would be cared for. The major problems under consideration will be: Current agricultural needs in realtion to migration away from the farm, educational aspects of the young workers' preparation for position here; occupation training both before and after migration; economic, occupational and recreational problems in the city, and, finally, the postwar situation and its implications.

The preliminary conference on rural youth migration wil' be held tonight at 8 in National Education Association headquarters, when Dr. Howard A. Dawson, vice chairman of the institute who is director of rural service for the NEA, will preside.

Physician Denies Abortion Charge

Dr. Edward Comstock Wilson, 63, of 127 B Street Southeast, was at liberty under $2500 bail last night on a charge of performing an illegal operation.

He was taken into custody yesterday by Detective Sergts. Richard Felber and Charles Carver, homicide squad, after a 21-year-old Government Printing Office employe was admitted to Gallinger Hospital. The young woman, unmarried, made a statement to detectives and also revealed that a fellow employe was responsible for her condition.

Dr. Wilson denied the accusation.

Hollywood, May 25 (AP).—Hedy Lamarr, Vienna-born screen actress, and Actor John Loder, who met only six months ago, applied today for a marriage license at nearby Santa Monica and announced they would be married as soon as they could obtain short leaves from their studios.

Asked why thtey decided on marriage after such a brief courtship. Miss Lamarr replied: "There are times when it's hard to describe one's feeling. This is one."

Hagerstown Barber Held on Bookie Charge

Hagerstown, Md., May 25.—Paul R. Diffendorfer, 42, was arrested on a charge of operating a bank on horse races and five other men were charged with being inmates of the gaming room, which was raided here yesterday by State and city police.

Captain of Police William Peters said that three radios, playing cards, hundreds of betting sheets, and gambling equipment were seized, and that Diffendorfer, a barber, was operating a short wave radio when the officers entered.

Owners of Small Homes to Get More Fuel Oil

Owners of small homes, the OPA said yesterday, will get increases in their fuel oil rations for the next season automatically.

When house holders return their mail application blanks next month, their ration boards will dig up the figures on floor space and other data from last year's application, apply a new formula and grant increases accordingly, without any red tape for the householder.

Plans to change the formula to grant slightly more liberal rations for small houses were announced several weeks ago.

However, the application blank will provide a line for householders to ask for less oil than would be granted under the formula, in case anyone wants to use that line.

Japanese Now 'No. 1 Enemy' With Germans, Says Churchill; Hints New Blows at the Nipponese

Roosevelt had finished making a report on what was being done to combat the flood in the Midwest, he turned the press conference over to Churchill, refering to him as his distinguished colleague.

Recalls 1942 Visit

A reporter wanted to know how Mr. Churchill felt about the war porspects in general. Was he satisfied?

The Prime Minister recalled his visit to the White House last June. Rommel was driving the British toward Egypt, and one morning the President handed him a telegram saying that the Desert Fox had captured Tobruk and a large British force.

Churchill, looking back on that day, told the reporters that no Englishman in America had ever been so unhappy since Gen. John Burgoyne, invading the American Colonies from Canada in 1777, was outsmarted and forced to surrender at Saratoga.

A roar of laughter swept the Presidents' office. When it had subsided, Churchill recited some of the developments of the last 11 months—El Alamein, Stalingrad, Tunisia—and said there had been an indisputable turning of the tides.

Allies Now Stronger Force

In the course of the next 20 minutes or so, the Prime Minister said the Allies were now the stronger force in the global war; that the Allies had definitely won superiority in the air; that we are winning the battle against the U-boats; that it looked as if Generals De Gaulle and Giraud were about to get together, and that Russia's prospects of throwing back the Germans in 1943 were much better than in '42 and '41.

Was Churchill still of the opinion that it would be unwise to depend on an internal collapse in Germany and Italy?

Yes, he said, he was standing on the idea of a knockout. But of course, he added, any windfall in the form of an internal collapse would be gratefully accepted. Meantime the Allies' policy would be to win by force of arms.

The Italians, he said, would be well advised to overthrow the Fascist tyranny that robbed them of their liberties and turn to the Allies. But this was after all, he said, a matter for the Italians themselves to settle.

Physical Stimuli

All our side can do, he said, grinning, was to apply some physical stimuli—apparently bombs and perhaps more.

A girl reporter asked Churchill if he could imagine what was now going on in Hitler's mind.

The Prime Minister looked amused at first, but the smile quickly disappeared as he let his thoughts go back. He launched into an angry and eloquent discussion of prewar events—of the time when the British Government brought disrepute on itself, so far did it go to placate the German Fuehrer. But there was no satisfying the appetite of this wicked man, Churchill said, and the war came.

Answering the question, he said he had little doubt that if Hitler could have the cards back, he would play his hand very differently.

Tribute to Russia

Churchill was asked about the prospects of Russia going to war with Japan and thus making available Siberian air bases for the bombing of Japan. He answered with a fulsome tribute to Russia's contribution so far. Russia, now facing 190 German divisions and 28 satellite divisions, he said, has punished the enemy as no other Allied power has been in a position to do. And, bearing this in mind, he said, he felt he was in no position to suggest to Russia that she do more.

But Russia must know, he added, that Japan is watching her with a purely opportunistic eye.

"What did you think of the dissolution of the Comintern?" somebody asked.

Churchill said he liked it, and his expression indicated that his satisfaction was rather profound.

The Prime Minister spoke with some emphasis on the air picture in the war. The Axis powers, he said, already have begun to fail in this category, and he predicted that their plight would continue to grow progressively worse, since they can't hope to match the Allies in the production of planes and pilots.

Whether the victory in the air would be enough to win, he said, was a question that only the future could answer.

But he thought it was an example of poetic justice that the weapon which the Axis powers hoped to use to subjugate us—the one Japan used at Pearl Harbor and the one Hitler used to terrorize Europe—should be the weapon in which they are first outmatched by their would-be victims.

Churchill said the Allies are now killing more U-boats than ever before, and that shipbuilding was well ahead of ship sinkings. Of course, he said, there were more U-boats at sea to be killed; but that wasn't the whole answer. He hinted at some wonderful things that have been worked out here and in Britain to master the U-boat menace.

Twice President Roosevelt took a hand in Churchill's running question-and-answer session with the reporters. The first occasion came when the British visitor was talking about the future. The Allies' aim, he said, is to compel unconditional surrender from those who had molested us.

The President seized on the word molested, and observed with a chuckle that this was a beautiful example of British understatement.

Again Churchill was talking about the unending air raids on Germany. He praised the R. A. F.'s mighty assault on Dortmund, but quickly turned to the feats of the United States Army Air Forces based in England. He said the Flying Fortresses and Liberators did not carry the bomb loads of the British planes, but did achieve greater precision in their daylight raids.

The President took this up and elaborated on it a bit, telling how the R. A. F. worked by night and the Yank bombers by day. Churchill observed with a smile that it was in truth a 24-hour service.

Churchill was asked at the outset why he brought over Field Marshal Sir Archibald Wavell and other officers stationed in the Far East. He replied that the Allies planned to increase the intensity of the war against Japan, and he wanted his own military leaders to get together with Generals Stilwell and Chennault.

In the future, he said, the Allied forces must be applied on the widest possible fronts with a view to shaking the life out of the Axis powers.

At the end of the press conference, Churchill leaped to his chair and raised his chubby fingers in a V-for-victory sign.

To plow my farm in peace once more

IT IS NOT much to ask. To plow my little farm in peace. In spring, when the fierce rains stop, to break the steaming earth and plant my crops.

In summer . . . to watch through sunny days the great fields spring to life.

In fall . . . to gather in the harvest against the long winter days to come.

And no man to say me "nay". No plundering hand of an aggressor to take from me the fruits of my labor.

It is not much to ask . . . but oh, how much it is to enjoy.

This is our way of life . . . the American way. Freedom to have and to hold the things that are our own. Freedom to worship according to our beliefs . . . to educate our children in schools of our choosing . . . to think what we please, say what we please, do what we please.

These freedoms are in danger. To protect them and preserve them, American men are fighting on all the seas and on every continent. These fighting men look to us to back them up . . . to every man, woman and child who has a stake in victory. The job is a big one—and mighty urgent. Are you doing your share—today, every day—to contribute to winning this war?

Examine the list on the right. Study it. Check it against your own performance and that of your friends and neighbors. See how your job on the home front measures up to the job our boys are doing on the far-flung battlefronts of this war.

Our job at National Distillers is to devote 100% of our production facilities to the manufacture of alcohol for war purposes. We, like the rest of the distilling industry, are making no whiskey today. The alcohol we produce is going into munitions, rubber, chemicals, medicines and other essential war needs.

These famous bottled-in-bond 100 proof whiskies are offered from stocks distilled years before Pearl Harbor:

Check this list. It will help you decide—
WHAT CAN I DO TO HELP WIN THE WAR?

- I regularly buy War Stamps and Bonds—at least 10% of my income.
- I avoid unnecessary expenditures in order to help prevent inflation.
- I cheerfully observe all rationing regulations and do not hoard.
- I budget my ration points carefully and don't waste food.
- I work where I can do the most good for the war effort.
- I get to work on time and am never avoidably absent.
- I do my best to stay healthy.
- I do my best to avoid accidents, especially if I work in a war plant.
- I watch what I say and spread no rumors.
- I conserve tires and gasoline.
- I share my car with others.
- I travel only when absolutely necessary.
- I carry my own bundles when shopping to save manpower, gas and tires.
- I contribute to the Red Cross and all War Relief funds.
- I save and turn in scrap metal, used cooking fats and other needed materials.
- I do Civilian Defense work.
- I work with the Red Cross or other volunteer groups.
- I am a regular blood donor.
- I volunteer for Nurse's Aide work.
- I pay my taxes on time and in full.
- I do community social service work.
- I am prepared to quietly cooperate with the F.B.I. in apprehending suspicious persons.
- I am planting a Victory garden.
- I contribute books to the men in the service.
- I write to friends and relatives in the service.
- I observe dimout and blackout regulations to the letter.

This list, of course, is not complete. Every man, woman and child will find many other ways to help. Check this list with your neighbors and find out what they are doing. But get going! Do all you can! And do it now! Consult your local Civilian Defense Council for further information.

in food subsidies by declaring the R. F. C. does not originate policy, but is strictly a "service agency."

Details of the food subsidy will be worked out after a meeting here tomorrow and Friday with representatives from the butter and meat industries. Asked whether this would not delay the rollback, he said he did not believe so, as the subsidy payments could be made retroactive.

McNary expressed doubt Congress would authorize subsidies to compensate processors when "consumers might be in a better position to pay higher costs than the Treasury." Jones said the RFC has enough funds for the first year on three products, but "is coming to Congress soon for some more."

"I think Congress will be leaving before that time," McNary said.

A Senate appropriations subcommittee, however, yesterday approved a $6,273,629,000 lend-lease appropriation after eliminating a House-approved prohibition against the use of any of the funds for payments of subsidies on agriculture products.

Chairman McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee told reporters the subcommittee thought subsidies were a proper subject for general legislative action by Congress "since they involve matters of policy" that might not belong in an appropriations measure.

Butler Rollback

John Brandt, president of the National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation, appearing before the Senate Agriculture Committee, declared the proposed rollback in the price of butter would save consumers just 60 cents a year, as it would amount to 5 cents on 12 pounds of rationed butter.

By counting in the rollback on 138.3 pounds of meat available to civilians annually under rationing, he said the amount saved would average $6.13 per consumer.

"The farmer does not favor subsidies," he declares. "In a time when buying power in this country is at wartime peaks the farmer realizes that there is no sense in borrowing on the future to pay our current grocery bills."

In rolling back the price of potatoes, the OPA made no direct comment on the diversion of potatoes to the black market, but it was stated the new order would be enforced to the limit of OPA power "to bring the chiseler, the racketeer, and the black market operator to justice."

Gasoline Outlook in Washington-Baltimore 'Famine' Area Continues Dismal Despite Emergency Measures

game at Griffith Stadium Tuesday and cited 12 taxi drivers for pleasure driving. In each case the drivers had women sitting on their front seats. The cases were turned over to District Hack Inspector Joseph Harrington, who interviewed four of the 12 and found they had no trips listed on their manifests at the hours the inspectors cited. Harrington said they would be prosecuted in Traffic Court for failing to keep their manifests and face possible loss of hacking licenses. In addition, the cases will be returned to the OPA and they face loss of ration coupons or books. Pleasure driving violations now total 442.

Operators of wholesale businesses which come under the restrictions of deliveries set up by the Office of Defense Transportation Monday night mostly were at a loss to determine just how to cut deliveries and keep customers happy. Most of them were anxiously awaiting the priority list of essential commodities which will be issued soon by the War Production Board to assure gasoline preferment for the most critical war needs.

10 Per Cent of Stations Open

Following issuance of the priority list, an ODT spokesman said, companies which feel they have been penalized by their own past efforts to conserve gasoline and now have become "hardship cases" will be able to appeal to the ODT for review of their allotments. Normally, the ODT will stick to the 40 per cent reduction on the basis of current operation, he said.

The American Automobile Association reportde that only 10 per cent of the gasoline stations opened in the District yesterday, each supplied with about 500 gallons of gas —enough to serve 125 to 150 autos. Gasoline trucks traveling to the stations became the leaders of long caravans as motorists followed them to their destinations to be Johnnies-on-the-spot.

The A. A. A. also reported more than 50 out-of-town motorists stranded here because of lack of gasoline.

Smoother Operation

More widespread understanding of the changes in schedules of the Capital Transit Co.'s buses led to far smoother operation yesterday, transit company officials said. They reported that further curtailment of the Sunday schedule now is being planned and said there would be "some whittling" of other off-peak hour schedules in places where it was warranted.

District Commissioner Guy Mason was among the many who came up with suggestions for saving gasoline: He suggested that the OPA limit the number of cars in funeral processions and said he would take up the matter with District OPA Director Robert K. Thompson.

There was a paucity of taxicabs in the outlying areas of Washington yesterday as cabbies, limited to a few gallons of gas for the day, kept to the center of town as much as possible. Hundreds of cabs were gathered at Union Station, where they could take advantage of chockfull group rides, usually to hotels in the downtown section. None of the taxicab companies reported cabs laid up.

In nearby Maryland and Virginia farm machinery still was idle in many cases. Governor O'Conor of Maryland said he had received assurance from PAW that gasoline would be shipped in sufficient quantities to prevent shutdown of war industries.

Orders to "redouble efforts to curtail use of passenger and cargo transportation and other gasoline-consuming equipment" were transmitted to all Army posts, camps and stations in the Third Service Command, which embraces Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, by Maj. Gen. Milton G. Reckord, commanding general, last night. General Reckord called the gasoline shortage "serious."

One Prince Georges County school had few pupils yesterday as the two school buses which serve the Highland Park School were unable to obtain gasoline. All schools were open, but teachers were hard put to reach some of them in outlying sections. There were several complaints that gas stations along Bladensburg Road which had gasoline were refusing to sell to any but regular customers. A threatened tie-up of Fairfax school buses was averted when supplies of gasoline arrived to keep them all moving yesterday.

A bumper crop of pleasure driving ban violators was reported yesterday by Hyattsville police, who said they had taken license numbers and names of "between 300 and 400" motorists Monday night. Most of them were traveling the Washington-Baltimore Boulevard. Marlboro police reported more than 60 motorists listed for violating the ban.

Dr. Theodore Wiprud, secretary of the District Medical Society, last night said his appeals to the District OPA for gasoline for doctors had met with statements that the office had no authority to set aside fuel. He said a dangerous situation confronted expectant mothers, with obstetricians unable to respond to emergency calls for deliveries.

House Passes Antipoll Tax Bill, 265 to 110

struction days. Representative William M. Whittington (Democrat) of poll-tax Mississippi, came forward to resume the attack.

Suddenly members became aware of the slim, blue-clad form of the dark-haired, handsome youth precariously balanced above the House. Jones steadied himself with an arm around a gallery post, then addressed members in parliamentary form: "Mr. Speaker, I demand the right to be heard."

There was a hush in the chamber, broken only by the hasty scramble of members immediately under the sailor, trying to get out of jump range. Representative Alfred L. Bulwinkle, (Democrat) of North Carolina, was in the Speaker's chair. He asked Whittington to take his seat. Jones took it as a cue to continue his speech.

"Mr. Speaker," he shouted, "do I have the floor?"

Before the sailor was dragged from the ledge by gallery guards, he got in fragments of his speech. "I am a man from the service," he said. "I speak for the thousands who cannot be here. . . . I would like to ask you why does a man have to pay tribute for the right to vote?"

Later, in the guardroom, he was still full of his answer to the sectional arguments he had heard on the House floor. "California wants one thing, Pennsylvania wants another and Alabama wants something else," he said. "They've got to work together more to help this country."

Sergeant-at-Arms Romney explained that "guests" of the House were not supposed to talk. Jones agreed he might have "spoken out of turn—but I was right. Freedom of speech shouldn't be denied anyone. They ought to put some of our boys up there before the microphone. They're wasting time."

The sailor later told Dr. Calver, "I believe we have the best government anywhere. We are fighting to keep it the best government, and Congress should do its part."

The House meanwhile had turned back to its own debate, which for hours ran its usual course on sectional issues.

Said Representative John E. Rankin (Democrat) of Mississippi: "All you are doing (with the anti-poll tax bill) is stirring up race trouble all over the country and using the Negro as a smokescreen."

Said Representative Charles L. Gifford (Republican) of Massachusetts: "Instead of charging them $2 to vote why don't you follow the New Deal practice. Why don't you give them $2 to vote."

Debate as usual failed to change a vote. The House, which last year passed a bill outlawing poll taxes, passed it again and sent it to the Senate which has always been successful in filibustering the measure to death. Before passage, the House rejected 131 to 75 an amendment exempting primaries from the poll tax ban, and shouted down another prohibiting educational requirements for voting. A motion to recommit the bill was defeated 167 to 90.

Apple "Honey"

✔ NEW MOISTENING AGENT...

Apple "Honey" is our name for a new moistening agent, which takes the place of glycerine normally used to keep cigarettes moist and fresh on their way to you.

✔ FROM JUICY, FRESH APPLES...

This new moistening agent is made by evaporating the pure juice of luscious fresh apples to a smooth, honey-like syrup. It is a bland, tasteless liquid—which we think is better in several ways than glycerine, now needed on the battle front.

✔ HELPS SEAL IN FRESHNESS...

We call this new development Apple "Honey." Sprayed on our choice Old Gold tobaccos, Apple "Honey" reaches every tiny shred—helps to seal in the moisture, protect the freshness of Old Golds on their way to you.

*New moistening agent developed by U. S. Department of Agriculture. We call it Apple "Honey."

✔ DOES NOT CHANGE THE TASTE!

Apple "Honey" is not a flavoring. Because it is tasteless, it does not change the taste of Old Golds. Get a pack of Old Golds. You'll find the same delicious flavor prized by millions—the same fine tobaccos, including Latakia. But now—they're protected by Apple "Honey."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Foundation for F. D. R.'s Fourth Term Campaign

NATURALLY Harry Hopkins and the President both read over the Churchill speech in advance, and one particular portion, according to insiders, bears the stamp of Hopkins.

It was the reference to the dual position of Roosevelt as both the President of the United States and Commander-in-Chief. Political advisers detect in this the seeds for the fourth term campaign, if there is one. What Churchill said was:

"The wisdom of the founders of the American Constitution led them to associate the office of Commander-in-Chief with that of the Presidency of the United States. In this they were following the precedents which were successful in the case of George Washington.

"It is remarkable that, after more than 150 years, this combination of political and military authority has been found necessary not only in the United States but in the case of Marshal Stalin in Russia and of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in China."

Then Churchill proceeded to emphasize that total war today required coordination by the chief of government and the chief of the Army and Navy all under one head.

Interesting fact is that this dovetails with the strategy already devised by high-up political advisers of the President, that in any fourth term campaign it should be hammered home that Roosevelt is the Commander-in-Chief and that the job of Commander-in-Chief must not be changed in war time.

It is also proposed that the President open no campaign headquarters and make almost no speeches. All this, of course, is dependent upon whether or not he runs for a fourth term—which he will not decide until June, 1944.

Anyway, it looks as if the Prime Minister had already laid the groundwork for '44.

Claude Wickard's Hogs

THE AIR-COOLED office of the Secretary of Agriculture has been vacant. This is corn planting time in Indiana, and Claude Wickard has gone back to Carroll County to take care of the planting.

Most of the time, Wickard manages his 380-acre farm by long distance telephone, and by writing letters to his mother, his daughter Anne, and the two hired men. He dictates one letter, sending his mother the original, with carbon copies to the others.

His father used to manage the place, but he is now seriously ill. Daughter Anne, a student at Purdue University, 18 miles away, drives to the farm every weekend.

But at spring planting time, Wickard has to get back to the grass roots himself.

In Indiana they know Claude as a big hog man. He has 600 head of little pigs, and his last batch of hogs marketed at an average of 222 pounds each.

With prices at present levels, Wickard makes more money as a farmer than he does as a Cabinet member—salary $15,000.

British Guest

POPULAR Brig. Gen. C. L. Lindemann, counselor of the British Embassy, got a hurry call from Lady Halifax the other day asking him to dine at the Embassy with the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

The duke and duchess had just arrived in town, rather unexpectedly, and wanted to see Gen. Lindemann, who is an old friend. In England a dinner invitation from royalty is considered a command. It is like a dinner invitation from the White House, not to be declined. But Gen. Lindemann told Lady Halifax:

"I've already accepted an invitation to dine with some American, and these days when people invite you to dinner they go to a lot of trouble. So I just can't let them down at the last moment."

Lady Halifax agreed. So considerate General Lindemann came in to see the duke and duchess after dinner.

Paris Fashion Shows

REPORTS from France by way of England indicate that Paris still considers itself the style center of the world, still stages elegant fashion shows. But for whom? An exclusive group of wealthy Germans and French collaborators who are busy buying fur coats and evening gowns for their ladies with peacetime extravagance.

A fashion magazine has been received from France which tells the whole story—a 125-page issue of the Album de la Mode Figaro. It sets forth, with elaborate illustrations, the great array of new dresses available for the favored children of the new order.

There are embroidered gowns, lace-trimmed blouses, fur handbags, sable coats with sable hoods attached, and new designs in great assortment by Rouff and Piguet.

The prices are high, the patrons wealthy. They carry a special ration card known as a carte de haute couture, issued only to Germans or French collaborationists, entitling the bearer to buy the latest creations, while the rest of France wears the tattered clothes of oppression.

T. A. P., Dubuque, Iowa—The newsreel of Price Administrator Brown and the A. & P. coffee was made by the Office of War Information, not by OPA. But OWI insists that Brown did not appear in the same shots with the A. & P. package, and thus did not" advertise" that product.

Maj. Rose Tells D. C. Ad Women Of Postwar Role

The first man to participate in a meeting of the Women's Advertising Club of Washington, Maj. C. J. Rose of the British army staff, yesterday described the war and postwar role of women in the advertising field, at a luncheon in the Lee Sheraton Hotel.

Major Rose, former president of the Incorporated Advertising Managers Association of England, told the women, all of whom are active in local advertising, that their primary job was to "defend the status of advertising during the war." He added, "The professional basis on which this field has been placed was hard won and must be hard held. You must hold in trust your men colleagues' positions, carrying on according to the demands of advertising and building for the future when the field will require more technique."

He reassured the women that, able to gain vast experience during the war, they will achieve an even higher status in advertising in peacetime. The returning servicemen will be absorbed in the anticipated expansion of the field, rather than replace the women employes, he suggested.

Temperament Cuts Ration Book Red Tape

By Anne Hagner
Post Staff Writer

You have to assert your Irish temperament if you require immediate service from your local board in replacing lost ration books—so says Mrs. Ernest W. Chapin of 3329 Runnymede Place Northwest, who yesterday emerged triumphant from a two-day struggle with Board 21 at the John Oyster School.

It seems that Mrs. Chapin, shopping for her family of six at her neighborhood grocery store Saturday, put her handbag in her market basket and failed to watch it closely. When she next looked for it, the purse containing six ration books, a wrist watch, an unindorsed check and some small change was missing.

She immediately reported her plight to police and, unable to complete her grocery-buying without ration stamps, spent Sunday preparing a strictly unrationed diet for the Chapin household. Neighbors, hearing of the loss, contributed butter and canned goods in a cooperative spirit of lend-lease.

Came Monday morning, and Mrs. Chapin set forth to replace the missing books and thus return life at 3329 Runnymede Place to its normal plane. Arriving at the Oyster School, she told office workers of her loss and was astonished to learn that under customary procedure she must wait 10 days before duplicates would be available.

Envisioning a house full of Chapins eking out an existence on scrambled eggs and turnips, Mrs. Chapin insisted that there must be some way to replace the books before malnutrition set in. Ration Board 21 remained steadfast; perhaps, a suggested, she should write a letter pointing out the hardship involved.

Mrs. Chapin thought of her husband, her three children and most particularly of her mother-in-law, now 92 years old. The scrambled eggs and turnips grew less attractive; she produced the aforementioned Irish temperament.

"Oh, yes, I got the ration books," she told a Post reporter yesterday. "I signed 14 applications, each one requiring my signature twice, and spent just about a day and a half figuring out what points already had been used. By-the-way, the ration board is to be commended for its leniency in permitting you to keep all the points you state that you are entitled to; they were very nice about that. But there should be some efficient and rapid method by which emergency cases can be deal with — that is my only objection. Suppose I didn't have an Irish temperament? My family would have to wait 10 days before it got a square meal."

Divorce Suit

Court Told Dempsey Had 2 'Seconds'

By the Associated Press

White Plains, N. Y., May 25.—A former domestic in the Jack Dempsey home testified today that two men, previously named in testimony as frequent visitors to Mrs. Dempsey, would leave by the back door of the apartment as the former heavyweight champion entered by the front.

Mrs. Mary Coelho, who said she was employed by the Dempseys from May, 1940 to February, 1941, identified the two as Lew Jenkins, former lightweight champion, and his one-time trainer, Benny Woodall. Both were named by Dempsey as corespondents in his divorce suit against the one-time "cheerful little earful" of musical comedy, Hannah Williams.

She testified that she once had come out of her room in the Dempseys' New York apartment and seen Woodall embracing Mrs. Dempsey.

She said Mrs. Dempsey was wearing a negligee, and Woodall wore street clothes, but she did not notice other details because "I was embarrassed and went to my room and closed the door."

An earlier witness, Mrs. Catherine Murphy, who said she was a maid in the Dempsey home, had testified that Woodall was known to her as "the automobile man," because when he telephoned the home he called himself "Mr. Lincoln, Mr. Packard and Mr. Dodge."

Until shortly after Thanksgiving, 1940, Mrs. Coelho testified both Woodall and Jenkins were frequently visitors to that apartment. But then, she said, Mrs. Dampsey told her that Jenkins had hurt her and she would not see him any more.

The witness said Mrs. Dempsey told her she had learned Jenkins' wife was in town, and that she told him she did not want him to see her. He said Mrs. Dempsey quoted Jenkins as replying: "Who do you think you are? She's my wife."

Central Call Station Approved To Speed Ambulance Service

Prompt dispatching of ambulances to scenes of accidents may be facilitated by the establishment of a central control—probably in the fire alarm headquarters, Commissioner Guy Mason's committee for study of central ambulance control said yesterday in a formal recommendation to that effect.

The committee, appointed after complaints of the increasingly long periods injured persons have had to lie in streets before aid arrived, reached "entire agreement" on the control plan at a meeting held with Mason at the District Building yesterday.

The tentative setup would have a map posted at the Fire Alarm center, where an operator would receive ambulance calls, spot them on the map and keep track of all services dispatched. Police scout car ambulances and the 27 emergency ambulances available would be numbered to facilitate their being sent to scenes of accident. A special emergency ambulance number will be selected and advertised so the public will know where readily to obtain an ambulance.

On any occasion an ambulance might be needed, either a hospital, the fire department or police department may be called, but all calls will be routed through the central dispatching station, which will have information of the nearest available ambulance.

Dr. John A. Reed, chairman of the ambulance study committee, said there is no shortage of ambulance equipment here but much delay is encountered in clearing calls for ambulances through diverse channels involved in the present system.

Motorists Take to Walking As Gas Shortage Continues

Accent on underpinnings is the 1943 motif for Washingtonians and most of the Nation—but yesterday and the day before marked the first time that many veterans of the Battle of the Potomac noticed it.

Faced with gasoline tanks indicating "empty," thousands of erstwhile motorists found themselves thrust on their own devices and those of Capital Transit for the first time during World War II. And they soon discovered that life can go on without a car, perhaps with far less strain on those war nerves.

Bureauerats, red tape specialists and underpaid clerks alike made a swift but sure change from wheels to shoe leather—and they did it with surprising grace, according to those who meet the public on transportation terms. Transit officials, automobile club heads, bus and streetcar operators united in saying that John Q. Citizen's manners were at their best despite yesterday's "adjustments," and that only one person in 100 was inclined to complain.

Hoofing it about town in rationed shoes, Washington folk were at the most leisurely pace they have employed, en masse, since Pearl Harbor (and who can remember what went on before then, pray tell?). For the most part they had expected public transportation difficulties to be far worse than they actually were, so they had a little spare time which had been alloted as margin for error.

And so they strolled and chatted and fed pigeons and watched squirrels and window-shopped. The tempo was reminiscent of Washington a la 1940.

But the law of averages decreed that all could not be harmony within the city limits. And those who disrupted the picture were those who clamored for the dribbles of gasoline that were available at a dozen local service stations. Clamored so earnestly, in fact, that police were called to break up the mechanized mob scenes surrounding several stations. Horns honked, tempers flared and it looked just like Washington, after all.

How RCA Electronic Television brought SIGHT to Radio

Historic steps in the evolution of this new science created by RCA Laboratories

Here, an NBC technician is installing an Iconoscope—the RCA invention that made possible electronic television.

BACK IN 1929 a modest man with a quiet voice calmly announced two inventions . . . two amazing, almost magic devices that made it possible for radio to "see" as well as to "hear."

This man was Dr. V. K. Zworykin of RCA Laboratories. And his research in electronics gave radio its electronic "eyes" known as the Iconoscope and the Kinescope. The former is the radio "eye" behind the camera lens; the latter is the receiver's screen.

Since that red-letter day in television history, ceaseless research in the science of radio and electron optics has established RCA Laboratories as the guiding light of television.

The decade of the thirties saw television's coming-of-age. It brought new scientific discoveries; it developed new techniques of showmanship; it even created new words—televise, telecast, teleview, and telegenic.

In the evolution of television there have been "high spots"; historic milestones of progress; definite "firsts"—made possible by the services of RCA.

1928-1932—From the First Experimental Station to All-Electronic Television

Station W2XBS, New York, was licensed to RCA in 1928 to conduct television experiments. Transmitter located at laboratory in Van Cortlandt Park, was later moved to Photophone Building, 411 Fifth Avenue; then to New Amsterdam Theatre until 1931, when operations were transferred to Empire State Building.

On Jan. 16, 1930, television pictures were transmitted by RCA from W2XBS at 411 Fifth Avenue and shown on 6-foot screen at RKO-Proctor's 59th Street Theatre.

Television station W2XBS, operated by National Broadcasting Company, atop New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, opened for tests July 7, 1930, with the images whirled into space by a mechanical scanner.

Empire State Building, the world's loftiest skyscraper, was selected by RCA as the transmitter and aerial site for ultra-short-wave television experiments using both mechanical and electrical scanners. Operation began October 30, 1931.

Field tests of 240-line, all-electronic television were made by RCA at Camden, N. J., with television signals relayed by radio from New York through Mt. Arney, N. J., for the first time, May 25, 1932.

1936—Outdoor Television

Television outdoors was demonstrated by RCA at Camden, N. J., on April 24, 1936, with local firemen participating in the program broadcast on 6 meters.

All-electronic television field tests of RCA began June 29, 1936, from ultra-short-wave transmitter in Empire State Building and aerial on the pinnacle releasing 343-line pictures.

Radio manufacturers saw television demonstrated by RCA on July 7, 1936, with radio artists and films used to entertain.

1937—Electron "Gun" and Mobile Television Demonstrated

Electron projection "gun" of RCA was demonstrated on May 12, 1937, to Institute of Radio Engineers, with pictures projected on 8 x 10-foot screen.

Television on 3 x 4-foot screen was demonstrated by RCA to Society of Motion Picture Engineers on October 14, 1937; pictures were transmitted from Empire State Building to Radio City.

Mobile television vans operated by RCA-NBC appeared on the streets of New York for first time, December 12, 1937.

1938—Broadway Play Televised

Scenes from a current Broadway play "Susan and God," starring Gertrude Lawrence, were telecast on June 7, 1938, from NBC studios at Radio City.

RCA announced on October 20, 1938, that public television service would be inaugurated and commercial sets offered to the public in April, 1939.

1939—Baseball—King George VI—Football

Opening ceremonies of N. Y. World's Fair televised by NBC on April 30, 1939, included President Roosevelt as first President to be seen by television.

"A first from the diamond." Columbia vs. Princeton, May 17, 1939, televised by NBC.

Improved television "eye" named the "Orthicon," introduced by RCA on June 8, 1939, added greater clarity and depth to the picture.

Television spectators in New York area on June 10, 1939, saw King George VI and Queen Elizabeth at the World's Fair, telecast by NBC.

First college football game—Fordham-Waynesburg—televised by NBC, September 30, 1939.

Television from NBC station in New York was picked up in plane 20,000 feet over Washington, D. C., 200 miles away, October 17, 1939.

Television cameras of NBC scanned the scene in front of Capitol Theatre at premiere of motion picture "Gone With The Wind," December 19, 1939.

1940—Sports—Color—Bird's-Eye Television

Color television was demonstrated on February 6, 1940, to Federal Communications Commission by RCA at Camden, N. J.

First hockey game was televised by NBC camera in Madison Square Garden, February 25, 1940.

Basketball: Pittsburgh-Fordham, also NYU-Georgetown at Madison Square Garden were televised by NBC, February 28, 1940; first basketball seen on the air.

Using RCA's new, compact, portable television transmitter, a panoramic view of New York was televised for the first time from an airplane on March 6, 1940. Television sightseers as far away as Schenectady saw the bird's-eye view of the metropolis.

Premiere of television opera on March 10, 1940, featured Metropolitan Opera stars in tabloid version of "Pagliacci."

First telecast of religious services on March 24, 1940, from NBC Radio City studios, were seen as far away as Lake Placid.

Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus viewed on the air, April 25, 1940, through NBC electric camera in Madison Square Garden.

Television pictures on 4½ x 6-foot screen were demonstrated at RCA annual stockholders meeting May 7, 1940, at Radio City.

Republican National Convention was televised on June 24, 1940, through NBC's New York station via coaxial cable from Philadelphia.

President Roosevelt was seen by television throughout the Metropolitan area as he addressed Democratic rally, October 28, 1940, at Madison Square Garden, New York City.

Election returns on November 5, 1940, televised for first time by NBC, showed teletypes of press associations reporting the news.

1941—Home Receivers—Prize Fight—Commercial Television

Television progress demonstrated to FCC on January 24, 1941, included: home-television receiver with 13½ x 18-inch translucent screen; television pictures 15 x 20 feet on New Yorker Theatre screen; pictures relayed by radio from Camp Upton, Long Island, to New York; also facsimile multiplexed with frequency modulation sound broadcast.

Television pictures in color were first put on the air by NBC from Empire State Building transmitter on February 20, 1941.

Large-screen television featuring Overlin-Soose prize fight on May 9, 1941, at Madison Square Garden was demonstrated by RCA at New Yorker Theatre; also, on following days, baseball games from Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

Commercial operation of television began July 1, 1941, on a minimum schedule of 15 hours a week. NBC's station WNBT, New York, first commercially licensed transmitter, issued the first television rate card for advertisers, and instituted commercial service with four sponsors.

1942-1943—America at War!

Entry of the United States in World War II enlisted NBC television in New York to aid in illustrating air-raid instructions in the New York area.

The Orthicon Camera, an RCA development, was given a more sensitive "eye" that sees under normal lighting conditions without necessity of brilliant lamps as in pre-war television. Experimental "screens" were enlarged and the texture of the pictures made finer.

Today RCA Laboratories, pioneer in the science of electronics, is devoting all its efforts to the war.

Yet, from the discoveries and inventions made under war urgency, will come greater wonders for the Better Tomorrow of a peacetime world.

To Our Own

We hope it will not seem out of order on our part to pin medals on two members of the staff of The Washington Post. Jerry Kluttz, responding to the suggestion of one of his readers, ran the campaign among Government workers which raised $158,000 for the purchase of two fully equipped fighter planes. Doubtless the planes, which were both called "Government Girl," are now on service. No sooner had this work been done than Shirley Povich, Post sports columnist, suggested a baseball game between the colorful Norfolk Navy Training team and Clark Griffith's Nats, the price of admission to be a war bond. Both the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of the Navy approved the proposal. And, with Mr. Griffith applauding it, the game took place on Monday night. The 29,000 fans, servicemen, and notables present are still talking about the realization of Shirley Povich's idea. Thanks to Al Schacht, the baseball comedian; Kate Smith, Washington's own; Bing Crosby, the perfect entertainer; Babe Ruth, the Navy Band, Arch McDonald, and every member of both baseball clubs, it was an unforgettable evening. And it netted more than two million dollars in war bonds sold. Well done, Shirley Povich and Jerry Kluttz!

Fight For The Islands

If it isn't Sicily it's Corsica or Pantelleria and more often than not it is all three. The Allied Air Force in North Africa has taken no holiday since the fall of Tunisia. It is continuing its attack on the "soft underbelly" of the Axis with unrelenting force and increasing success. Last Monday Sardinia was the principal target, with 300 American planes ranging from Flying Fortresses to Warhawk fighters participating in raids which did considerable damage to Axis airfields, shipping, hangars, fuel dumps and dispersed enemy aircraft. So destructive have such attacks been that Rome has been forced to admit that "city districts proper" at Cagliari, the capital of Sardinia, have been evacuated by civilians.

Up to now the Axis has made an effort to fight back. Hitler has apparently decided that he cannot afford to allow the important stepping-stones in the Mediterranean go by default, no matter how great is his need of planes elsewhere. But the battle is proving a losing one for the Luftwaffe. The Allies are as fully in command of the air over Sicily, Sardinia and Pantelleria as they were of the air over Tunisia in the final stages of the Battle of Africa. This fact permits of only one conclusion: the struggle for the control of the islands in the central Mediterranean is approaching its climactic phase. And it may very well be accompanied by a concerted Allied effort to knock out the Italian fleet which has sought to save itself hitherto by refusing to fight. But its period of immunity may soon be over, and the ships which Mussolini has so carefully hoarded to provide a shield against invasion may soon be wrested from him.

Army College Program

The Army's specialized training program, designed to utilize the Nation's universities and colleges for instruction in engineering and, to a limited extent, other fields, is reported to have bogged down miserably. In an article appearing last Saturday in the New York Times, Benjamin Fine stated that 240 out of 400 institutions eligible for Army training contracts indicated that they could handle 41,000 more trainees than had been assigned to them. Dean Holbrook of the School of Engineering and Mines, Pittsburgh University, estimates that the engineering schools of the country are operating at only 50 per cent of their normal load. He predicts that the operating figures will drop to 35 per cent by July 1, when reservists in the classrooms are called into service. This is an appalling waste of essential educational facilities.

Mr. Fine's survey leads to the conclusion that the requirement of 13 weeks of basic training for all student trainees and general dissatisfaction with the curriculum on the part of educators are primarily responsible for the disappointing results to date. The critical attitude of educators toward a program largely written by the Army reflects an inevitable antagonism. The Army wants trained engineers in the shortest possible time. On the other hand, educators, if they are worth their salt, are naturally disposed to balk at high-pressure instruction methods. With the best will in the world, it is a tremendously difficult task to combine speed with an adequate degree of thoroughness. Evidently it has not been done under the present program.

The Army's insistance upon a basic 13 weeks' training period has also worked against effective cooperation of the colleges and universities with the program. Instead of being a preliminary tryout, testing a man's capacity to take specialized training, the work in camp has given many men a distaste for classroom activities. Officers, too, dislike to lose promising trainees to the professional schools. This lack of cooperation suggests skepticism as to the value of the training provided by educational institutions. And that skepticism in turn strongly indicates that the training program itself needs a thorough revamping in respect to both the curriculum and the methods employed in selecting students to take prescribed courses of study.

Time By The Forelock

The first anniversary of the Russo-British alliance is a reminder that this country is still lagging behind its war associates in organizing for peace. To be sure, the pact aimed at binding the signatories together to make war more vigorously. But what London and Moscow had chiefly in mind was the need to assume the responsibilities necessary to win the peace. Accordingly the two countries, knowing that peace is more difficult to secure than war is to win, agreed to remain allies for 20 years. They promised to take all the measures in their power to prevent further aggression in Europe by Germany or her allies. And they pledged themselves to collaborate in "the organization of security and economic prosperity in Europe."

That two of the greatest of our Allies should have agreed to perpetuate their association after the conquest of the common enemy is the basic political fact facing our postwar planners. It is a wholly beneficent fact. In wars of coalition the greatest danger is that the victors might be torn apart over the peace settlement. In such a situation the war might easily be lost, especially if, as was the case at the Congress of Vienna, a Talleyrand happens to be the diplomatist for the enemy powers. This is what Moscow and London were determined to avoid. But equally pronounced was their desire to make the new treaty a first step to world security insured in common. The two signatories were explicit on this point. They reaffirmed their desire to unite with the governments of other countries to preserve peace and resist aggression in the period after the war. Our Government, indeed, was kept apprised of the negotiation, and gave the pact its blessing when the signatures were announced.

To this political architecture of the peace, two countries have thus set their seal. Of the remaining Allies, the stand of the United States is of main concern. The American enigma, as Demaree Bess calls it, hangs over the world like a huge question mark. It is an enigma because there is never any guaranty that the Senate will ratify the engagements of the President in foreign affairs. At one time it looked as if the Ball resolution would erase the enigma. But where is the Ball resolution? Evidently it is still in the pigeonhole of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—along with other resolutions which would align the Senate with the President in organizing peace. That seems to be the conclusion of the authors of the Ball resolution. At any rate, Senator Hatch on Sunday warned of the danger of doing nothing. He called do-nothingness "the most dangerous course of all," and pleaded anew that the vast resources we have mobilized against the enemy be kept in use against future aggression.

Yet the Senate is not only doing nothing; it is discussing a project which would be positively damaging to the perpetuation of Allied accord. This is the Danaher amendment to the trade agreements law. Under that amendment Congress would serve notice to the world that six months after the end of hostilities Congress might terminate any and all agreements concluded under the act. The amendment is wholly gratuitous. For Congress already has that power under the Constitution. That it is proposed to tie this reminder of the congressional axe to the renewal of the trade act can mean only one thing. And that is that its advocates do not have their hearts in the trade agreements program and wish to take the first opportunity of any postwar reaction or tiredness to kill it. They dare not challenge the swelling chorus of Americans from every walk of life who have demanded the renewal of the Hull program. But they cannot resist advertising their rod in pickle. Is this the way to build a new world out of the ashes of the old?

Those who are behind the Danaher amendment are looking backward to the prewar era. And they are looking a long way back. Even as far back as 1932, or two years after the fateful Hawley-Smoot tariff law, the Republicans had taken the measure of that folly. In the platform of 1932 they came out flatly against any return to Congress of the power to put into effect the tariff-changing powers of the Tariff Commission. This is what they said:

> . . . We commend the President's veto of the measure, sponsored by Democratic Congressmen, which would have transferred from the President to the Congress the authority to put into effect the findings of the Tariff Commission. Approval of the measure would have returned tariff making to politics and destroyed the progress made during 10 years of effort to lift it out of log-rolling methods. We pledge the Republican Party to a policy which will retain the gains made and enlarge the present scope of greater progress . . .

The Hull system did "retain the gains made and enlarge the present scope of greater progress." That is the verdict of industrialists and labor leaders both—men who have been persuaded of the wisdom of the law by Mr. Hull's administration of it. Yet the Republicans are leading the fight to attach a club to it. This is not the way to lead the present into the future. It is the way of the destroyer. If such an attitude prevails, the postwar era would become another prewar era, as Frank H. Simonds called the last postwar era. Congress should join the President in the task of doing our part to build the foundation of the new world. Artificers as well as soldiers are required in order that we may win the peace. To stand still nowadays is to go backward. This is what London and Moscow felt when they took time by the forelock a year ago and signed their alliance.

Red Hot Springs

It is a great pity that something as important as the United Nations food conference has to be converted into something like a tragic farce. First, there was the business of detailing 200 armed soldiers to protect the delegates from molestation by a band of newspaper correspondents, largely middle-aged, baldish and bespectacled like the delegates themselves. There was the official attitude that this matter affecting virtually everybody in the world was a matter of strictly official concern, and that any public curiosity about it would be in exceptionally bad taste. It is not at all surprising, then, that some members of Congress should have been quick to capitalize the opportunity for personal publicity created by such a situation. And now we have Representative Bradley's threat to "blow the roof off the Capitol" with his demand for a congressional investigation of the conference.

In refusing Mr. Bradley, and his colleague, Representative Smith of Ohio, admission to the executive sessions of the conference, Chairman Jones has exhibited a common sense which has otherwise been wholly absent in all the arrangements at Hot Springs. If there is truth to the story that Mr. Smith talked for some time to the Chinese delegate under an impression that he might be talking to a Japanese, there is no reason for either Congress or the public to take anything else he has to say very seriously. It is worth pointing out that the newspaper correspondents neither asked nor expected to be admitted to the executive sessions. What they wanted was the right to gather what news they could by the methods and devices in which they had been trained. What they objected to was their complete segregation from the delegates and the absurd and unnecessary use of the military to enforce this quarantine. The other day Chairman Jones relaxed the rules enough to allow the newspapermen to enter the lobbies of the Homestead Hotel, where the conference is being held, between the hours of 6 and 9 p. m., and to speak with such of the delegates as may seem willing to be spoken to. However, to judge by the British declaration of last Sunday and the Soviet Russian declaration of Monday, both given to the press in full, the delegates are not especially reticent.

There is some apprehension now that if irresponsible meddling with the conference by members of Congress continues, the delegates may become disgusted with the whole business and depart. Mr. McCormack, the majority leader, suggested as much to Mr. Bradley yesterday. This, of course, is not likely to discourage Mr. Bradley, but it would certainly encourage the enemy. Yet, if it should happen, Mr. Bradley will not be primarily to blame. The blame will belong to those who gave Mr. Bradley his opportunity.

AND MUST RETURN

"Dust unto dust," they say when we are dead:
Consider this body, this body of life or death,
The strangeness of its early fashioning.
Its myriad cells swim in a salty river,
Salt as the sea was when they left the sea;
When that which dwelt therein was moved to tears
They drew a briny furrow down his cheek.

Consider, I pray, the spirit there encased:
How he is moved to madness by the moon.
He is a different being at the full,
But feels his dull way when that orb is dark.
He knows an exaltation at high tide,
At spring tide when the great smooth waters move
Riding the marshes with a silver coat.
And when the flood has ebbed to seek the moon,
Then turns again with whispers from the deep,
And all the shining fishes leap for joy;
He too, like them, savors the salty spray,
And his heart leaps as if in sight of home.

Speak not of dust: Man never sprang from dust,
But from the sea he rose—and must return.

Comitern Disbands

By Mark Sullivan

"Religious Freedom"

THE ACTION by Moscow last week about communism is like its action about religion a year and a half ago. As to both, if the actions reflect genuine conversion, a real change of heart—that would be good news for the world. But if the actions are mere gestures, inspired by expediency and designed for effect on the world — that would be something different.

The action about religion took place in September, 1941. It emerged as an announcement that the Russian government would grant "freedom of worship" to Poles under Russian rule, would set up a Catholic church and a Jewish synagogue in Moscow for them. The announcement was sent to Secretary of State Hull, with request that it be laid before President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt, at a press conference, dwelt upon Moscow's action. He said that the status of religion in Russia is the same as in the United States. Illustrating, he said that here in Washington anybody is free to set up a soap box on Pennsylvania Avenue and preach religion—and equally free to set up a soap box and preach against religion. This, Mr. Roosevelt said, is the way it is in Russia. For confirmation he asked the newsmen to read Article 124 of the Russian constitution. This the newsmen did, and the next day printed what Mr. Roosevelt had said, together with the text of Article 124. It read:

"Freedom of religious worship, and freedom of anti-religious propaganda, is recognized for all citizens."

THE WHOLE incident, including the American President's patness with an article of the Russian constitution, had a faint suggestion of planned intention to make America feel kindly toward Russia. There was occasion for it. There was pending before the American Congress a bill to extend lend-lease aid to Russia the same as to Britain. (This was before we were in the war.) To get that aid, Stalin would no doubt have been willing to join every sect in America, from Adventist to Universalist.

If Stalin's action was meant as propaganda, it backfired, seriously. Americans familiar with Moscow's real attitude about religion pointed out, first, that the so-called Communist constitution was window-dressing—it had been got up to impress opinion outside Russia, and Communist practice had never conformed to the pseudo-constitution. Second, it was pointed out that Article 124 was cunningly worded. Religious "worship" was permissible—but not religious teaching. On the other hand, anti-religious teaching was permitted—and in fact was actively carried on by agencies under government domination. An American Catholic priest, the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., stationed in Russia in 1922 and ever since a student of Russian affairs, recited in detail the harsh persecution of all religions by the "frankly atheistic government" of Russia. Methodist Bishop Raymond J. Wade of Detroit, in words perhaps too angry, blazed out at Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that the status of religion in Russia was the same as in America. That assertion, Bishop Wade said, was "utterly misleading . . . obviously untrue."

MR. ROOSEVELT was disturbed. He said he had been misinterpreted, and gave out the exact words he had used at his press conference. In answer to newsmen's questions at a subsequent conference, he said he had really been trying to persuade Stalin to change his attitude on religion. Asked who had been his representative in the evangelizing of Stalin, he named Mr. W. Averell Harriman, then in contact with Moscow on lease-lend matters. As a religious missionary, Mr. Harriman had a strong worldly equipment — he was in charge of the lease-lend material Stalin wanted. Since October 1941, there has been no public report of further progress in the conversion of Stalin. Possibly Mr. Joseph E. Davies, now on a mission to Moscow, may keep up the good work—he is a powerful exhorter.

It is not necessary to be too completely skeptic about Moscow's attitudes, either as to religion, or as to last week's step backward from international communism. It is possible the Russian leaders may have learned two things—the validity of religion and the invalidity of communism. They may have found that religion conforms to the nature of man, and that communism runs counter to it. Learning that, they may really be moving toward the one, away from the other. It is a fact that, over a period of years, the Russian leaders have dropped one after another of the original tenets of pure communism. It is quite possible that Moscow's action last week is a genuinely meant step in permanent policy.

Home Front, 1943

By Paul Schubert

Mid-War Mood

WE DON'T know just how much Prime Minister Churchill saw of America during the visit which began about a fortnight ago—but the United States seen by a visitor this year is a country which differs strikingly from the United States of early 1942.

We are so close to the changing scene, ourselves, that we're hardly conscious of the changes.

But think back . . do you remember early 1942? The home front was still under the influence of Pearl Harbor, then—spellbound by the progress of the Japanese through the Far East. War was a state of affairs in which other people did things to us. The word "defense" still bulked large.

We felt weak, a year ago—and we were weak—and we were worried about it.

In Connecticut towns within suburban range of New York, stout and puffing middle-aged commuters drilled as home guardsmen, spending week-end time in earnest pursuit of the mysteries of jujitsu and adopting fierce, rather juvenile names for their corps—Volunteer Commandos, Rangers, Dragoons and what not.

VOLUNTEER aircraft spotting was taken very seriously—thousands of people gave hundreds of thousands of hours of time, and in return had the comforting knowledge that they were "doing something" for the "war effort."

Rationing lay ahead . . . all real sacrifice lay ahead—loomed before us, causing a constant sense of vague uneasiness. Could America "take it?"

Those in close contact with the public had already discovered that America could take it. Whenever anything real came along to be faced fair and square, the response of the man in the street was magnificent—it brought a lump to the throat. It was inspiring.

The men in uniform, in 1942, were for the most part raw and half trained. They hadn't acquired the poise of the soldier, the insouciant confidence of the sailor. Their uniforms were new . . . such mud as they had met was mud of the drill ground, and they had always been at the safe end of the pinging bullet's flight.

The draft? It was still dipping into vast resources, scooping up manpower. Astonishing, now, to discover that the Army was growing at the rate of one division of troops per day.

Did we really grow in strength at that rate during confused, semihysterical 1942?

Yes, we did. We weren't feeding a division of trained troops out of the training hopper per day . . . but we were absorbing men into the huge machinery of training.

And those factories of ours—all the plants which had been making typewriters and refrigerators, motor cars and silk frillies . . . they worked day by day on the change-over to war production, and little by little we became a country at war.

They tell us, now, that we are getting up toward the war production peak—the goal we set out to reach so many months ago.

We're not conscious of any change.

Or are we, after all?

Though we've grown stronger—much stronger—and though we realize that we are stronger, we are talking smaller.

BACK IN 1942 we had a way of making the most of what we did, in all undelicate boastfulness.

At the time of the Dieppe raid, we headlined it Americans Land in France—and as far as we were concerned, the landing might have been bound straight for Berlin. Later on we discovered that the Dieppe landing had been a Canadian-British show with a few American Rangers present . . . but that didn't make much difference.

When it came to North Africa, that was another American job. And MacArthur's allied Australians and Americans in New Guinea—they were Americans too.

No matter. We had to get it out of our systems.

We were so darned anxious to be part of the war, back in 1942—to be doing something. We didn't want to admit that 1942 must be a whole year of slow and painful preparation for the country as a whole—a year of weakness, if you will.

How about 1943?

We're not weak, this year. You can't call us that.

But we're not strong yet, either. We still need training in the hard art of war—so much training. Russia is engaging 218 divisions of Axis troops, plus a large Axis air force. One day we'll be able to do as much, but we couldn't do it today.

We're humbler, this year. We begin to understand what a big job it is to be a world power in fact as well as in theory.

But in our humility, we must remember that day by day we do grow stronger. One of these days our strength is going to be bigger and more effective than any of us now realizes.

American Flags

Because of the high regard which I know the people hold for The Post, and with Flag Day just about four weeks away, don't you think you could put on some kind of campaign which would serve to awaken the people from the carelessness they seem to be exercising in the handling of the flag of the United States?

I've seen tattered, battered, dirty flags around just every and any old place; I've seen small flags waving from radiator caps of automobiles (mostly taxis, but some private cars), almost completely shredded; I've seen a flag tacked up over the entrance of a liquor store—and a soiled flag, at that; I've seen flags in very bad shape flying from public and Government buildings; and I've seen youngsters playing with flags just as with any old toys.

It seems to me that parents and others should be aroused to a greater respect for our flag. Perhaps even the schools should be reminded that the young folks are growing lax in this respect. The parents should be made to realize that they should not buy these little flags for the children to use as toys. I firmly believe that every child who wants one should have a flag; but I also believe that he should be encouraged to respect it and to handle it with great care.

Mrs. Bixby's Letter

Your correspondent, Earnest Charles Rick, made a statement in your paper of January 18, 1943, that he "saw the original of Lincoln's letter to Mrs. Bixby hanging at Brasenose College, Oxford University, England," which he "copied in 1938 at Oxford."

Believing that Mr. Rick was making an entirely true statement, I wrote to Brasenose College and had the following from the principal of Brasenose College, Oxford, England: "I am obliged to you for your letter of 26th January about the letter of President Lincoln to Mrs. Bixby.

"I am sure you will be glad to know that it is a pure myth that the letter ever hung on the walls of Brasenose College."

I will be much obliged to Mr. Rick if he will explain how he came to make this error.

"OWI Propaganda"

In your editorial "OWI Propaganda" you attack the OWI pamphlet entitled "How to Raise 16 Billion Dollars." You declare that the subject of raising 16 billion dollars "does not lend itself to the unbiased objective treatment that we have a right to demand and should insist upon having. None of us wants to know what the OWI . . . (thinks) about important war information . . . We want straight news uncolored by the . . . bias of the narrator."

Assuming that what you say is true, it would seem to follow that the same comments can be made regarding the thousands of words which have appeared in The Washington Post during the past few months concerning the "subject of raising 16 billion dollars." Since that subject "does not lend itself to the unbiased objective treatment that we have a right to demand and should insist upon having." The Washington Post is, to use your own words, "certain to acquire (if it has not already) a reputation for propagandizing by stepping outside the field of news reporting to instruct us in the intricacies of subjects that do not lend themselves to objective treatment."

But assuming that in your capacity as a privately owned newspaper you have a right to "instruct us in the intricacies of subjects that do not lend themselves to objective treatment," may I ask from what source are we to obtain the "unbiased objective treatment that we have a right to demand and should insist upon having." You admit that the "OWI Propaganda" at least "set down meticulously the chief arguments for and against . . . various tax proposals, and it is quite possible that the compiler did his best to be fair to both sides." Can you honestly make the same claim for The Washington Post "propoganda"? A. M.

Hangers for Bragg

I have just received a letter from my husband who is stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., Field Artillery, in which he requests me to "Please send" some steel coat hangers. There is quite a shortage of them, at least in his particular group.

Thinking perhaps there are other women in Washington whose husbands may be stationed at Bragg, this letter is written to call their attention to the shortage with the idea that perhaps they, too, will wish to send some hangers.

Dogs for Defense Tell All

("Thousands of dogs of all breeds have been examined and inducted in the Dogs for Defense Service. Many were rejected."—News item.)

"Rags" (Dunstan's Duke—Cleopatra's Girl II); airedale, aged 4 years: "It's a racket. They turned me down as not the type. What do they want, bloodhounds only? And the draft board doctor said I was too friendly. That's the bunk; I was just being diplomatic. I didn't know I was expected to bite him."

"Jiggsie" (on his pedigree it says Hammonsassett Stroller by Elmira Duchess); fox terrier, aged 3: "I did everything they asked me. I sat, begged, rolled over, fetched slippers and played dead. And they rule me out as no good for combat. I made a mistake in doing what I was told. Can't a dog be a good fellow without being classified as a softie?

"Rickey" (Solomon's Ace III—Belle of Begonia); police dog, aged 4: "Yes, I got rejected, but it was all my own fault. A cat came by and I chased it. The draft board said I lacked poise, control and appreciation of proper objectives."

"Pete" (Afghanistan Regent—Cottage Pudding XI); skye terrier, aged 2 years 7 months: "I'm classified 4WM. That means four months with mange."

"Pooch" (just a mongrel): "It was a terrible mistake. I'm strictly a house dog and good only for home guard duty, but they classified me for war duty. It was due to the fact I always growl when I'm nervous."

"Bummie" (Carnavon's Earl of Sussex Boy—Lydia Pinkham's Belle of Carnarsie): "I was as good as accepted for combat duty when they threw me out. The doctor asked me where I would like to do duty in the war and I said in the kitchen."

"Pepsie Girl" (Harrigan's Brigadier III—Willoughby's Empress): "All I know is that I got put in Class 5TMF Decoded, that stands for five times too many fleas. They ruled that fleas were dependents."

"Prince" (Wizard of Westphalia—Harrowing Harriet's Daughter): "I'm glad they took me and I enter the war willingly. When they start sending questionnaires to dogs it's the payoff."

Occupation Of Italy

At the advent on Italian soil of the military forces of the United Nations the upsurge of the people will be so overwhelming as to give unmistakable voice to their own selection of those by whom they wish to be led. It is of the utmost urgency that no political authority should be designated or even suggested by the leaders of the United Nations.

The military forces of the United Nations must 'take over' in Italy: A military government must be established therein in conformity with the prescribed provisions for the administration of such a government. It must be the purpose of this military government to aid in the prosecution of the war to a successful termination by establishing law and order, restoring transportation, providing food and medical relief for the civil population, and then—when and as the developing political exigencies permit—it should in due course provide the necessary electoral machinery whereby the Italian people themselves may express their own free political choice.

The military forces of the United Nations, in taking military possession of Italy and administering law and order and the services of transportation, and the distribution of food and medical relief should differentiate only as between groups which do, and those which do not, contribute constructively to meeting the practical needs of relief and administration.

To recapitulate: The task of the forces of military occupation in Italy must be to set up a military government, and to establish this government as far as need be throughout the peninsula; and then in due course, it must rest with the Italian people themselves to decide through properly organized elections as to what civil government they are to have and by whom they are to be governed.

Military Concert

By Ernest K. Lindley

American-British Collaboration

CONTROVERSY is usually more exciting than agreement. It is natural to dwell on differences and the arguments which support them rather than upon the means of composing them. Yet one of the most important — and really sensational—developments of this war is the American-British machinery for determining and applying a single world-wide strategy.

LINDLEY

Nothing really comparable to this machinery existed in the first World War. Late in that war, after huge sufferings, the Western Allies finally got together on the designation of a generalissimo in charge of the Western Front. In this war there is no generalissimo: probably none could be found capable of directing a world-wide war to the satisfaction of the principal Allies. The present collaboration is on a still higher level. It requires a meeting of minds between the heads of governments, advised by all their Chiefs of Staff meeting together, as a single body.

The first get-together of the American and British Chiefs of Staff was at the first Roosevelt-Churchill meeting: the Atlantic Conference of August, 1941. When the second Roosevelt-Churchill meeting was held in Washington, after Pearl Harbor, the decision was made to set up a Combined Chiefs of Staff with headquarters in Washington. These consist of the American Chiefs of Staff and of high-ranking representatives of the British Chiefs of Staff. They are served by a body of staff experts, supplied half-and-half by each nation. The Combined Chiefs of Staff, with their related agencies dealing with shipping, munitions, raw materials, etc., are a going organization which has operated steadily for more than a year. But they are not a complete substitute for the periodic meetings of the top strategists in Britain with the American Chiefs of Staff.

ALTHOUGH this is only the fifth meeting between Roosevelt and Churchill it is the sixth full-dress meeting of the American and British Chiefs of Staff. One was held in Britain in July, 1942, to perfect the plans for the North African offensive, following the gathering with Roosevelt and Churchill in Washington in June.

The meeting at Casablanca was in some ways the most smoothly run because all the participants were freed of other duties. In Washington or in London, the hosts still feel obliged to carry on, at least some of their regular work. But participants say that each full-dress conference has produced a more nearly complete meeting of minds. The principals have come to know each other better. They need less time to grasp the views and problems of their opposite numbers. And when these views and problems are mutually understood, the remedies are easily agreed upon.

There is no effective substitute for the friendly face-to-face exploration of the common problems of winning the war. The coordination, or fusion, can and should be complete between Britain and the United States because they are the only two great powers fighting a world-wide war. They share the burden of controlling the seas. They alone have the major responsibility for defeating two powerful enemies. The other United Nations are either relatively weak or, in the case of Russia, engaged with only one enemy. The smaller fighting partners naturally must conform to British-American strategy.

Closer military collaboration with Russia would be most helpful. For its failure to develop, the Russians alone are responsible. Although they have loosened up a little, even yet they have not taken their western partners into their confidence. The American and British chiefs of staff probably know more about Germany than they know about Russia. Because Germany is an enemy, they can use every available device for obtaining intelligence. It would not be "cricket" to use such methods on the Russians, and they would only cause more irritation and mistrust. But the Russians won't tell all that the American and British high commands should know to make their plans.

IF THE United States and Britain bore the same relationship to each other that Russia bears to them both, the war probably would be lost now. Allies cannot fight successfully by remaining secretive while they levy demands on each other. The American and British high commands can work together because they have the same information—complete information about each other—as well as common purpose.

Their collaboration becomes sensational, not only in comparison with their working relations with the Russian high command, but also in comparison with the apparent lack of coordination of German and Japanese strategy. An agreed German-Japanese plan during 1942 might have either crippled Russia or effected a juncture in the Middle East.

Fortunately, not all the blunders in this war have been on one side. Since the United States and Britain have concerted their strategy it is doubtful if any serious mistakes can be marked up on our side. On the contrary, these meetings of the top professional experts of both countries, under the direction of two great civilian military leaders, have produced already what Mr. Churchill has described as "a classic example of the way to make war," and are likely to yield more of the kind.

Deductions Favored

Princeton, N. J., May 25.—Considerably more cash can be extracted from the American people, to pay for the war and to head off inflation, if a policy which has already gained fairly wide public acceptance is pushed by the government.

From coast to coast a majority of employed persons interviewed in an institute survey are willing to have their employers deduct 15 per cent from their wages or salaries for the purchase of war bonds.

Systematic deductions for bond buying are already in effect in many companies, but the amount usually averages only 10 per cent of each man's wage.

While a substantial number of workers feel they cannot afford to go higher than this in their bond buying, nevertheless a sizable sum of money could be raised by the government from those who do indicate a willingness to go up to 15 per cent.

The reactions of employed persons were sounded on the following issue:

"Would you be willing to have your employer take 15 cents out of every dollar of your wages or salary each pay day to buy defense bonds for you?"

The vote is:

Would be willing	52%
Would not be willing	43
Undecided	5

The Treasury is reported to have given serious consideration to plans for 15 per cent or even 20 per cent deductions for war bonds. Many experts argue that while attempts to curb inflation through price-wage control present many administrative difficulties, taking cash away from people as it is earned can be done with comparative ease when they are willing to put more money into bonds.

Treasury officials will be interested in the fact that even in the low income groups there are a substantial number of workers willing to contribute 15 per cent for bonds, as the following table shows:

	Willing	Unwilling	Undecided
Upper and Middle Income Groups	54%	41%	5%
Lower Income Group	49	45	6

The survey also reveals that if a worker has already become accustomed to having part of his wage deducted for bonds, he tends to accept the idea of larger deductions.

For example, among those who already have less than 15 per cent deduoted from their wages, a substantial number (55 per cent) say they are willing to contribute 15 per cent.

To them, apparently, the extra amount would not seem an undue burden.

On the other hand, only 47 per cent of those not now having any part of their wages deducted are in favor of going as high as 15 per cent.

Legion, A F L Oppose Proposed Repeal of Act Banning Chinese

By the Associated Press

Representative Ward Johnson (Republican) of California said yesterday the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor had informed him they would oppose pending legislation to repeal the Chinese Exclusion Acts.

The organizations believe, Johnson said in a statement, that the repeal movement is the beginning of a "piecemeal attempt" to enact legislation he said was advocated last year by the President to permit free movement of persons and property to the United States.

His statement recalled that opponents of those measures, which were tabled by the House Ways and Means Committee, expressed belief their passage would initiate a breakdown of immigration and tariff restrictions.

Fits Utopian Plans

Johnson said he also believed the repeal legislation to be "right in line with Utopian attempts by Harry Hopkins, Associate Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Mrs. Roosevelt and Vice President Wallace to assist the downtrodden races in foreign countries by permitting them to come to the United States."

This, the Californian contended, would jeopardize the interests of American boys at the front when they return after the war to seek jobs at home.

The Californian said he shared what he termed the conviction of the American Legion and the A. F. L. that passage of the repeal legislation would introduce "coolie" labor to this country which might threaten the trade union movement here and lower the standard of living, particularly in the West Coast and Rocky Mountain areas.

Minor On Its Face

"Although proponents of the measures say the quota which would be allotted China would be small, approximately 107," Johnson added, "actually it might mean many Chinese could apply for entry to the United States under quotas of other countries."

As an example Johnson cited the British prossession at Hong Kong which, he said, would afford a convenient method of expanding Chinese immigration to this country under British quotas should the measures become law.

Hearings on the legislation are to be resumed today by the House Immigration Committee.

U. S. Seeks Quick AP Decision

By the Associated Press

New York, May 25.—The Government took the unprecedented action today of asking a Federal Court to rule by summary judgment against the Associated Press in an antitrust civil suit without the taking of testimony by witnesses in open court trial.

Justice Department officials said the move never before was employed in Sherman Act cases.

The Government argued there was no general issue as to any material fact as a result of steps already taken in the suit and declared that as a result that the three-judge Federal Court already had all information needed to decide the legal points involved.

Basis of Plea

Therefore, it contended, the court not only should direct the nonprofit newsgathering organization to open its news and photo services to all papers able to pay their share of the cost but also bar the Associated Press from entering into agreement with any press association under which the Associated Press would agree "not to deliver its news reports to any other association, newspaper or individual in any particular territory, area or region."

The Government asked the court also to enjoin the A. P. from entering any agreements under which it would obtain the exclusive right to receive the news report of any association, newspaper or individual.

Other Changes Sought

The court was asked additionally to:

Nullify the A. P. by-law which prohibits a member newspaper from furnishing to any one not a member the news which it is required to supply to the A. P.

Enjoin the A. P. or its agents and employes from carrying out by-laws should they be adjudged to be illegal.

Nullify the acquisition by the A. P. of the stock of Wide World Photos, Inc., and require the A. P. to divest itself of all interest in Wide World Photos.

Cancel the existing agreement with the Canadian Press.

Counsel for the Associated Press had no comment except to indicate that the motion would be challenged and opposed.

Senate Group Would Retain 3 To Be Dropped by House Bill

The Senate Deficiences Subcommittee yesterday voted to strike from a House-approved money bill a provision barring from Federal payrolls Robert Morss Lovett, Government secrtary for the Virgin Islands, and Goodwin Watson and William E. Dodd, jr., employes of the Federal Communications Commission.

The House action was taken after a special Appropriations Subcommittee upheld the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities in its charges that the three men were "subversive."

It is the intention of the Senate subcommittee, if the action is sustained by a meeting of the full Appropriatoins Committee today and subsequently by the Senate, to gain for the three accused a review of charges against them. The review could be obtained when Senate-House conferees meet on a $134,141,278 deficiency appropriation bill which the House used as a vehicle for dischaging the trio from the Federal service.

In another blast at the House action, recommended by a subcommittee headed by Representative Kerr (Democrat) of North Carolina, Interior Secretary Ickes who is Lovett's superior, yesterday disclosed that the municipal council of St. Thomas and St. John sent to the subcommittee a "strongly worded resolution requesting dismissal of the charges against Lovett."

The secretary's statement quoted the resolution as declaring that Lovett, former University of Chicago professor, "evinced the principles of democracy and proved himself to be one of the most democratic Americans ever sent to the Virgin Islands."

Bombs on Burma Fire Jap Barracks

New Delhi, May 25 (AP).—United States planes flew straight into the teeth of the new monsoon yesterday to set Japanese barracks afire in northern Burma and attacked railways and other installations elsewhere there, a Tenth Air Force communique said today.

Most results were obscured by the foul weather, through which all American planes returned.

R. A. F. bombers made three attacks on Japanese troops at Udaung a few miles south of Maungdaw on the west coast of Burma yesterday, and bursts were observed well within the target area, a British communique said today. The attacks were made without the loss of a plane, the communique said.

Postwar Education

Scheme For World

The Educational Policies Commission proposed yesterday creation of a United Nations educational agency to develop antidotes for "the poison" Nazis and Fascists have "poured into the intellectual and spiritual life" of enemy and enemy-occupied countries.

The commission is the policy-forming body of the National Education Association and the American Association of School Administration.

It also proposed establishment of a postwar agency charged with the duty, among other things, of "studying textbooks, syllabuses, the teaching materials used or proposed for use in any and all countries in order to determine whether their effect would be aggressive, militaristic or otherwise dangerous to the peace."

Integral International Unit

The postwar office, the commission explained in a statement entitled "Education and the People's Peace," would be established "as an integral part of whatever international political structure is created after the war."

The wartime council, it said, would not only study the educational programs of enemy and enemy-occupied countries to find ways of "offsetting the poison," but would also "consider the extent to which educational institutions of the ravaged countries should be reestablished and the extent to which entirely new types of educational services are desirable in those countries."

Generally, the commission said, it would be left to each nation whether it would accept recommendations the postwar office made about its teaching materials. But the commission announcement added:

"However, in event that members of the international office should conclude that instruction dangerous to the peace of the world is occurring, it might file a notice to that effect with the government of the country concerned and, if no adjustments are made in a reasonable period of time, a full report on the matter might be sumbitted * * * to whatever overall agency may be established to deal with international affairs in general."

No Threat to Freedom

The commission insisted that its proposals "do not impair the complete educational autonomy of any nation" and that "the existence of an international agency will not destroy the freedom of state and national school systems to seek ne wand better methods of organization and procedure."

Neither the wartime council nor the postwar office, it said, "would have administrative or supervisory charge of the school systems either in the conquered nations or in the nations allied against the Axis at the close of the war."

The commission suggested that "initial efforts toward formulation" of the wartime United Nations Education Council "have a nonofficial status" and be sponsored by private agencies "representative of the teaching profession" so as to "avoid the necessity for Government commitments."

Letter to Soldier Indicates Essen Is Mass of Ruins

Moscow, May 25 (AP).—Tass reported today that a letter taken from a dead German soldier said that oft-bombed Essen "looks like Stalingrad."

"You write that it is not so bad in Essen," the news agency quoted a German girl as writing to her soldier sweetheart. "You don't know what you are talking about. We sit in the cellar and wait for death."

Super Explosive Boast of Germans Echoed by Rome

London, May 25 (AP).—The Rome radio said tonight that the German Air Force was using a new liquid air bomb "so powerful that it destroys everything within a radious of 800 to 850 yards and causes explosions felt by the bombers 14,000 feet up." The propaganda broadcast was a continuation of a recent favorite theme of the German radio.

Rome added that mines containing liquid air "deprived of nitrogen and mixed with incendiary substances" also were being used. In developing the mines, German chemists were said to have discovered a powerful new explosive called oilluil.

Consumer Supplies

By Edwin D. Gritz
Post Staff Writer

Agency Says Needs Will Be Met

Enough baby apparel, work clothes, farm supplies and other important consumer goods to meet all needs is promised by the new Office of Civilian Requirements, under a wide-ranging production program now being pressed to meet fast disappearing inventories, it was learned yesterday.

The program is being hustled through top WPB channels by Arthur D. Whiteside, WPB vice chairman for Civilian Requirements, with the expressed belief that no rationing of additional consumer goods should be necessary.

OPA Policy Opposed

Whiteside's efforts to also increase production of other necessary textile items, however, is said to be hampered by what was described as OPA's overly zealous policies of setting specific price regulations on specific standards of goods.

This, it was pointed out, is being strongly opposed by Whiteside, who is said to be convinced that manufacturers simply will not use any extra production facilities for unprofitable work. Manufacturers' alternative, according to Whiteside's conviction, is to turn out inferior products, if anything, which will last only a short time.

While reportedly at odds on many of OPA's rationing and price regulation policies, Whiteside is said to be less concerned with creating an interagency squabble as he he is to simply exist in view of present congressional attempts to establish a separate, independent civilian supply agency with rights equal to those of the military and war industry.

Consequently, his program of increased or renewed production of consumer goods is being planned with the goal of having actual, recognizable items on store shelves before long. Baby apparel and equipment, work clothes, and farm supplies top his production list in view of articulate and legitimate reports of growing shortages.

Pushing Plans Ahead

Whiteside, who came to his present post from the presidency of Dun & Bradstreet, is said to be meeting considerable success in his requests to WPB allocating authorities for materials with which to go ahead with his consumer production program.

Already about 80 consumer goods are either under increased or renewed production schedules, the bulk of them farm supplies like forks, barbed wire, chain repair links and poultry netting.

Other civilian goods which are said to be set apart for preferential treatment range from safety pins to enamel tea kettles.

To enable production, Whiteside has already won agreement from the Army, Navy, Lend-Lease, and other Government agencies to have part of their materials diverted for his use. At present, nearly 200 civilian consumer items of an "important" nature are being considered for early production in quantity, it was said.

Memorial Service In Congress Today To Honor 3 Dead

The House today will conduct memorial services for three of its members who have died in the last eight months. The services will start at 11:45 a. m.

Doris Doe, mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing three selections and the annual memorial addresses will be delivered by Representatives Woodrum (Democrat) of Virginia, and Dirksen (Republican) of Illinois. Representative Murdock (Democrat) of Arizona is chairman of the committee on memorials.

The services will honor the memories of Frank H. Buck of California, Philip A. Bennett of Missouri and Harry L. Englebright of California.

Exile Sees Bulgar Bolt to Allies if Bolt to Allies If

Montreal, May 25 (INS).—Bulgaria will bolt the Axis camp and join the Allies in the event of an Allied invasion of the Balkans, Kosta Todorov, Bulgarian leader of an anti-Axis organization, declared today.

Todorov, now an exile living in Montreal, said:

"My people are all anti-Axis and the army counts a great proportion of men and even officers who have secretly favored an Allied victory for a long time."

"King Borjs fooled the Bulgarian people in 1941" when he led them into war against the Allies, Todorov asserted.

5 D. C. Marines Among 952 Prisoners Held by Japanese

Originally reported missing in action in the Pacific, five Washington area men were among 952 U. S. Marine Corps personnel listed by the Navy yesterday as prisoners of the Japanese in the Philippines. Seven of the group were later said to have died while in prison camp.

The list brings to 3256 the total confirmed prisoners of war among personnel of the naval forces.

Local men interned were Capt. James R. Bromeyer, son of Mrs. K. M. Bromeyer of 2701 Connecticut Avenue Northwest; Corpl. Floyd J. Dudley, jr., son of Mrs. Flo A. Bowers of 1622 P Street Northwest; Maj. John Joseph Heil, husband of Mrs. Heil of 1719 Otis Street Northeast; Capt. Roy Robinton, husband of Mrs. Robinton of 1813 Burke Street Southeast, and Pvt. First Class William Lee Manney, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Manney of 90 Chinquapin Village, Alexandria, Va.

United States Navy Graduate

Born in St. Louis, Mo., in 1915, Bromeyer was graduated from the United States Naval Academy and commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps in 1937. He was assigned to duty at the Navy Yard here the following year and left for China in 1939. He was with Fourth Regiment of Marines in Shanghai before being transferred to the Philippines.

Dudley, who was born in 1918 in Kansas City, Mo., came to Washington in 1937. About two years later he enlisted in the Marine Corps and in 1940 was sent to Shanghai, China, later being transferred to the Manila Bay area.

Son of Lieut. Joseph Heil, who served with Dewey at Manila Bay, Heil was born in Washington 39 years ago. He attended Technical High School and Severn Preparatory School before entering the Naval Academy where he later taught ordnance and English. He also served as an instructor at the Marine Barracks in Quantico before joining the Fourth Marines at Shanghai.

Robinton, born in Mobile, Ala., in 1911, was graduated from the University of Alabama in 1932 and entered the Marine Corps as an enlisted man. In 1936 he was appointed from the ranks and commissioned a second lieutenant. He was later ordered to the Philippines, where he was attached to the First Separate Marine Battalion at Cavite. He distinguished himself during the Bataan and Corregidor campaigns and received the Order of the Purple Heart for wounds received at Bataan. He is also holder of a letter of recommendation for distinguished service during the hurricane of August, 1940, at Parris Island, S. C.

Maryland men reported interned were Sergt. Louis Edward Duncan of Baltimore and Lieut. Col. Samuel Wesley Freeny of Annapolis.

Virginia men: Sergt. Dousey Elmo Baker of Schoolfield, First Sergt. June Bella Begala of Quantico, First Lieut. John Sheppard Fantone of Norfolk, Supply Sergt. Charles William Keeton of Lawrenceville, Maj. Reginald Heber Ridgely of Fredericksburg, First Lieut. Carter Berkely Simpson of Charlottesville and First Sergt. Darrell Shawan Staley of Norfolk.

Ringside Table

RITA HAWORTH'S DANCING PARTNER is prancing and stamping at the Lotus this week. Gabriel Cansino, of Lotus' new revue, is a cousin of La Haworth, was her dancing partner in her pre-Hollywood days. Billed as the Cansinos, they appeared in niteries all over the East under the management of Tom Ball, who now arranges all Lotus revues. Unabelle Howard, captain of the Lotus chorus, remembers those days well—because Gabriel took time out to teach her his flamboyant cape dance.

Al Simmonds of the Brown Derby, elated over the huge success of his Fats Waller booking, is now reaching out for the Ink Spots and the Mills Brothers. But there's no rush—the customers being so happy over the "rocka'-me down rhythm" of the Jones Brothers.

ATTIC TREASURES. Ida Clark, Mayfair's blonde organist, recently undertook a spring attic rummage, was almost struck speechless (and that's something for Ida) with delight when she found a collection of ancient sheet music that must have belonged to her grandmother. Among it were many polkas published in the days when the polka was new. Ida was especially taken by a little number called "Bobolink," brought out in 1856. She is now playing it at Mayfair.

WARTIME ANGLES. It's a 100 per cent service record for the three Freres Young of Paul Young's. Paul, who's a poppa, is constantly active at the Stage Door Canteen. Little brother Dave (he's over 6 feet) is a yard bird at Camp Belvoir. Brother Ned is with the Army Air Corps making motion pictures . . . El Patio boasts that seven branches of the femme services were represented at its cocktail hour last Saturday—the WAAC, WAVES, SPARS, AWVS, Marine Corps, Ferry Command and Red Cross . . . We heard a bunch of sailors say, "Hats off to the Marines!" the other day. But the Marines were pretty Marinettes going into Hi Hat.

MARIAN CARL, sparkling soprano songstress of the Old New Orleans. She's also at the Louisiana on weekends

The Hastings Twins, Evva and Fran, a pair of cunning tricks, have arrived in Restaurant "400" to supplement its regular stars, Jean Lee and Johnny Graham.

ORNAMENTS. Zoee, the lady soothsayer of Cafe Caprice, is wearing earrings of iridescent sequins that exactly match the sequin bands on her peach colored evening gown. . . . Margaret Lopatin, owner of Burt's Trans-Lux, is understandably proud of the watch she wears as a pendant. It's 60 years old, belonged to her grandmother, still keeps perfect time.

LOVELY LISTENING. Frank Victor's guitar playing at the Neptune Room is such an undiluted pleasure—we wish he'd do an occasional solo instead of always playing with his group. . . . "Clair de Lune" is one of the most beautiful numbers ever written—see if you can make up your mind whether you like it better as a violin solo by Roy Comfort in the Lounge Riviera, or on the double pianos of the Heintze Brothers at Restaurant "823". . . . Connoisseurs of swing solos are going for Paul Kain's "Six Able Men of Rhythm" at Glen Echo. Each musician solos in turn with the bits of master jivery blending into each other without a break. . . . Devotees of Ralph Hawkins' swing at Crossroads should remember if they haven't gas, they can take a bus. And if they can't get to a bus they can still hear Hawkins over WMAL on Tuesdays and Thursdays. . . . go into paroysms of applause when go into paroyzsms of applause when pretty Betsy Jones sings "Yeah, Man!" with that touch of Texas.

Rudolf, greeter of the Dubonnet Room, has a scrapbook to end all scrapbooks. It's crammed with pictures of such top celebs as Glenn Miller and Xavier Cugat—all inscribed with friendly and highly personal greetings to Rudolf.

HAPPY MEATLESS DAYS are yours—if you order braised duckling or fried boned chicken at Ruby Foo's. The duckling's dressed up with French mushrooms and almonds, the chicken is accompanied by a heavenly curry sauce. . . . Or if you choose from the ever elite sea food items at Olmsted's where you may gormandize pleasurably on such unrationed delicacies as lobster Thermidore and crab flakes Newburgh, not to mention halibut and swordfish steaks with maitre d'hotel sauce. . . . Louis of the Copocabana says his big plates of hors d'ouevre are "appetizers." But they look more like a meal and there's not a rationed item on them.

THE STORK CLUB OF THE NORTHEAST—That's Kavakos Grill, a favorite spot for the Army, Navy and Marines, not to mention some thousands of civilians. The show is always good, the dance music bright and the service fast.

Matt Windsor, one of our town's best known entertainers, is planning to open a spot of his own—and soon.

Conductor Drafted, 'Your Government' To End on WWDC

A farewell broadcast of "Your Government and Mine" will be heard over WWDC Friday at 8:45 p. m.

Carl C. Berger, the conductor of the program, will report Saturday to Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va., for induction in the United States Army.

For the past three years Berger has produced and presented more than 500 broadcasts. During the recent Government Girl warplane contest conducted by Federal workers and The Washington Post, Berger in numerous cases devoted his broadcast time to the campaign.

Berger, who is 38, during the daytime is employed in the General Accounting Office.

Yugoslav Patriots Engaged in Severe Battle in Bosnia

London, May 25 (AP).—The Yugoslav government in exile reported today increasingly severe fighting in four major regions of Yugoslavia as the Germans intensified their efforts to tighten their control of the country under the threat of Allied landings.

Seven German and Italian divisions totaling some 100,000 troops were reported in action in the Montenegro, southern Bosnia, Herzegoxina and Sandjak areas.

Both sides were said to have suffered "severe losses" in the neighborhood of Mojkovac, where the Patriot forces have fought a long defensive engagement.

Pennsy's Net Up $8,513,875 In Four Months

The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. yesterday reported net operating income of $30,666,606 for the first four months this year, an increase of $8,513,875 over the same 1942 period.

Gross operating revenues for the period were $303,605,955, an upsurge of $65,762,041. Freight revenues of $216,633,966 were $31,719,660 heavier than in the first four months last year, while passenger revenues of $70,647,119 gained $28,404,608.

April gross advanced to $82,787,598, a gain of $13,096,037. Freight and passenger revenues increased $4,818,823 and $6,968,150, respectively, for the month. Net railway operating income was $11,721,988, up $64,334. The smaller increase in net was attributed to a sharp upturn in taxes which totaled $13,022,195 for the month.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Independent Stores Gain

Independent grocery stores have been taking business away from the chains since the beginning of price control last year, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

Dollar sales of the independent grocers in the first quarter of this year increased more than 30 per cent over the corresponding period of 1942, the department said, while sales of chain food stores declined slightly.

Sales of all other food stores—mostly independent stores handling specialty foods — also increased, about one-third, compared with the first three months of 1942, the department reported.

N. & W. Net Earnings Rise

Norfolk & Western Railway Co. reported net income of $2,024,793.18 for April, equal to $1.39 per common share, compared with $1,497,639.62, or $1.01 a share, for the same month last year.

For the first four months of 1943, net income totaled $7,262,526.16, equal to $4.95 per share, compared with $6,166,426.83, or $4.17 per share, for the corresponding 1942 period.

OPA Is Accused of Malice In Hosiery Trade Regulation

By the Associated Press

A leader of the hosiery industry told a House committee investigating Government restrictions on brand names yesterday that OPA regulations on rayon hosiery put "unwarranted penalties on the industry and (are) outside the scope of the Price Control Act."

Earl Constantine, president of the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers, testified that "misunderstandings, suspicion and even malice are what we have experienced with OPA," whereas "a simple yet adequate and workable regulation . . . can be worked out if OPA will confer with the manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers and jointly trade experience."

Present regulations, which became effective last April 15, Constantine said, are too complex.

"They go beyond mere control to grading," he said. "They disregard established industry practices and penalize substantial stocks made before the construction requirements were made known."

He said the industry had requested OPA to postpone effectiveness of the order until June 15 "in order that these stocks on hand could be disposed of without penalty, but this was refused. That was unfortunate and regrettable."

Chairman Boren (Democrat) of Oklahoma said in a statement:

"Price control we must have, both the OPA and business agree to that. The question is how.

"In the past, governments have found that interference with quality standards that are represented by trade marks and brand names leads to no satisfactory solution. There is no substitute for individual businessmen who take pride in their products and who strive continuously to improve the merchandise that bears their names.

"I believe I speak for the other members of our committee when I say that we have high hopes of making clear to the country at large that prices can be controlled without harming business, labor, or the consuming public. . . ."

Auto Owners Get New Trade-in Plan For Postwar Cars

New York, May 25 (AP).—The Universal C. I. T. Credit Corporation, subsidiary of the Commercial Investment Trust Corporation, today announced a plan whereby owners of automobiles can trade them in for a guarantee of postwar delivery of new cars.

The financing company said the plan would make it possible for automobile dealers to build up a potential volume of post-war business, and at the same time would provide a market of good used cars for the use of war workers.

Arthur O. Dietz, president, said that the plan had been launched after many leaders of the automotive industry had indicated that car owners who are now getting little if any use out of their cars could be induced to trade them in now, provided their cash allowances were guaranteed by a strong financial institution.

Aircraft Engineer Is Paid $372,752

Philadelphia, May 25 (AP).—The Wright Aeronautical Corp. of Paterson, N. J., paid Roland Chilton, engineer and patent licensor, $372,752.36 for his services during 1942, it was disclosed in the annual report of the company filed today with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Other company reports filed with the commission reporting remuneration and salaries of officers and executives include:

The Glenn L. Martin Co., Middle River, Md.—Glenn L. Martin, president, $60,320.

Bell Aircraft Corp., Buffalo, N. Y.—Lawrence D. Bell, president and general manager, $97,166.

Acute Shortage Of Lumber Laid To Price Ceilings

Albany, N. Y., May 25 (AP).—R. E. Broderick, secretary of the Northeastern Lumber Manufacturers Association, said today that lack of labor and unsatisfactory price ceilings would help to create a lumber shortage of 4,000,000,000 feet in 1943.

Here for a conference of State and Federal officials and representatives of the lumber industry to discuss a program for alleviating the situation in New York's lumber industry, Broderick said the shortage of lumber is becoming so acute that in some cases steel is being substituted and added:

"Approximately 35,000,000,000 feet of lumber will be required this year. Only 31,000,000,000 feet will be produced, working at top speed under present conditions."

Mill operators complain, he said, that they cannot operate under price ceilings, holding that they are too low.

C. & O. Places Order For 10 Locomotives

Cleveland, May 25 (AP). — The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway today announced award of a $2,750,000 contract for 10 mallet-type freight locomotives to the Lima (Ohio) Locomotive Works, with delivery scheduled to begin the first quarter of 1944. The new engines will haul freight over mountains between Clifton Forge, Va., and Hinton, W. Va., and will be similar to 20 locomotives placed in service on that route durig 1941 and 1942.

Carriers Lead Closing Rally In Stock List

By the Associated Press

New York, May 25.—Stocks put on a selective last-minute rally in today's market, with rail and industrial favorites taking the lead.

The list gave an irregularly downward and sluggish performance from the opening until the final hour. Short covering and moderate investment demand then appeared and early losses were transformed into advances of fractions to 2 points for many issues. There were a few spreads of around 4. Losses, however, were well distributed at the finish.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up .3 of a point at 51, a peak since April 8, 1940. Of 870 issues traded, 316 were higher, 317 lower and 237 unhanged. Volume picked up toward the finish and transfers totaled 889,260 shares against 789,775 the day before.

Included in the "new high" class were Union Pacific, up 3⅝ at 99¼; Atlantic Coast Line, up 1⅞ at 37½; American Sugar Refining, up 1⅛ at 30, and Sears Roebuck, up ⅝ at 73½.

Jewel Tea dropped 3⅜ as the company's dividend was cut from 40 cents to 25 cents. Loew's retreated, along with Standard Oil (N. J.), Deere, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, American Airlines, J. C. Penny, Pennsylvania Railroad, Consolidated Edison, Yellow Truck, Westinghouse, and Owens-Illinois.

Some carrier bonds improved in a mixed loans division. At Chicago wheat was up ⅝ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel and rye futures jumped 2 cents to a seasonal top. Hogs were steady to strong. Cotton was up 25 to 35 cents a bale.

Post's War Bond Game 'Gate' Hits $2,125,375

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

We'd be ingrates if we did not take time out to strew some deep bows to the many persons who helped make the whopping success of The Post's war-bond baseball show at Griffith Stadium, not forgetting the 29,221 bond buyers who dumped $2,125,375 into the United States Treasury.

POVICH

There was Mr. Hal Rust, chairman of the District War Savings Staff, and his enterprising lieutenant, Hugh Lynch, who brought the city's 60 banks and 22 postoffices into the ticket-selling campaign, and carried the ball for three weeks at a furious pace.

Our thanks, too, to Carlton Duffus, of the Treasury Department, who whipped into action with his assistants, Frank Clark and Jules Alberti, at the announcement of the game. That trio hurdled the transportation problems to bring the Nats from Chicago and the Norfolk sailors from their base. Mr. Clark handled every ticket distributed, and Mr. Alberti used his contacts to help line up the top talent of radio for songs at home plate.

We're grateful also, to Capt. H. A. McClure, commandant of the Norfolk Naval Training Stations, who seized on our suggestion that his team meet the Nats in a bond game and gave a resounding okay. And to Secretary of the Navy Knox, into whose lap the idea was dumped for final approval, with which he came through instantaneously.

Secretary Knox, in fact, was magnificent. When rain threatened a postponement just before game time, the Norfolk team was in a dither. Rigid Navy regulations held them to a 48-hour absence from their base. Could they stay over to play the following night if necessary? They asked The Post to make the request of the Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Knox agreed to suspend regulations.

Needless to note, but noting it we are, is The Post's deep appreciation of Bing Crosby and Kate Smith, who brought America's top male and female voices to home plate at the Stadium for the bond show. There have been big-shot stars who would not sing outdoors at night. Afraid of their pipes. But not Bing Crosby or Kate Smith. They came in with enthusiasm.

At her own expense, Kate Smith transferred her noonday, coast-to-coast radio show to originate in Washington on the day of the game, a matter of many hundreds of dollars for line charges.

Crosby was immense in his cooperation. He was to be in Memphis, you know, the day before the game. He agreed to come to Washington by day coach, if necessary. Honest, he did. Bing has an aversion to flying. "I'll get there if I have to crawl," he said.

Thanks, so much, too, to Al Schacht, the first to accept a place on the program, and who put the huge gathering in high good spirit with his pregame clowning. Schacht was never better, even when he was getting paid for it.

And to Babe Ruth, of course. What a help he turned out to be. He cut short a fishing trip into the wilds to appear on the show. And he injected drama with his unadvertised role as part of Schacht's act. He was puffing audibly from his jog around the bases, but that did not deter him from making a grand bond speech.

The man we doff our hats to, particularly, is Master of Ceremonies Arch McDonald. How he made that show on the field move with the professional touch. It was McDonald who grabbed up all of the loose ends of the program, and carried it off in a manner to give Washington pride in a man who could do that sort of a job.

McDonald was more than slightly terrific, with his introductions, with his perfectly-paced bossing of the show. Small wonder that Bing Crosby would comment at the finish that "Arch McDonald does a beautiful job out there."

And the United States Navy Band. Weren't they wonderful? The pride that surged through the big crowd as the smart bandsmen stepped it off down the field was something to feel. Never before had the Navy Band played an accompaniment for a vocalist. This time they did.

We haven't mentioned Clark Griffith, yet, because we were saving up to tell you what a help he turned out to be. How he leaped at the idea that his team should play Norfolk in a bond game. How he said he'd donate the expensive lights. How he gave, too, the services of his park employes, and plunked down $1000 for his own seat. How he demanded that the American League waive a rule forbidding night exhibition games to permit this one. How he insisted on four big league umpires for the game and got 'em. He and all of you, too, were wonderful.

Nats Open Home Stand With Browns

Leonard, Niggeling Night Game Rivals; Barbary Optioned To Chattanooga

The Nats will open a 14-day stand against the Western clubs which includes 16 games, a half-dozen of them under the arcs, when they entertain the St. Louis Browns tonight at 8:30 o'clock at Griffith Stadium.

The series opener with the Browns currently tied for sixth place but only two games back of the third-place Nats, threatens to be tough on the hitters as the veteran knuckle ball hurlers who are at best under the lights, Dutch Leonard for the Nats and Johnny Niggeling for St. Louis, will oppose.

Leonard lost, 1-0, to the White Sox his last time out to bring his record to three victories and two defeats while Niggeling lost a two-hit heartbreaker to the White Sox last week on an error in the ninth inning.

Barbary Optioned

Clark Griffith yesterday announced the option of Red Barbary, third-string catcher, to Chattanooga on 24-hour recall, reducing the Nats' roster to the maximum of 25. The Nats left on the Western trip with 24 players but signed Alex Kampouris and Lefty Gomez over the weekend, forcing the release of one player.

Barbary appeared in only one game, as a pinch hitter. His release leaves the Nats with only two catchers, Jake Early and Angelo Giuliani. The latter reported his ailing back was showing definite signs of improvement and barring injury the two capable backstops should prove sufficient.

The Browns and Nats were rained out four successive days last week in St. Louis and tonight's meeting will be their first of the season. St. Louis will be without its star shortstop who is the league's leading hitter, Vernon Stephens, but otherwise will line up with familiar faces at every position.

Stephens Still Out

Stephens is still out of the lineup with a knee sprain and his place will be taken by either Mark Christman, who was with the club last year, or Floyd Baker, who was runner-up to Dick Wakefield for batting honors in the Texas League.

St. Louis will remain here for a night game tomorrow and afternoon game Friday, while the White Sox move in for a night game Saturday and twin bill Sunday.

Lefty Gomez Gets the Once Over From His New Bosses

Clark Griffith and Ossie Bluege formed the official welcoming committee for Lefty Gomez yesterday as the Nats worked out at the stadium. Gomez wants about a week to be at his best and then promises the Nats help in their role of pennant dark horses.

Grand Total Is All-Time Baseball High

Bond-buying baseball fans who saw The Post's War Bond game show at Griffith Stadium on Monday night sent the total gate receipts far over the two-million-dollar mark, it was announced yesterday.

An accounting by the Treasury revealed that bonds to the value of $2,125,375 were bought by gamegoers who were still flooding Griffith Stadium offices to make bond purchases even as the teams took the field.

The Post's show thus set all records for baseball "gates" and topped the two-million-dollar goal that had been set with the announcement that the game would be staged.

It was the second greatest total of receipts for any sports event in history. Only the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago, which drew more than $2,600,000, topped the "take" of the game featuring the Norfolk Naval Training Station team against the Nats. Admission was limited to bond buyers.

Event Praised Highly

Washington yesterday was commenting enthusiastically in praise of the bond game program at which Master of Ceremonies Arch McDonald introduced such top personalities as Field Marshal Sir Archibald Wavell, Bing Crosby, Kate Smith and Babe Ruth.

By telephone, telegram and letter, The Post yesterday received hundreds of congratulatory messages for the excellence of the program and the ball game, and the noble purpose of the fund-raising.

Several hundred thousand dollars of the receipts will be allotted to the construction of the new United States Cruiser Norfolk. In the trophy room of the cruiser will be placed the ball which was thrown out to start the game by Lieut. J. S. Schively, wounded Flying Fortress navigator who saw action on both the Pacific and Atlantic Fronts. The ball will bear the autographs of both the Washington and Norfolk teams.

Sailors Keep Colors Flying

The baseball game was completely in tempo with the glittering parade of top personalities onto the stadium turf, with the Norfolk team justifying its advance notices as a club that could play in big league competition.

With their 4-3 victory over the Nats, the Sailors were completely impressive, except in the ninth inning when Washington scored all its runs against a tiring Charley Wagner.

Capt. H. S. McClure, commanding officer of the Norfolk Training Station, and the team's No. 1 fan, forsook his box seat to watch the game from the Sailors' dugout. Captain McGuire was in evidence outside the dugout at every critical situation during the ball game.

In the fourth inning, when Phil Rizzuto was trapped between third and home, and retraced his tracks several times before regaining third safety, Captain McGuire was all but running with him, but restraining himself to dodging tactics in front of the dugout.

Griffith Urges More Games

President Clark Griffith of the Nats, enthused at the magnificent turnout for the game and marveling at the amount of bonds bought, yesterday reiterated his intention to suggest a similar game for every city in the major leagues.

"We have shown how baseball could make itself useful in another way in the war effort," said Mr. Griffith, "and I am taking up with Commissioner Landis the idea that The Post has so successfully sponsored here—big-league teams against service teams with admission limited to bond buyers. It should be a league-wide practice."

Garner Beats Helpless Lewis In Ring Fiasco

Johnny Garner, local Negro with nine previous victories to his credit without a reverse, became light heavyweight champion of the District and all way stations on the Fourteenth Street car line last night at Turner's Arena, following a 10-round burlesque triumph over Stoney Lewis in a setting that left the 1668 fans thoroughly discombooberated, not to mention confused.

Garner won twice, once in the third round when Stoney's trick shoulder slipped out of place, and again at the end of the bout when he was awarded the decision. In justice to Stoney, it might have been a different story if his shoulder had stayed in place. But it didn't and in the third round, with proceedings going along on an even keel, the tricky member up and acted cantankerous, leaving Stoney more or less helpless.

Referee Eddie LaFond halted proceedings for fully a minute while Dr. John De Mayo, commision doctor, Marcus Pitts, Stoney's manager, and Bob Hayden, his second, pulled and tugged to get it back in socket. Finally they did, and LaFond gave the boys the signal to go ahead.

But Stoney was done for. Unable to use his right for anything more than do a little pushing, he was helpless. In the seventh, Stoney almost went down before a barrage of rights and lefts. Again in the tenth, Stoney was in trouble with the wild swinging Garner's barrage. In fact, Stoney was hit so hard at one spot he started walking to his corner, thinking, no doubt, he had heard the bell.

The 1668 fans paid $1938 into Joe Tuner's till. Stoney weighed 162 to Garner's 167.

Sammy Daniels, 136, Baltimore, won a close eight-round decision over Charley Bennett, 140, Washington, in a fast bout following the main event.

Maxie Starr, 136, Edgewood Arsenal, easily outpointed Collier Ostwalt, 133, former Charlotte Golden Glover, now fighting out of Baltimore, in a special eight-rounder.

Nick Kirsch, 168, Baltimore, turned in a six-round decision over Joe Price, 177, Washington Negro, in the card opener.

Wilson Upsets Eastern In Interhigh Series

Tech Outlasts Central Nine, 16 to 13; Western Beats Riders; Playo-ff Games Near

A playoff for second place in the interhigh series was virtually assured yesterday when Woodrow Wilson trounced Eastern, previously undefeated in series competition, 10-3. Tech moved into a tie for first place by taking Central into camp, 16-13, and in the third game of the triple-header, Western tied Roosevelt for fourth place by downing the Riders, 9-6.

Friday, Eastern and Tech will tangle in the game that will decide first place in the round robin. If Wilson wins as expected over Anacostia the same day, the Tigers will be tied with the loser of the White Tide-Tech fray for second place. If this situation arises, there will have to be a playoff for the second playoff berth.

Big Jack Ogle won his fourth straight series triumph in beating Eastern. Although he was in trouble several innings, he was tough with men on the bases as 13 Ramblers were stranded. Every man in the Wilson line-up got at least one hit, with Ogle leading the attack with a trio. Eddie Henshaw rapped out a homer in the third inning with a man on base.

Tech had an easy time with Central until the eighth when the Vikings pushed nine markers across the plate. Central's Tom Sweeney was the outstanding hitter of the day, getting a triple and a homer in three tries. Tech clinched the game with a five-run outburst in the eighth. Central had the bases loaded in the ninth with only one out, but couldn't push the tying markers across.

A six-run rally in the fifth featured Western's victory over Roosevelt. Dee Lampros, who hurled a no-hitter earlier this year, started and received credit for the victory, but had to be relieved by Gene Gould in the eighth. Leigh Joy, Charley Glazos and Reed Meier hurled for the Riders, with Joy being charged with the loss.

Detroit Track Has Difficulty Filling Races

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 25.—For the second successive day, the Detroit Racing Association today encountered difficulty in filling its overnight entries. The daily entries close at 10 a. m. but at 5 p. m. today only three races had been filled, necessitating the same kind of delay as experienced yesterday in arranging an eight-race program.

Charles F. Henry, racing secretary, made a survey of all the owners at the track to obtain enough entries for the eight races tomorrow. Because of the extremely heavy track, most owners contended their racers could not run. Henry adopted the practice of closing each race as he could instead of closing them all at one time as he ordinarily does.

Market Wise In Comeback At Belmont

By the Associated Press

Belmont Park, N. Y., May 25.—Lou Tufano's Market Wise, scheduled to be the starting topweight in the rich Suburban Handicap on Memorial Day, today gave evidence that he deserves that honor when he showed his old time form and defeated six other eligibles for the holiday classic in the mile and a furlong Ballot Handicap, an overnight event.

The Brokers Tip 5-year-old, a 5-to-1 shot despite his dull effort in the recent Metropolitan Handicap, which marked the veteran's first start since he went wrong following a victory in last year's Suburban, drove home a neck before Tommy Heard's Boysy, while third position went to Samuel Riddle's lightweight, Soldier Song.

Greentree's Shut Out, running coupled with The Rhymer and favorite, made his third 1943 start here and again failed. He led by a narrow margin until overtaken in the last furlong, then faded to last. However, it was the first time this year the colt showed speed and he may be dangerous in the mile and a quarter suburban.

A crowd of 12,760 saw Market Wise complete his journey in 1:49 3-5 under 126 pounds, two more than carried by Shut Out.

Each of the horses in today's feature—except Soldier Song—are assigned two pounds more for the coming suburban; Soldier Song is assigned three additional pounds for the fixture.

Gophers Win Two From Minnesota

Agnew to Lose Post On Fight Commission

By Al Costello
Post Staff Writer

Police Lieut. John J. Agnew, a member of the District Boxing Commission since August, 1941, shortly will be relieved of his fistic post, it was learned yesterday from an unimpeachable source.

Inspector Clarence Talley, night supervisor of police and right-hand man to Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent, has been recommended by Kelly to succeed Agnew.

The Board of District Commissioners, headed by Chairman John Russell Young, will meet today.

Although no official announcement has been made, it was learned that the District Commissioners, who appoint the Boxing Commissioners, recently decided a member of the Police Department of higher rank than a lieutenant should be named to the Boxing Board with a view toward adding dignity and prestige to the post.

It was learned that several weeks ago, Major Kelly received a letter from the Board of District Commissioners requesting the recommendation of a higher ranking member of the Police Department for the position. Agnew, incidentally, had been appointed to the Boxing Commission in August, 1941, to serve out the unexpired term of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, who was retiring. Agnew was subsequently reappointed for a two-year term in May, 1942, which was supposed to run until May, 1944.

Major Kelly approached Captain Robert Barrett, acting inspector and chief of the detective bureau during the absence of Inspector "Dick" Mansfield, it was understood, offering Barrett the post but Barrett asked not to be considered, saying it would interfere with his newly added and more important police duties.

Major Kelly then asked Inspector Talley to take the job. Talley, it is understood, admitted he attended fights occasionally but further admitted he did not know too much of the "inside" goings on. Kelly then recommended Talley for the post.

Chairman Claude W. Owen and Thomas P. Morgan, jr., who with Agnew make up the three-man ring board, were called in Monday for a conference with the D. C. Commissioners. Both Owen and Morgan highly praised the work of Agnew.

Agnew, questioned yesterday, was noncommittal. He did, however, deny anyone had pulled a knife on him.

As the news that Police Commissioner John J. Agnew would be ousted as a member of the Boxing Commission reached habitues of Turner's Arena last night, a petition demanding his retention was started by Agnew's friends. It was estimated at least 2000 names would be collected in time to be presented to the board of the District board's meeting today.

Angott to Fight Armstrong in New York, June 11

By the Associated Press

New York, May 25.—Sammy Angott and Henry Armstrnog, both former lightweight champions, today were signed for a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden, June 11.

Angott gave up the 135-pound title last fall, but after two months came out of retirement and has been designated by the National Boxing Association as the man to beat for the crown. Armstrong, former holder of the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight titles, has won 19 of his 22 comback fights, his latest being an eight-round technical knockout of Maxie Shapiro in Philadelphia last night.

Jockey Austin Rides Four Winners at Charles Town Track

Takes First 2 Races for Daily Double

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 25.—Jockey Stanley Austin, a Brooklyn (N. Y.) lad, stole the riding show here this afternoon when he registered four winners in five tries. Austin was aboard Tommy Rodrock's Mae Case in the feature sixth race, a purse event, and brought the public choice home a neck in advance of A. A. Fishback's Seven Seas with O. L. Bonifay's Phantom Player in third position in the field of six going 6½ furlongs.

Austin [illegible] his big day in the first race. He rode William F. Hitt's Milkwhite and this $3 favorite won by five lengths, with A. L. Muehlitz's Precise second and G. Graves' Louis L. third. Austin then completed a $40.60 daily double by winning the second event. He took a tight photo decision with R. S. Wise's Juliette, turning back Mrs. E. D. Sowers' Dividend and R. J. Costello's Miss Addie. Julette paid $17.80 in her own right.

The Brooklyn boy rode winner No. 3 on Joe Bruno's Mitza in the fourth race. Mitza was a length winner over J. J. Maddock's Light Tide with Mrs. Hilda August's Freds First third. The winner returned $5.40.

Getting back to the feature, almost everyone in the plant believed Mae Case to be a "cinch." The filly paid only $2.80 but Austin had to call on plenty of riding skill to get her home on top. Seven Seas set the pace while Austin steadied his mount while saving ground. Entering the stretch, Mae Case came to the outside of the leader but Seven Seas refused to quit while Austin kept Mae Case to a stout drive. Phantom Player raced evenly to be third.

Horsemen Vote to Carry On

Charles Town Track To Continue Meet

Charles Town, W. Va., May 25.—Taking full cognizance of unusual conditions, owners and trainers of horses at a special meeting here today voted unanimously to cooperate fully with the efforts of the track to operate for the balance of the meeting, which ends July 3.

The horsemen voted to accept a $500 daily slash in purses if the track would continue to operate. The track, also seeking to cooperate and to finish the meeting, agreed to run two additional races daily, a sprint and a distance affair, as $600 claiming events.

President A. J. Boyle of the Charles Town track told the horsemen that attendance had dropped considerably and that the wagering had dropped off by one-third. Today, only $52,000 went through the mutuel machines and yesterday only $57,000 was bet.

Although Charles Town is devoid of war industry, the townspeople have found the track to contribute handsomely to living conditions and now come to depend upon the visits of horsemen and the sale of feed and supplies to them as a source of much-needed revenue. Closing of the track would inflict hardships on many families, it was claimed, through loss of revenue.

Bethesda Defeats Landon Prep, 3-0

Bethesda-Chevy Chase yesterday defeated Landon Prep, 3-0, in one of the best prep school games seen in the District this year. Stan Sager and Herbie Benson tied up in a brilliant hurling duel, with the latter coming out on top. Both pitchers gave up only four hits, but two off Sager went for extra bases. This was Bethesda's ninth triumph in 13 starts.

21 Graduated As Nurses by Sibley School

A "career boom" in the nursing profession creates economic, social and academic problems for women who are registered nurses, Dr. Paul F. Douglass, American University president, last night told the graduating class of the Lucy Webb Hayes National Training School and Sibley Hospital.

"The nursing profession developed under the impetus of war, religion and science," Dr. Douglass said at Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church, First Street and Rhode Island Avenue Northwest. "Its professional codes are rooted in devotion both to science and religion and nursing performs its highest service when the nurse is as consecrated in religion as in well-skilled science."

The 21 graduates were accompanied by Mrs. Helen Shoemaker, director of nurses.

Mrs. J. F. LaRue flew from Panama, where her husband is stationed in Government work, to see her daughter, Carolyn Belle LaRue, graduate last night.

Elda Hoke Jenkins, Virginia Margaret Kern Hill, Carolyn Belle LaRue, Jeannette Leek Davis, Jane Livesay Hills, Pauline Mann, Betty Jane Miller, Marveline Idabelle Mowery, Mary Reta Mycum, Miriam Elizabeth Putnam and Margaret Ann Richardson.

Navy Chaplain Corps Hearing Expected Soon

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

Capitol Hill hearings soon may be held on a bill authorizing establishment of a Navy Chaplains' Corps, giving the Navy Chief of Chaplains a temporary rank of rear admiral, it was learned yesterday from the office of the General Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains here.

The commission, directed by Dr. S. Arthur Bevan and representing 28 major denominations, for several years has been urging that the Navy chaplaincy be placed on a par, administratively, with the Army chief of chaplains, which has been a unit of the War Department since 1920.

Legislative sponsors of the bill (S.300 and HR.1023) are Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat) of Massachusetts and chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee and Rep. Charles A. Plumley (Republican) of Vermont.

According to Dr. Devan, the Navy has not yet indicated acceptance of the proposal, and added:

"There are considerably more than 1000 commissioned chaplains in the Navy. I believe that the Navy should take hold of the administration of their chaplains' corps in the same spirit that the Army has taken, and the value of chaplains' work would be greatly increased. The Navy always does a good job when it puts its hand to it."

Present Navy chief of chaplains is Capt. Robert D. Workman.

St. John's College Gives 15 Degrees

Annapolis, Md., May 25 (AP).—The third class to graduate under the St. John's College new program course received their diplomas today in the commencement exercises under the historic "liberty tree" on the campus of the college.

Fifteen students were awarded their degrees—seven of them by proxy since they left to enter the armed forces early in March.

Alexander Meiklejohn, educator and lecturer at the college, gave the commencement address while President Stringfellow Barr and Dean Scott Buchanan of St. John's presided.

In July, the new class of freshmen will enter the college to begin the first year of an accelerated program which is being instituted for the duration.

Questions and Answers about Wendell Willkie's book, ONE WORLD

As this page goes to press, Wendell Willkie's book has been published for just six weeks. In that time, it has broken all existing book publishing records for public acceptance.

In letters to Mr. Willkie and to the publishers, a number of questions have been asked about the behind-the-scenes story of the book's publication and success. The curiosity that has been evidenced is so extraordinary that we feel the facts behind the giant sale of One World should be public property. The publishers have therefore selected the most frequently asked questions and have attempted to answer them on this page.

QUESTION. Did Mr. Willkie write "One World" himself?

ANSWER. Yes.

This is perhaps the most frequently asked question of all, apparently upon the assumption that the books of public figures are ghost-written. The facts are: a friend of Mr. Willkie connected with the publishers urged him to publish, as a book, the four or five speeches he made following his return from his world-encircling trip. Finally he agreed, but when he got to the task of editing his speeches, he realized that an account of his experiences on his trip and of the people with whom he had talked would reinforce and illuminate the conclusions he had presented in public talks after his return.

He discussed the idea with Joseph Barnes and with Gardner Cowles, his friends who had accompanied him around the world. He asked them to give him memoranda of incidents and to gather together for him such notes as they had accumulated on the trip. Mr. Willkie then spent the next six weeks writing "One World."

The original manuscript has been requested by many libraries. Mr. Willkie has promised it to the Library of Congress and he intends to deliver with it the memoranda and notes which he used in writing the book.

In connection with his writing of the book, two other points may be interesting to note. First, Mr. Willkie, like many other authors, stated when he had completed the manuscript that he had never worked harder on anything in his life. Second, and again like many other authors, Mr. Willkie's original estimate on the size of the book was quite wrong. Even after he had started writing, he told his publishers: "There's not a chance of its running over 30,000 words." It turned out to be more than twice as long.

QUESTION. Did anyone foresee or correctly predict the enormous success of "One World"?

ANSWER. No one. The highest pre-publication estimate given by anyone in the offices of the publishers was 250,000 copies. Mr. Willkie himself said privately that he would be most pleased if the book were to reach 150,000 people. When one optimistic member of the publishing house offered to give odds of three to one (in five dollar units) that the book would do better, Mr. Willkie took the bet. He lost, but not in actual money, since his check was proudly framed. The advance sale came to 55,000 copies, and most booksellers felt they had adequate stock to meet the early demand.

QUESTION. Just how many copies have been sold thus far?

ANSWER. One World was published on April 8th. By Thursday, May 20th, the day these words are being written, 1,100,000 have been printed, and 938,316 have been sold.

QUESTION. Has any book ever caught on so rapidly as "One World"?

ANSWER. No book in the history of book publishing has been bought by so many people so quickly. A number of books have sold more copies in their entire lifetimes than has One World in the first six weeks, but research brings to light no single book that has caught on at such a whirlwind pace. Every day since publication, from twenty to sixty thousand people have bought copies. Should One World continue at its present pace it will probably become the greatest best-seller in publishing history. It is already one of the three best-selling non-fiction titles of the twentieth century. It still has quite a way to go before it tops the 3,000,000 copy record hung up by Gone With the Wind, since its publication in 1936.

QUESTION. How well has "One World" been received in the so-called isolationist mid-west?

ANSWER. At least as well as in any other section. For instance, in the Chicago area alone more than 70,000 copies have been sold.

QUESTION. How does the popularity of the $1.00 paper edition compare with that of the cloth bound one at $2.00?

ANSWER. To date, 900,000 of the paper edition and 200,000 of the cloth edition have been printed. This is, we believe, a unique situation in publishing history. For a $2.00 book to become a great best-seller in its own right when it has been published simultaneously with a dollar edition, is unheard of. As of this moment, 162,000 of the cloth bound book alone have been sold within six weeks. The reason appears to lie in the fact that many persons prefer to purchase the more permanent cloth bound edition for their library shelves.

QUESTION. Does such a runaway best-seller cause much excitement in the book business?

ANSWER. Indeed, yes. The offices of the publisher were completely disorganized on publication day, and for several weeks thereafter. Thousands of telegrams and telephone calls from all over the country flooded the office. Billing department, shipping department, sales and advertising departments did not even have time for the nervous breakdowns they justly felt were coming to them. The telegrams varied from frantic ones from large chain stores pleading for immediate shipment of from 10,000 to 50,000 copies—copies that were not yet off the presses—to one earnest wire from a small book store which read, "RUSH 100 MORE WILLKIE STOP DEMAND UNPRESIDENTED" (sic).

On April 12th, four days after publication, the sales manager of the publishers went out for a half hour and returned to find a page of instructions telling him to get in touch with out of town operators in Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, Washington, Detroit, Indianapolis, Philadelphia, and Los Angeles (there were three from Cleveland). Each of these calls represented a book or department store urgently desiring to place a reorder. Rate of sale for the first week was so great that one chain of stores —Womrath's—ran out of stock, and by the following day had piled up more than 2,000 unfilled orders.

QUESTION. How did the publishers manage to catch up to the demand?

ANSWER. They didn't—for three weeks. It was necessary to run advertisements in fifty newspapers apologizing to the public because it was impossible to get enough books to bookstores. It was completely impossible, too, for the advertisements to keep up with the rate of sale. An advertisement would, for instance, run in one paper on a Friday stating that printings had now reached the half million mark. Two days later, an advertisement that had been prepared well in advance to meet the early closing requirements of a different paper would state that the book's sale was only a quarter of a million.

The publishers finally managed to catch up with the book by having it printed in two plants and bound in a third one. Five sets of plates were made, and the printers ran extra shifts on a 24-hour schedule steadily over a two-week period. As a result, a peak production of 90,000 copies in a single day was reached. But in order to hit this peak, the foreman of one of the printing houses was obliged to call all his head pressmen into a big huddle resembling a locker room pep talk before a big football game. Pointing to the publisher's out of stock advertisement, which he had pasted on his bulletin board, he said: "Look, you guys! Look what's been sold by last Tuesday! How can we expect to catch up to Mr. Willkie at the rate we're going? You guys got to make them roll!" The pep talk worked. They finally caught up with Mr. Willkie.

QUESTION. Does "One World's" success mean a serious paper shortage to its publishers?

ANSWER. To a degree, yes. Publishers are restricted by the WPB during 1943 to the use of 90% of the total paper used in 1942. It was necessary for the publishers to print Mr. Willkie's book originally in what they thought to be the most economical format. The paper edition was set in two columns of type to a page, something seldom done by publishers. When the book took the bit in its teeth, so to speak, further paper saving devices became necessary. Margins were reduced further, some white space was eliminated, and the size of the paper bound book was again reduced, from 96 to 80 pages. No changes were made in the original text, of course. Such economies have enabled the publishers to continue with their normal program.

QUESTION. Is "One World" too heavy to send overseas to men in the Armed Forces?

ANSWER. No. With the exception of the first three printings, the paper bound copies weigh less than eight ounces.

QUESTION. Is it true that the rate of sale is due to a special large distribution by book clubs, individuals or corporations?

ANSWER. Completely untrue. Some time ago a radio commentator broadcast the statement that the sale was due very largely to a special distribution by a book club. This was incorrect. The book has been distributed by no book club, has been purchased by no organization whatsoever in quantity—with the exception of one order for 300 copies by a single individual. All copies sold to date have gone into bookstores, department stores or other retail outlets, who, in turn, have sold One World to the public in ones or twos, or occasionally in fives and tens.

QUESTION. Was "One World" censored in any way by the government?

ANSWER. No.

QUESTION. Did the book receive a completely enthusiastic press?

ANSWER. No. It is true that the vast bulk of book reviews, radio and magazine reviews, comments from ministers, educators and other persons prominent in public life were outspoken in their praise of One World. But there were a few dissenting voices. Among the more influential newspapers, only the Chicago Tribune damned the book. The New York Daily News book review column did not review it.

QUESTION. Do the publishers feel particularly proud of the publicity job they have done on "One World"?

ANSWER. They do not. If ever a book made its publisher's every sales effort appear puny and insignificant, that book is One World. The people who have been responsible for its success are not the publishers—they are millions of Americans (each book is read by several people) who have wanted to read what Wendell Willkie had to say.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Gas Shortage May Cause More Staggered Hours

The gas drought may result in a further staggering of hours for Federal employes. That possibility was under discussion yesterday by Federal officials. In general, however, the officials adopted a "wait-and-see" policy, hoping against hope that enough gas would arrive so that normal transportation could be resumed. Hardest hit are the employes in outlying areas such as the Census Building at Suitland, Pentagon, Navy's Arlington Building, Public Health at Bethesda, Agriculture's units at Beltsville and several others. Scores of employes were reported late yesterday. They had to abandon car pools and depend on public transportation.

Officials here expect the real pinch in transportation to start in about a week. By that time most of the private autos will have run out of gas, or what gas is on hand will be saved for emergencies, and very few employes will be driving to work. Public transportation will be overloaded and the only answer will be for the Government to further stagger hours to get greater utilization of the available buses and streetcars. One official, whose agency is located in the outlying area, said he would appeal to OPA for gas to keep the car pools operating. There just aren't enough buses to adequately serve Federal Buildings outside the District but if gas can't be had for private cars the employes will have to get along the best they can until their working hours are staggered.

War Production Board's planning committee will be merged with the statistics division. Stacy May will be chief and his associate will be Simon Kuznets. Ed Dickinson, who was Bob Nathan's No. 1 assistant, will go into the Marines on July 1. . . . Carl Berger, General Accounting official who conducts "Your Government and Mine" on WWDC, will be inducted into the Army on Saturday. He'll be 38 two days later. . . . Interior Secretary Ickes has asked Congress to create an additional assistant secretary for his department . . . Oh, yes, while employes were walking to work yesterday because of the shortage of gas, they observed the grass being cut by a power lawn mower in front of the New Interior Building.

Persons convicted of a felony are now eligible for Federal jobs. Civil Service, however, will accept applicants on the condition that they get favorable reports from appropriate Federal and State authorities. Convicts are being trained for all sorts of war jobs and both Bureau of Prisons and Civil Service Commission felt it wasn't in the best interest of the war to bar trained people from critical jobs, no matter if the applicants were former convicts. Law enforcing jobs, of course, are closed to the former convicts. Law-enforcing is sponsoring a joint resolution to pay unused annual leave to members of the Capitol police force when they enter the military. . . .

Retired Federal employes who are reappointed in the service are now required to serve a trial period of one year, the Civil Service has ruled. Moreover, such appointment must be for "actual service" instead of bringing the employe under the more liberalized retirement system. . . . Incidentally, the chances of retired Federal workers to get higher annuities to keep pace with the higher cost of living will be greatly improved if approval is given the Lodge bill that would increase allotment payments to families of servicemen by 15 per cent over the average June, 1942, salary. The average monthly Federal salary in June, 1942, he said, was $160.11 and now, he pointed out, it had jumped to $184.77.

Chairman Robert Ramspeck yesterday laid down before the Council of Personnel Administration what may become the eight commandments for Federal officials. After a blistering indictment of the bureaucrats, Ramspeck proposed this set of rules in Government: (1) That no person should be employed whose appointment is opposed by a majority of the people, (2) no person should be empowered to write regulations unless he has had practical experience in dealing with people, (3) the Government employe who deals with the public must have tact, understanding and he must be aware that he's a servant of the public, (4) no person should be retained on the payroll if he isn't needed.

(5) No incompetent person should be kept on the payroll, (6) no employe should be retained who fails to do a full day's work each day, (7) no person should be placed in a position where he can do favors for those with whom he was formerly employed, and (8) care should be exercised that no favoritism is shown in fixing pay or awarding promotions. After laying down his principles of good management, Ramspeck lashed at the Federal officials for breaking each of the eight proposed rules. Each Federal official would do well to keep the Ramspeck points in mind.

Rent Probe To Subpena OPA Heads

Smith Committee Seeks Deacon Report Analyzing Division Being Investigated

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

Subpenas will be served on top OPA officials today by the Smith Committee investigating executive branches in an effort to solve the mysterious disappearance of the Deacon report, an analysis of the operation of OPA's rent control division in the United States, The Post learned yesterday.

Indications of the importance of the Deacon report crept into an all-day hearing yesterday at which OPA officials were sharply questioned as to whether the rent control policies of OPA were not in the hands of men antagonistic to ownership of private property.

The Deacon report was made by Byron Deacon, a business expert who once made a study of the War Production Board, at the request of OPA Chief Prentiss Brown. According to information reaching the Smith committee, the report recommended greater localization of the rent control setup, modification of the one-third down purchase price rule on the sale of real estate, and greater fairness and equity toward property owners who are operating properties at a loss under OPA.

Only One Copy

An attempt to secure the report from Paul A. Porter, deputy OPA administrator in charge of rent control, was made by the committee yesterday, but Porter said he had given his only copy to OPA official Clyde Herring, former United States Senator.

During the questioning of Tom Tippett, chief of the field operations of the rent division of OPA, Committee Counsel Harold Allen charged that those in control of OPA's program were antagonistic to private property rights.

"I think the pattern is very clear," Allen said. "These keystone men were selected by a man antipathetic to private property rights. The evidence is very clear that the control of property is being taken out of the hands of the owners and given over to labor."

Letter From Tippett

A letter from Tippett to Karl Borders, former head of the OPA rent division, now in charge of rent control in Honolulu, was introduced. Tippett wrote Borders that at first he thought the latest Dies' list was "just another publicity stunt" but added that events were taking a more serious turn. He explained he referred to the establishment of the Kerr Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, before which he is now awaiting a hearing.

Tippett denied membership in the Communist Party or affiliated organizations. He admitted having been an instructor at Brookwood Labor College, Katonah, N. Y. Under questioning he admitted that Matthew Woll, A. F. of L. official had denounced the college as communistic.

Robert W. Wales, OPA assistant general counsel, was the last witness. He was questioned as to where OPA derived the authority to overrule local and State laws.

Chief authority was derived, Wales maintained, from wartime emergency powers. His testimony was not concluded.

Crash Fatal To Alexandria Marine Cadet

Second Lieut. Kenton Boone Guthridge of the Marine Corps Reserve, was killed on Sunday in an airplane crash near Daytona Beach, Fla., where he was taking a training course, his father, Guy Guthridge of 310 Buchanan Street, Alexandria, Va., told The Post yesterday.

GUTHRIDGE

A former Post employe, Guthridge was born in Columbus, Ga., 23 years ago. He was a graduate of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School and Benjamin Franklin School of Accounting. An accountant with the Washington Gas Light Co. before enlisting as a naval aviation cadet, he was graduated from the training school at Corpus Christi, Tex. about a month ago and transferred to the Marine Corps. Last Wednesday he married a Miss Paulk of Daytona Beach.

In addition to his parents, four brothers survive; Albert Alden, chief engineer with the Navy; Gilbert V. of Los Angeles; Paul F., with the Signal Corps and Boyce F., with the Coast Guard.

Services were held at Daytona Beach yesterday, while military burial services will be conducted at Arlington Cemetery tomorrow at 2 p. m.

John Louis Ferber, who has worked in The Post composing room 53 years tomorrow will welcome Victor M. Hurley, also of the composing room, into a 50-year club, which other Post compositors are due soon to join. They are both native Washingtonians.

Ferber, 69, became what was then known as a "laborer" in the composing room on May 15, 1890. He worked then on the assembling bank, and he still does, but now he is known as the dump bank man, the man who sees that type for a given story is assembled properly.

It was a tougher job in the old days, he said yesterday. Ferber recalls he used to use water to keep the tiny pieces of hand set type from falling apart. Then only a few lines of type could be set at a time, while with the present machinery almost a whole column may come up at once. However, he handles more type now, and more kinds of type. On the first linotypes, there were just two designs, he said. Today, The Post uses more than 50.

However, Ferber worked for The Post firstas an elevator operator and mail clerk. "I carried all the mail to the postoffice at Seventh and Pennsylvania Avenue, and the bags of papers to be mailed to the Pennsylvania Railroad Station, then at Sixth and B Streets Northwest," he said. Now truckloads of papers leave The Post to be mailed subscribers outside of Washington, but then four bags of early editions and six bags of late editions were all that were sent.

Ferber has seven sons, all married, and 10 grandchildren. He lives with his wife, the former Pearl A. Baldwin, also a native Washingtonian, at 1128 Neal Street Northeast.

Hurley, 68, proofreader who still reverts occasionally to his favorite job of makeup, recalled without hesitation that he joined The Post May 27, 1893, as an apprentice, when it was published from the small brick building at Tenth and D Northwest. There he witnessed laying by compositors of the red cement letters, "The Washington Post," still to be seen in the pavement on the northeast of the sidewalk.

"Down there," he recollected, "every letter of the 8-page daily and 16-page Sunday edition was set by hand. It was only after we got in the new building that we had machines."

Hurley recalls with pleasure working in the early 1900's under Managing Editor Scott Bone, later Governor of Alaska. "He and I were the only people in the United States to weep scalding tears when Japan licked Russia. We didn't trust the Japs," he said. "I couldn't see 'em then and can't yet!"

He sidewalk superintended construction of the present Post Building and remembers the first Sunday after moving in, Beriah Wilkins, proprietor, was so "tickled" with the 24-page paper that he wrote a letter thanking the mechanical staff for great achievement in bringing out so large an edition, The Sunday Post now often runs more than 90 pages.

Hurley was married in 1900 to Marguerite Gilliland and has a daughter, Floreine Hurley, a graduate of George Washington University who studied music at Peabody Conservatory and appeared on concert and operatic stages before entering war work in Washington. They live at 4915 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. His hobby is music, and his coworkers know him as one who never misses an important musical event, an amateur gardener, and also a firm supporter of The Post. He thinks it is better than ever now.

Removal of District Dog Pound Waged by Recreation Board

Removal of the District Dog Pound from the proximity of Randall Junior High playground was recommended yesterday by the District Recreation Board, in the interest of dogs and children.

Harry Wender relinquished the chair to emphasize need for a change. He said dogs suffer from stones and balls thrown by children, and the "stench is something awful."

Further needs for change in the interests of recreation were acknowledged in a motion to arrange a conference between the Recreation Department and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to discuss bringing up to date of the recreation system plan.

Need for such revision was pointed up later in the meeting when Mrs. Alice C. Hunter, secretary, questioned adequacy of play space which could be utilized by Negroes, particularly in the Anacostia area.

Superintendent of Recreation Milo F. Christiansen pointed out ground would be available for Negroes at the Sport Center, at the end of East Capitol Street and the board had just approved the department's effort to get use of area near the Bone School from the National Capital Housing Authority to which the ground is now assigned.

Recommendations for operating programs in National Capital Housing Authority projects, playgrounds, park play areas, and two additional schools, Wilson High School stadium and Margaret Murray Vocational School, were approved as was a recommendation for the recreation department to issue permits to certain park properties so as to centralize the permit system in the District.

It was further decided to hold a meeting June 8 to present items of interest in the 1945 recreation budget to organized citizenry representatives which will be invited to attend and make recommendations from 250 local groups.

Further study and investigation of the 10-acre Emery Estate in the Paul Junior High area for use as a community center and playground was authorized. It was announced the Georgetown and Rosedale swimming pools will open June 24 while those under direction of the Welfare and Recreation Association will be ready June 5. Twelve wading pools and 10 to 15 street showers to be circulated among 75 areas will be maintained by the department also, it was said.

It was reported the Congress of Parents and Teachers is preparing a public report refuting facts in its resolution on molesting of younger children by older ones at Twin Oaks Playground.

Acknowledgment was made of designation of C. Melvin Sharpe to represent the Board of Education on the Recreation Board, replacing Robert L. Haycock who has become acting superintendent of schools, and of Walter Fowler's reappointment to the board, representing the District Commissioners.

Slaughterer Denies Accusation Of Overcharging Customers

The first not guilty plea in OPA indictments charging violations of the OPA price ceiling regulations was entered yesterday in District Court by Ralph P. Counselman, owner of a slaughter house at 433 Eleventh Street Southwest.

The Counselman indictments, containing 48 counts, charge violations of the price ceilings on meats amounting to approximately $2500. This overcharge, it is alleged by the Government, occurred when approximately 50,000 pounds of veal was sold to local retailers. One of the charges made in the indictments was that Counselman failed to properly grade the meat.

After entering the plea, Michael F. Keogh, attorney for Counselman, issued a statement to the press in which he blamed the present setup of the OPA as being responsible for his client's plight:

"I stated to the court that the case involved a very fine issue and said that it would be conclusively shown at the trial that my client is being victimized by the Emergency Price Control Act.

"The industry, so vital to the war effort and to civilian morale, is being disorganized, demoralized and in grave danger of total destruction by reason of OPA regulations which are on their face illegal, economically oppressive, unfair, unreasonable and entirely contrary to the intent and purpose of Congress as is so clearly expressed in the Emergency Price Control Act."

OPA Files Suit on Spud Violations

First Step Taken In Major Attempt To Smash D. C. Black Market

The first step of a major attempt to take the profit out of the black market operations in potatoes here was taken yesterday by the local OPA when it filed a civil suit in District Court asking $1,411.95 in penalties from a large Washington wholesaler charged with violating the price ceilings on this commodity.

The sum requested represents three times the amount of the overcharges allegedly made by the Washington Produce Co., 1286 Fifth Street Northeast, on sales to retailers of potatoes.

The suit, which named Prentiss M. Brown, OPA administrator, as plaintiff, and Emanuel Cohen and Jacob Lehrman, partners in the Washington Produce Co., as defendants, was filed by Carl Bereuffy, chief enforcement attorney for the OPA.

Laskey's Statement

After filing the suit, Laskey said: "By this type of action we intend to demonstrate to those who are taking advantage of the scarcity of various commodities to make excessive profits that we can and will take such profits out of the transactions." He pointed out that the OPA was allowed to sue in the name of the administrator for three times the amount of overcharge of sales at wholesale.

The complaint specifically charges that on May 10 the company delivered to the Square Deal Market, Inc., 30 50-pound sacks of potatoes at $3.22 a bag, and gave the total price of the sale at $96.60. The maximum legal price of the potatoes, the complaint said, was $4.46 per 100 pounds.

The suit pointed out that the amount of the transaction exceeded the ceiling price of $29.70 and that under the law the amount the OPA was permitted to sue for was triple this or $89.10.

Two more Washington grocers were charged in Municipal Court yesterday with selling potatoes above ceiling prices, bringing to 12 the number of food distributors charged here with such violation.

Fred Burka of 3300 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, pleaded not guilty and will be tried by jury June 15. The case of Louis Kosberg, 2132 Florida Avenue Northwest, was continued until next Wednesday. According to the OPA, Burka and Kosberg sold potatoes for 15 cents per pound and 2 pounds for 29 cents.

Maxim Shapiro Well Received In District Debut as Pianist

By Ray C. B. Brown

Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress presents Maxim Shapiro on Tuesday night in the first of six piano recitals. Program: Gavotte and Variations in A minor (Rameau), Sonatas in F sharp minor and A major (Scarlatti), Prelude and Fugue in F minor (Bach), English Suite No. 3 in G minor (Bach), Suite in F sharp minor (Handel), Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue (Bach), Two Chorale-Preludes: "I Call to Thee, Lord" and "Rejoice, Beloved Christians" (Bach-Busoni), Toccata and Fugue in D minor (Bach-Tausig).

Entering upon a series of six recitals designed to illustrate the characteristics of pianoforte music from the early eighteenth century to the present day, Maxim Shapiro made his local debut last evening at the Library of Congress under the auspices of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation. His reception by a capacity audience was most cordial, and it was evident that the first impression upon his listeners was favorable, frequently to the point of excited approbation. The admiration was obviously motivated by recognition of his facile technique, his tone and his concentration upon the music rather than upon a display of virtuosity in its exposition.

BROWN

Although it is too early in the series to pass considered judgment upon the depth of his musicianship and the intuitive quality of his artistry, one would say at the outset that he is not one of the greatest contemporary pianists. But he does have the ability to interest and hold the attention of his auditors.

His opening number, Rameau's Gavotte and Variations in A minor, was played with the tonal color of today instead of an approximation to the dryness of harpsichord timbre, and the damper pedal was too frequently opened. In fact, there was an excess of pedaling throughout the program, and a consequent distortion of eighteenth-century exactitude in tone. None of the composers represented would have understood the blurring of phrases and the mixture of tones that the pedal can produce.

While the greater part of the program was on familiar ground, one credits the recitalist with having introduced a new one of Domenico Scarlatti's 549 "sonatas"—a pleasant and slightly melancholy exercise in F sharp minor—and with the revival of Handel's sturdy and forthright four-movement suite in F sharp minor. Bach's D minor toccata and fugue and two chorale-preludes were entirely out of place in such a recital; first, because they are organ compositions, and second because the transcriptions by Tausig and Busoni represent two later and distinct periods of piano virtuosity.

The Arts Club presents James Bopst, pianist, assisted by Lawrence Lewis, baritone, in a recital on Tuesday evening, May 25. Program: Compositions by Bach, Bach-Liszt, Scarlatti, Chopin, Brahms, Debussy, Ravel and Bowman.

James Bopst, pianist, and student of Sigismund Stojovski and Harold Bauer, appeared in the Arts Club concert hall last evening. His program was chiefly devoted to old standbys. One noted with a bit of surprise, however, the inclusion of Bach's B flat and F major Two Part Inventions and Scarlatti's Pastorale in E Minor, sagas of the piano classroom.

Several compositions by Frank Bowman included a plaintive air for the piano, "Miss Kate and the Peacock," and three songs, "Bright Stands the Sun's Eye at Noon," "O Love, My Love, and Perfect Bliss," and "I Go By Road," the most attractive of the three, sung by Lawrence Lewis. N. F.

Mrs. Randle Gets 5-Year-Term For Slaying High School Youth

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., May 25.—A sentence of five years in prison was imposed today upon Helen Aileen Randle, who tearfully told a jury last week that the fatal shooting of a 17-year-old high school boy last January 30 was accidental.

Mrs. Randle, convicted May 20 of manslaughter, stood quietly while Judge Ridgely Melvin imposed sentence. Her mother, Mrs. Grace Boswell of Washington, burst into tears.

The 31-year-old third wife of Ulmo S. Randle, wealthy Maryland and Virginia horseman who was shot in the leg at the time young Allen Willey was fatally wounded at the Randles' Bay Ridge home, will be taken to the model Maryland Women's prison at Jessups tomorrow, officials said.

Another indictment accusing Mrs. Randle of shooting her husband with intent to kill is still pending. State's Attorney Marvin I. Anderson gave no indication what he might request on that accusation. However, Randle declined to testify against his wife at her two-day trial for murder.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Melvin told Mrs. Randle "The shooting was neither justifiable nor excusable. It was either murder or manslaughter."

"The jury gave you the benefit of the doubt," the court added. "The aim of the law is not to persecute you, but rather to protect society and promote respect for the law."

Melvin denied a request by Defense Attorney William Curran for a suspension of sentence. Curran said Mrs. Randle "has been in practically solitary confinement ever since her arrest."

However, Judge Melvin did specify that her sentence should begin as of January 30, the day she was arrested.

State's Attorney Anderson told the court that there were mitigating circumstances "which made the shooting of Willey manslaughter rather than murder.

Hankin Takes PUC Feud to White House

Says Byrnes Letter To Flanagan on Pepco Case Was Never Seen by Commission

By Roger Young
Post Staff Writer

Public Utilities Commission member Gregory Hankin has appealed to the White House for support in his long-standing feud with PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan, it was revealed last night.

Charges of suppressed correspondence made by Hankin in a dissenting opinion to the PUC's refusal of Federal intervenors for reconsideration of the Potomac Electric Power Co. rate increase decision yesterday opened the files of letters exchanged between Flanagan, Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes and Hankin.

Protesting that a letter addressed from Byrnes to Flanagan had not been presented to the whole Commission and that Flanagan had refused to let the dissenting member of the Commission see the response to this letter, Hankin concluded a letter to Byrnes stating! "I fully realize that the President is so tied up with international and national problems of tremendous importance that everything possible should be done to avoid bothering him with affairs of the District of Columbia. In view of the above, however, and in the interest of cooperating with the President's own policies, I feel compelled to ask you to bring this matter to his attention."

Asked Cooperation

On April 1, Byrnes asked Flanagan—as he did the chairmen of all State utilities regulatory bodies—for cooperation with his agency in promulgating the President's anti-inflation program, and asked that Flanagan transmit directly any views he might have that would be helpful to the cooperative effort.

Flanagan, deeming this a personal message, did not present this letter to the other Commissioners. He assured Byrnes of his willingness to confer with other Commissioners, as Byrnes asked, and stated that "in all fairness I am very favorably impressed with the situation as it exists in the District of Columbia. The absence of vicious holding company practices, the high character of the directorates and operating personnel, and the sound financing practices followed have provided a welcome relief from some of the sorry situations that have had to be dealt with in the Securities and Exchange Commission."

Without Reason

As a suggestion of one way to effect closer cooperation between Byrnes' office and utilities commissions, Flanagan stated that in the recent gas and electric rate cases into which the OPA intervened as Byrnes' representatives, "I do not feel that we have been favored with representation before this commission which has been of very high caliber."

Hankin, in his dissenting opinion, retorted that "there was no occasion for launching into high praise of the local utilities and there was also no occasion for this unwarranted attack on the Government's representatives."

Of Hankin's complaints that he had not been shown the correspondence that passed between Flanagan and Byrnes until he obtained it from "outside sources," Flanagan said: "Mr. Hankin's minority opinion consisted chiefly on comment on correspondence between Mr. Byrnes and myself, into which Mr. Hankin injected himself. But it has nothing to do with the Pepco rate case."

The Gentler Sex

Less Noise, Please!

Less of the wrong noises, more of the right ones is the program of Mrs. Henrietta De-Goofey, noted reformer, for Noise Abatement Week which begins Monday.

"I am not concerned with big obvious noises," the President of the Do Something About It League told her press conference yesterday. "I will leave those to other reformers. After all, it is the little unexpected noises that get under your skin—such as the clattering on sidewalks or apartment halls of women's high heeled shoes. In fact, one of the most urgent antinoise measures we need is to have rubber heels put on all shoes.

To Soft-Pedal Windy Senators

"I also think something ought to be done about the noises women make in offices—or for that matter in the home—when they talk over telephones. In fact, from the pitch of their voices, I can't see why they use the telephone at all. Why don't they just lean out the window?"

"But Mrs. DeGoofey," protested a representative of the Women Are as Good as Men Magazine, "what about the noises men make?"

"I was just getting to that," said the reformer. "I am going to carry my campaign against noises to a hotbed of noisemakers—Congress. If I can eliminate the noise of the filibusters and the demagogues everything will be fairly quiet on Capitol Hill."

"But what about the sacred right of free speech?" asked an editorial pundit.

"I do not intend to stop oratory," was the reply. "Merely have the orators wear mouth mufflers so no one will have to listen to them. Another source of noise I will attempt to regulate is the radio——"

"But Mrs. DeGoofey——" began a chorus of commentators.

"Wait a minute! I would not silence the commentators, only send a lot of them to elocution school where they could have the carping qualities cut out of their voices. It is decidedly unpleasant for listeners after a day of stress and strain to turn on the radio and have to hear some captious voiced sideline sitter bellyaching about something that is not being done to suit him.

"Another noise coming out of the radio I intend to silence is that of the saccharine voiced female. Why on earth every woman when she gets before a microphone has to try to drip honey with her words or talk in a nit-wit little girl voice is something I can't comprehend. In fact I am thinking of offering the De-Goofey Annual Radio Award to the woman having the most hard-boiled voice on the radio.

Ban of Cocktail Party Cackling

"Another radio noise I have long campaigned against is the shrieking and sobbing of the soap opera victims. But apparently women listeners love these wails and groans so I am not very hopeful of doing much along this line.

"The cackling of women at luncheons and cocktail parties is one of the worst noises we have to contend with," continued the reformer. "I think perhaps the best cure for that would be to hire Griffith Stadium for an afternoon, take all the hen-party addicts out there, and let them make themselves permanently hoarse trying to shout each other down."

"But what about men's noises?" persisted an elderly sob sister.

"Men's noises are usually a lot of sound and fury and do not bother me personally," said Mrs. DeGoofey. "However, the man who sits in the front room reading the paper and calls out every bit of filler information he reads to his busy wife in the kitchen who can't hear without stopping her work, should indeed be muffled if not muzzled."

"What right noises do you intend to encourage?" asked a civic association editor.

"I intend to have a general distribution of horns, whistles and drums to the drivers of motor cars," announced Mrs. DeGoofey. "I am afraid that pleasure drivers, now having to sit home, and being unable to toot their horns at pedestrians and to raise a hubbub in traffic tie-ups will slowly go crazy, run amuck and become public enemies. Consequently I am going to make it possible for them to go out in their back yards and blow off."

Women to Resume Postwar Home Duties

By Genevieve Reynolds

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

If you think that all the 15 million American women now employed will chuck their homes and family responsibilities permanently to continue in factory work, you are dead wrong. The majority will go back home gladly to take up their accustomed professions and household responsibilities. So declared Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Guest speaker at the Women's National Press Club's luncheon meeting honoring women in government yesterday at the Willard Hotel, she expressed belief women who could would care for their own children. In fact, she doubts that there will be a vast number of day nurseries after the war. And only those who find it absolutely necessary will insist on such facilities.

Pointing out 15 million American women now employed, Miss Perkins predicted a rise close to 17 million at end of the year. She emphasized those in war industries and on new types of jobs for women are producing to the satisfaction of management."

Production Eclipsed

"Many foremen have regarded women as a necessary evil," explained Miss Perkins, "until they've had enough of them on the job to discover that on certain occupations, like spot welding, for example, women workers have far outstripped the production records of men formerly doing that work * * * In short, our women have surprised not only employers, but themselves too, at the record they've made on jobs they have never done before in the manufacture of all kinds of war equipment, from small arms to big guns and cannons."

She told how women are working successfully in shipyards, aircraft factories and other branches of war work. "The unchastened women—those who had never worked before at any job, are more easily exhausted and more difficult to handle," the Secretary of Labor said. And despite women's weakness—inability to lift heavy loads, quick fatigue, habit of asking questions and insisting on labor saving devices, they are valuable especially in that they are patient, eager to work, good on repetitive work, conscientious, excellent at following detailed instructions to the letter, economical with tools and supplies."

Competing With Men

American women who are now working as well as men are looking forward to that inevitable day when victory will come to the United Nations. That will bring us a world designed to produce security and comfort for the ordinary man: the wage earner, the farmer, the merchant, the teacher. He must have opportunity to earn his livelihood in useful pursuits. He needs to live in a world which makes provision for the disadvantaged groups of the community: the young, old, sick, those without adequate bargaining power, those whose family resources make it impossible for them to develop fully their innate capacities, according to the alert Secretary of Labor.

"The extension of social insurance will help us achieve these ends. While we are now insuring many against some economic misfortunes, we are not doing enough, said Miss Perkins. "Out of my experience with the program which began when I had the honor to be chairman of the President's Cabinet Committee which made the report on which the Congress based our social security law, I came to the conclusion that in the United States of America we can and should now greatly extend and advance use of the social security technique as a method of social justice.

"Our social insurance program should cover all workers. It should include in its provisions the many self-employed and professional people who are not otherwise able to provide for the disasters of their lives," she continued. "It should be made to cover a much greater variety of social hazards and disasters for all those covered. Contributions should be simplified and unified.

"It should not alter industrial disability insurance, i. e., workmen's compensation now covered by the States.

"It should provide against the loss of earnings from ill health and disability.

A Dollar Is Still a Wonderful Thing

Here it is—a liquid cleansing cream that makes the honest dirt on your face melt away even faster than a Hitler promise. The thin film that's left after a paper tissue rub down forms a fine powder base, and what's more this elegant stuff is a super hand cream.

If this isn't a find we'll eat it (and we could, almost, because it smells and seems to taste of almonds).

War has brought about the elimination of nonessentials and it's about time is what we always say. Here in one bottle at a buck is about all the beauty formula the average skin needs.

"Keep it clean" might be the beginning and the end to all "eureka" beauty slogans, and remember soap and water does a good job too!

We've kept a bottle in our desk and our 5:30 clean-up has produced the music of "Don't tell me you've worked all day!

You've heard of or have lived through a Washington summer. It's hot. Of course we could tell you that reclining on a cake of ice in your tree-trimmed swimming pool is one way to keep cool. But as someone once said about money, "God doesn't like it; just look at the people he gives it to." (That's about the way we feel about private swimming pools—until we're asked to one!)

But it's war and we're working at it, so let's be realists about the heat and be prepared with a bottle of green (like mint) liquid that is as chilling as a Byrd dog's paw. A few drops on your forehead, wrists, and the nape of your neck will be as revivifying as monkey glands are supposed to be.

If you're walking a lot (and who isn't?) try this on your ankles and petal pink toes. We did on a hot day and we were "shoe happy" as they say in ads. This substitute for a life of luxury costs only $1!

And to prove that "quality" does not necessarily mean high price, both of these preparations are made by a justly famous lady who has been able to capture the most illusive fragrance and bottle them. Her products grace the dressing tables of duchesses and other ladies of discrimination. Her perfumes are as subtle as charm and her bath oil will do more for your morale than a closet full of new clothes.

Give yourselves a treat and visit this gracious drawing room shop whenever the "struggle" gets you down. Sniffs are free.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

There are few character traits more disturbing to a parent than to discover a lack of sociability in her child. Children should like other children, and when they don't and prefer their own society to others, the mother is understandably perturbed.

Why would any child rather be alone than with other children? A sense of that old demon inferiority would make competition and rivalry with the superior children so unpleasant as to throw the child back on her own resources. Better to be alone than to be constantly flouted, humiliated and thwarted by children who could always get the best of one.

The desire in a child to have his or her own way and impress that way upon others would be certain to meet obstacles. Children like to be led, but not all of the time. The child who must be leader, or else, would have to play alone to do as she pleased.

Childreu thrust into new neighborhoods and a new school may withdraw into themselves when faced with the opposition that is a natural reaction of any group against a new aspirant to it. The way all elements in any social group will unite against any stranger is sufficient to send the timid child back to the security of her own familiar home and parents. The effort to break in is too uncomfortable.

This would seem to be somewhat the difficulty encountered by Mrs. W. B.'s daughter, who has traveled a great deal with her parents and has learned to get along without childish companions. Now, in a new environment, she has no desire to play with children—prefers to play alone. Being a child of talent and imagination, she busies herself with reading, coloring and piano practice.

"To suggest she go to a friend's home meets no response. She hesitates to make the first move. She lacks self-confidence, but I don't know why, as she is a superior child; everyone tells me so. Having children visit her works well. She gets along fine. How can I make her more aggressive?"

I'd invite children constantly until she develops a need for companionship, which will inspire more personal effort to get it.

Explain that to be liked, one must first like others. Every individual must make the effort to show their liking for others. To be hospitable and to be a friendly guest in the home of others are ways of expressing the I-like-you spirit. These duties go along with living.

Our leaflet, "The Timid Child," may be had by sending a 3-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

On hot days when you need an alluring, nutritious dish to serve your hungry one, make a macaroni salad. This salad when made with an exceptionally good cooked salad dressing has great appeal. Serve heaped in the center of serving platter and surround with cold cuts garnished with radish roses and parsley

Cooked salad dressings make novel variations. Then, too, they require no rationed salad oils to make them. Today we present the basic recipe for cooked salad dressing and some of its delightful variations. Cold salads can be nutritious as well as appealing for hot summer days.

Martha Ellyn

BASIC DRESSING—To 3 tablespoons sugar add 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1½ tablespoons flour, 1 egg, ¾ cup milk and 4 tablespoons pure vinegar. Blend thoroughly after adding each of these ingredients. Place over hot water, stirring constantly until thick. Add 1 tablespoon butter or margarine and blend thoroughly.

CALCUTTA — When making foundation recipe, mix ⅛ teaspoon curry powder with other foundation ingredients. When dressing is cool, add ¼ cup sandwich spread. Especially good with lettuce and chickory, chicken and vegetable salads.

FLUFFY—When making foundation recipe separate the egg, use the yolk, as directed and lastly fold in stiffly beaten egg white after the dressing is cooked and cool. Good with stuffed date salad and stuffed prune salad.

HAWAIIAN — To foundation recipe, add 3 tablespoons orange juice and 3 tablespoons pineapple juice. Especially good with fruit salad and chicken salad.

PEANUT BUTTER—To foundation recipe, when cool, add 4 tablespoons peanut butter. This makes a dressing good to use on mixed fruit or vegetable salads.

PIMOLO—To foundation recipe, when cool, add 1 finely chopped hard-cooked egg, 1 chopped pimento and 1 tablespoon sour gherkins. Especially good with lettuce salad and apple salad.

SAVORY—To foundation recipe, when cool, add ¼ cup India relish. Especially good with meat and vegetable salads, ham mousse salad.

Macaroni is one of the foods that has not been rationed. It can be the basis for a grand summer salad. Following is a recipe for macaroni salad that will make meal-planning a joy instead of a chore.

MACARONI SALAD

Cook ½ pound elbow macaroni in 4 cups boiling water to which has been added 1 teaspoon salt, until tender. Stir frequently. Cool, then chill thoroughly and combine with the following ingredients. To 1 cup diced celery add 2 diced hard-cooked eggs, 1 tablespoon minced pimento, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 tablespoon minced green pepper, salt and pepper to taste and ¼ cup small cubes of American cheese if desired. Then add cooked salad dressing to ingredients to blend well. Arrange on service plate with assorted cold cuts. Serves 8.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After 10 Years' Passionately Happy Marriage, Man Loses Loverlike Interest in Wife, Following The Recent Birth of Their Eagerly Planned Child

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My problem is one which may not be uncommon; but it seems beyond my power to fathom or correct. I am hoping you can shed some light on it and tell me, if possible, how to bring things back to normalcy. Since the birth of my baby, about seven month ago, there seems to be a barrier between my husband and myself. We planned our baby and looked forward to his arrival with such eagerness that there were times when we felt we could hardly wait another day. Now that the baby is here, we adore him, and feel that life without him would be simply unbearable.

During these past months, however, my husband has been restless, drinks more heavily and frequently and seems so far away from me at times that I feel completely shut off from him. Our sexual relations have been very unsatisfactory. I feel the same passionate love for him, but he seems uninterested in lovemaking. I am very affectionate by nature, and he is, too; and therefore his recent indifference has made me feel so unhappy and unwanted that I am beginning to think that in getting a baby, I lost a husband. Being of a moody disposition, I suppose I may be making a mountain out of a molehill; and I have contemplated all sorts of desperate actions.

I have analyzed the situation from every angle I know, and have even discussed it with my husband. He says there is nothing wrong; that he loves me as much as ever, if not more; and that he is as distressed as I am about our present sex life. I might add that I tackle the job of caring for the baby with enthusiasm; and keep him sweet and healthy. He is a very good baby and does not disturb our evenings together. My husband comes home at night to a clean house and gets a hearty welcome from me and the baby. I certainly have not "let myself go" in personal appearance.

We are both in our thirties and for 10 years have loved each other intensely and passionately. Our love alone has made us say many times that we wouldn't trade places with anyone in the world. So what is the meaning of this situation? Frankly, I don't think I can bear it much longer. Lately I have been nagging him about drinking, and we seem to be continually bickering about money, because the more he drinks, the more money he spends. I have suggested to him that he cut down (not give up) drinking and smoking; and there have been some evenings when he refrained from drinking, but he was so bored and restless as to leave no doubt that he was unhappy. My evenings have become so unsatisfactory of late that I cry myself to sleep almost every night. He wants us to reach an adjustment and says he hopes we do; but he seems unwilling to do anything about it. Have you any suggestions? MARIAN.

Man Is Infatuated With Another Woman

DEAR MARIAN: Your husband is manifesting the classic symptoms of a devoted family man, somewhat past his first youth, whose love for his wife has been temporarily thrown out of gear as the result of his being tempestuously infatuated with another woman. There can be no other explanation of his latter-day sexual indifference to you and general "caged lion" moodiness when obliged to mark time at home. Judging from the large percentage of confidential "problem letters" I receive, describing dislocated marital situations similar to yours—situations which arose (or became apparent to the wife) immediately after childbirth—it is not uncommon for an erstwhile faithful, contented husband to stray from the beaten path of rectitude, peace and conjugal happiness during his wife's pregnancy, with just such maritally demoralizing consequences as obtain in your case.

"But why?" I can hear all good wives cry. "Why then, of all times?" Why, indeed? Any would-be analyst of a specific situation of the kind is greatly handicapped in getting at the "why," when supplied with no more information than is contained in a fairly brief, bewildered and superficial report such as yours. Also, of course, such disturbances don't develop for a single reason. Usually they are the product of complicated factors—such as, for instance, (1) the husband's strongly sensual temperament; (2) the happy wife's natural tendency during pregnancy to be enthusiastically engrossed in thoughts, dreams and plans concerning the new life to come; a preoccupation which may seem, to her husband's silent disgruntlement, to leave him almost as "shut off" from her as you now feel "shut off" from your husband.

(3) The gradually mounting mutual responsibility to exercise restraint in lovemaking, as prenatal health insurance for mother and child during the final lap of pregnancy, which in the case of emotionally or spiritually undisciplined husbands may leave them witlessly susceptible to extraneous erotic temptation; (4) the temporary eclipse of the wife's customary "good looks," chic or high spirits, which, again, might leave an immature-minded husband vulnerable to rival "maidenly" charms; and (5) the possible tapering off of a stimulating joint social program, which might leave the husband feeling somewhat bored and at loose ends in his leisure, and in a mood to stir up a little excitement on the side, in the form of an "easy-come-by" flirtation.

Wife's 'Desperation' Worsens the Situation

So much for general reasons "why" your husband,—despite his erstwhile passionate and complete devotion to you,—might have become head-over-heels involved with another woman while you were bearing his child. Now, as to how to retrieve lost ground: Let me say, first, that on sensing the situation, without guessing its meaning, you behaved with regrettable (though perhaps excusable) lack of finesse,—thus worsening matters,—in putting him lamely on the defensive against your passionate overtures; and thereafter emphasizing his cool rebuffs by making them the subject of desperately anxious discussion. The only thing to do is to let him alone, mentally and physically, to come to his senses,—as the phrase goes.

Although I have bluntly confronted you with the probable truth that he is currently hypnotized by a rival "love interest," you would be wise not to press that surmise upon him. The master psychologists tell us that a wife's best chance of routing "the other woman" inheres in ignoring her existence; in never letting her husband know that she knows "what's going on." To let him know that she knows, they say, makes the damage doubly difficult to repair; and, in some instances, irreparable. No doubt "the other woman" is playing a subtle "come-on" game. At any rate, you may be sure that he thinks he is the aggressor in the relationship, although she may be candidly giving him warm encouragement.

Recover His Interest By Turning the Tables

Therefore, you must not put yourself in the disadvantageous position, by comparison, of clamoring for his love with hysterical uncontrol. And you should carefully erase from your wifely performance any hint or implication that you are wasting away of frustrated or unrequited passion. You must forswear the luxury of "moods," in dealing with him. You should drop all reference to "unsatisfactory sexual relations," to his "indifference," or to "hope of better adjustment." And at the same time, I think you should put a quietus on your extravagant baby-worship,—which is a little "too too" for the average stomach,—and be more casual about according the infant full love and competent care, as a preliminary to becoming once more, genuinely and convincingly, a definite personality in your own right, not just "the baby's mother." Your main chance of fully recapturing your husband's passionate interest lies in "turning the tables" on him in the situation,—in the sense of behaving as if you had cheerfully risen above your one-time urgent desire for his love; and as if you were now philosophically indifferent to his drinking, squandering and cantankerousness alike.

Doing a little last-minute memorizing are WAAF Section Officers Brenda Forbes and Madeleine Daventry (reading in the usual direction), who will be in the actors' spotlight this weekend as members of the cast of "Flare Path," drama of the R. A. F. A section officer corresponds to first lieutenant in our Air Force

Timely Personalities

Bombed and Blitzed WAAFS In War Play Shown in London

Will Have Roles of Fliers' Wives In United Nations-Sponsored Drama

From spectator in London to performer in Washington is the story of a member of England's Women's Auxiliary Air Force, blonde Section Officer Brenda Forbes.

Some months ago, Section Officer Forbes applauded a play titled "Flare Path," in London. This coming Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, she'll see the play from the footlight vantage as a member of the cast at the Wardman Park Theater when the United Nations Club puts on its production of the hit play about the Royal Air Force.

Section Officer Forbes, and Section Officer Madeleine Daventry, another WAAF stationed in Washington, portray roles of wives of R. A. F. fliers who wait while their husbands are on bombing missions. Though neither young lady has ever before appeared with professional actors and actresses, their parts do not seem so strange to them. "We have both seen many R. A. F. wives waiting for their husbands," says Miss Forbes.

Have Been in Service Four Years

This is one way of making plain that both the WAAF's have been in the service since September, 1939, and that both have been stationed at many air fields in England. The play concerns fliers of the Bomber Command, and each girl has done a stint with that unit of the R. A. F. Miss Forbes, in fact, for a while was attached to the station where the picture "Target for Tonight" was filmed.

They both were in London during the blitz of 1940. Miss Daventry recalls an incident, amusing to her now, grim as it was then. "We were flung out of our beds one night," she says, "by three huge explosions nearby. Fortunately, no one was hurt and all the girls started to go back to bed. 'There's another one out there that didn't go off,' I said. They all laughed at me, but I was sure I was right. And at 6:30 in the morning came the greatest explosion of all."

And with the typically British view of things that has aroused so much admiration, Miss Daventry says: "I was so pleased because I had been right!"

Fearful of Being Spoiled

BOTH WAAFS, after being stationed continuously in England since the start of the war, put in for foreign service some months ago. They arrived in this country last January. They're fond of Washington, Miss Forbes seeing in the city some parts reminding her of London's Kensington section, while Miss Daventry gets a feeling of being close to home when she strolls along Connecticut Avenue, which, to her, is similar to Park Lane in London. "But we'll be spoiled if we stay over here too long," they say, "being able to have an ice cream soda whenever we like and being able to buy a frock in a shop once in a while."

Iola Chase Engaged to Rev. W. S. Hicks

After her graduation, she studied for a year in Paris and in Le Mans, where she taught English in a French normal school. Mr. Hicks received his education at Wake Forest College, from which he was graduated in 1939. He was awarded a B. D. degree by the Yale Divinity School in 1942. The ceremony was held Saturday, May 22, in St. George's Church, Montreal, with Archdeacon Gower Rees officiating. Mr. Spielman gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride wore a white satin gown cut on princess lines with a V neckline, long pointed sleeves and a long train. Her tulle veil fell from a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and bouvardia. Miss Barbara Brodie, the only attendant, was in ice-blue crepe and she carried deep-shaded pink and purple sweet peas.

Graeme Pyke served as best man, and ushers were King Hoyt of Stamford, Conn., and Lieut. O'Neill O'Higgins, R. C. N. V. R. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony.

No Gas, What Difference? Ask Senate Wives

Some Walk, Others Find Their Way Around by Bus, Streetcar

By Martha Rhyne

Fabulous Washington, gasless and potatoless, as it is, buzzes today with conversation, of which there is a great surplus. The current topic is the gas shortage. Practically a nonexistent commodity for the time being is gasoline, one that neither money nor coupons can secure. But having something to "beef" about and take in his stride is as much as a Washingtonian could ask in order to be happy.

The Senate wives aren't ruffled in the least. Bound by position and patriotic motives to keep on the go, they're just making the best of shortened bus routes, overcrowded streetcars, and empty gas tanks.

Mrs. Charles L. McNary, wife of the Senator from Oregon, declares that she's "falling on her face" and learning to drop the token in the little slot. Living at the Mayflower, the McNarys are centrally located and Mrs. McNary finds that she can get to most places by either walking or taking the streetcar nearby. Her problem is not the gas shortage but the limited amount of shoe leather allotted to energetic 8-year-old daughter Charlotte, who, gas or no gas,. must wear out a lot of shoes going her youthful way.

Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, in a matter-of-fact manner, dumps the whole pesky problem on the Administration's shoulders to be solved. "As for me," she said from her home on Jocelyn Street, "I stay at home."

"There is only a small part that we on the home front can play," said Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the Ohio Senator, "and we must face the fact that life is and until the war's end will continue to be a constant adjustment." Mrs. Burton asserts that she's done more walking since she came to Washington than she had done for 10 or 15 years before, so becoming a walker won't disturb her. As a matter of fact, the Burtons live at the Dodge Hotel, near the Capitol, and going to work isn't a problem for the Senator. "One can and may drive to church," Mrs. Burton continued, "and with an 'A' card, we don't have much choice as to where we can and cannot go in the car."

The wife of the Senator from Vermont, Mrs. Warren R. Austin, is finding streetcar and bus travel interesting and has tried every possible route from her apartment at the Shoreham to the Capitol, where she works at the Red Cross. She's very fond of the Mount Pleasant Route and enjoys the ride, while the Austin car stands peacefully in the Senate Garage. "Nowadays, I'm living from day to day and getting along very well by taking what comes. At the end of the day," she went on, "I find that I've come through very well and only wish that there was more part I could play in the war."

So goes life in the busiest city in the world. Fussing, fuming Washington is a good sport at heart.

Argentina Celebrates Independence

There was no gala celebration at the Argentine Embassy yesterday in honor of Independence Day, the Ambassador and Senora de Espil instead entertaining at an informal early evening party from 7 to 9 o'clock for members of the embassy staff and their wives.

There was a buffet supper and champagne—direct from Argentina—for a toast to the prosperity of the land, and at 9 o'clock the Ambassador and Senora de Espil with the staff went to the Pan American Union Building for a special showing in honor of the day of "La Guerra Gaucha," a film of Argentina, for which invitations had been issued by Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union, and Dr. Pedro de Alba, assistant director.

In Argentina, May 25 is Fiesta Day the length and breadth of the land. Under Spanish domination from 1516, when it was discovered by a group of Spanish explorers, until 1810, when a successful revolt resulted in an independent republic, the Argentine today is governed by a constitution somewhat similar to that of the United States.

Newest Envoy Here Struggles With Boomtown Housing Problem; Hails From Remote Land That Has Changed Little Since the Days of Ghengis Khan

He is tall, sturdy and black-haired . . . and his dark eyes survey you thoughtfully through horn-rimmed spectacles. He speaks English fluently; also, Russian, Italian, French, and German. He has never been to Washington before; frankly admits he is having some difficulty in finding his way around; but is thrilled with the opportunity of being here to establish his country's first legation.

He is Abdol Hossayn Aziz, Minister of Afghanistan, and his recent arrival has set plenty of Washingtonians to thumbing through the World Book of Facts, just to find out more about that wild and woolly mountain kingdom, where fierce nomadic tribes are constantly on the warpath.

Was Minister of Public Works

The new envoy, who arrived here a few days ago, brings to his new post an extensive background of experience. He has served as Minister to Rome and as Ambassador to Moscow, where he was dean of the Diplomatic Corps. Also, he has been Minister of Public Works, and in that capacity tried his hand at a progressive program designed completely to modernize the country.

Now if you know anything about the history of Afghanistan, "the land of no railroads and many vendettas," you can appreciate the difficulties that must have confronted M. Hossayn Aziz. If there is one thing Afghans generally don't want, it's any kind of change, new-fangled reforms, or pretense to progress.

Mohammed Nadir Khan, father of the present monarch of Afghanistan, made many enemies and eventually was assassinated because he tried to establish a new constitution, forbidding slavery and providing compulsory education for every child in the country. His predecessor, King Amanullah, was forced to abdicate shortly after he returned from a tour of Europe with plans for building railroads and emancipating women.

Still in Camel-and-Pony Age

The 29-year-old current King, Mohammed Zahir Shah, is ruled by a council of ministers who never fail to remember that fellow Afghans don't take to foreign ideas, and that even though their country is still in the camel-and-pony age, that's the way the people like it.

Now in case you haven't had time to consult your world map for Afghanistan's location—it is just across the eastern frontier of Iran, and is bordered by British India and the Soviet Union. It is a constitutional monarchy with its legislative power vested in Parliament, and up to this time, most of its national business has been tied up with either the Soviet Union or Great Britain. Now, however, since war and the airplane have brought even farflung lands onto other horizons Afghanistan may well become a strategic crossroads for many nations.

The new Minister and his three secretaries have had quite a tussle with the Capital's housing problem. First, there was the difficulty in finding rooms—just temporary headquarters. Finally, with the help of State Department officials, they managed to get in at the Roger Smith Hotel. That's where they are now, and where they probably will stay, until they find a legation.

More Facts for Mental Filing

Afghanistan, meanwhile, has been entered on the official diplomatic list—the little blue book that for a time looked as if it might get smaller, but is now fatter than ever. And the day M. Hossayn Aziz and his secretarial trio arrived here by plane by way of South Africa and South America, his name went on the conference schedule at the White House and the State Department.

So-o-o, you'll probably be hearing a good deal about Afghanistan from now on out; but in case you don't as soon as you'd like, here are a few more facts for filing: The country is exclusively agricultural. Fruits and the valuable castor-oil plant grow in abundance all over the country; sheep are everywhere. Merchandise is transported by camel or pony-back. The capital, Kabul, has as its background the Hindo-Kush Mountains, 16,000 feet high, and trade to India follows the famous Khyber Pass. The population is around 12 million; the peacetime strength of the army is 90,000 and military service is compulsory from 18 to 40 years.

The Boom of the Guns Bars 'Escape' From Screen

'Bataan' Brings the War Thundering Back; The Willard Roof to Reopen Next Month; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

YESTERDAY'S PREVIEW of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production of "Bataan," opening tomorrow morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, suggested that the picture might well have been held as a special attraction to remove the stigma in the juvenile mind of a "quiet" celebration of Independence Day.

ROBERT TAYLOR

The 13 heroes, led by Sergt. Robert Taylor, marooned on the Philippine peninsula, to the undying glory of their country—meaning, of course, the United States—touch off more "fireworks" than ever fell to the lot of an equal number of kids celebrating the Fourth of July in peacetime.

But "Bataan" is not too preponderantly a "field day" for machine guns, tommyguns, rifles, hand grenades and bayonets. In approximately two hours of running time, it emphasizes the same indomitable spirit that was made the basis of Maxwell Anderson's penultimate scene in "The Eve of St. Mark." That is ample justification for any picture, since it reflects a steadfastness of purpose and devotion to the highest promptings of character and duty that give the American fighting man a little something over and above the inspiration of his enemy.

Incidentally, the week of "escapist" entertainment now ending.. was an exceedingly happy thought. "Bataan" brings the war back literally with a "bang!"

And speaking of "escape," when the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus opens its week's stand out at Benning Road and Oklahoma Avenue Northeast, on June 14, the public will have free access to the horse and elephant tents throughout the length of each day, whether it buys a ticket to the main show or not. This is part of this year's policy of causing the circus to revert strictly to "circus," even down to the revival of the "grand, free, street pageant," under canvas, in place of the latterly customary "opening spectacle." Furthermore, as has been recited here before, the show will be presented this season under the old, six-pole tent, with three rings and two "concert stages" and special accent on a new and largely augmented band, to supplant the amplified recorded music recently in not too successful vogue. The circus, as you might say, will be itself again.

As We Were Saying Some Time Ago

On Saturday night, Richard Midgley will leave the cast of John Golden's production of "Three's a Family," recently seen at the National under the title of "The Home Front," to take command for the second season of the stock company to operate on the Willard Roof, beginning June 7. The opening bill will be that sturdy, old classic of the ten-twent-thirt, "Bertha the Sewing Machine Girl," with Fred Hillebrand and a Ben Yost quartet augmenting Dick and the New York cast he now is assembling. Among the localites of renown who will lend their talents to the major stage pieces and their entr'acte olios, will be Bibi Osterwald, a recent hit in "Eddie the First," out at Catholic University; Ted Tiller, ditto, and Natalie Core, formerly one of the mainstays of the Roadside Theater, before the gas and tire shortages caused the Roadside to languish by the roadside. The note from Master Midgley suggests that next week he will be calling up locally with further information about the prospective Roof season at Fourteenth and the Avenue.

JOY HODGES

who will be among the foremost members of the cast assembled by Max Gordon to present Joseph Fields' "The Doughgirls" on its return to the National Theater next Monday night. The engagement will be for two weeks

At the expense of whatever it is you will be charging us with, we take the liberty of quoting the most gratifying message that has recently arrived at the desk: "Dear Mr. Bell: Thanks to your telling us Friday, our family thoroughly enjoyed an infrequent show together, "Flicka," et al., at the Capitol. As we reread your review on the homeward trolley, we admired your stimulating story and highly commend every observation. I have just written my friend, Carter Barron, appreciation of the coincidence of stage and screen in such an evening of quality, and mentioned your indispensable cooperation in making such superiority known to those who wait for such recommendations. Many thanks. Cordially, W. STERLING WHEELWRIGHT, 2810 Sixteenth Street Northwest." The thanks in the instant case, needless to say, flow in quite the opposite direction.

And Worth Every Penny of It

A note from Nat Dorfman, one of the theater's more eminent stentors, brings word that one of the highest prices in years for the film rights to a Broadway stage hit has just been paid for "The Doughgirls," opening a two-week return engagement, with a new cast, in the National Theater next Monday night. Through Mr. Dorfman, Max Gordon divulges that the sum paid for the Joseph Fields comedy of wartime Washington was $300,000 and the purchaser the Warner Brothers.

Because three companies—counting the one soon to open on E Street—are currently playing the piece to standing-room business throughout the land, the contract with Burbank prohibits the Warners from picturizing the play for at least another year. But regardless of the usual "when, as and if," $300,000 is an eloquent sum in whatever language money talks.

A-Lady-May-Change-Her-Mind Note

It might be just as well not to build too great an anticipation of Arline Judge's being at the head of the "Doughgirls" cast, come next Monday. "She ain't in there no more," the man says.

Shirley Temple's first romance is with a member of San Francisco's social set. . . . Gregory Ratoff is stretching "Russia" six more weeks. Glad to Be Home

George Hurrell is back at his old trade photographing the "Cover Girls" for Harry Cohn. Did a stretch in Washington. He hoped to photograph the President. Sorry he didn't. George would have made him look like a cover girl. He did do General Arnold and his staff. And George said, "Talk about prima donnas—one of them wanted a stand-in while I set the lights. No, it wasn't Arnold. I asked George about the Pentagon building. He said "After that, next stop Sing Sing." . . .Twentieth Century deserves a pat for signing Richard Jaeckel, its blond 17-year-old mail room boy, for the baby marine in "Gladalcanal Diary." His salary started a $250 a week.

Learning Hard Ways

Unless the New York stage actor Jack Warner is testing for the "Life of Will Rogers" is good, looks as though Stu Erwin will get the part. And are his fans pulling for him! Many people here think that because a guy's good, without scandal, etc., he isn't such an asset. But that ain't what the fans say, brother. . . . George Sanders' 74-year-old father took George down a peg today when he said, "You're not only rude to women, but you're lazy." George arose from a sleeping position, bowed and replied, "Like father, like son," and hugged the old boy. . . . Ran into Eddie Small at Romanoff's who said, "I read that item of yours about Turhan Bey. I'm testing him for the "Life of Valentino."

She Caught On

You've got to hand it Diana Barrymore. She realized she was pushed too far and too fast when she starred in her first pictures. She got on to that mighty quickly and is contentedly playing second fiddle to Louise Allbritton in "Fired Wife" and looking forward to being slapped down in her first Western, "Frontier Badman," with Tex Ritter and William Farnum. In fact, she's being so darned good, she doesn't sound like a Barrymore . . . Bob Cummings, who refused to do "Fired Wife" is still no suspension. . . . Director William Seiter switched from "Cover Girl" to Rosalind Russell and "Ten Per Cent Woman." It looks as though that picture will kep Rosalind from playing Shirley Temple's mother. . . . Jim Young's voice will be used as the Jap newscaster in "Behind the Rising Sun," his own story.

No More Sixth Fiddle

Walter Huston was wanted the worst way for "White Cliffs." Producer Sydney Franklin spent practically a whole Sunday with him trying to persuade him. Walter's worked steadily for 10 months, needs a rest. Then, too, doubt whether he'll ever forget the time he played sixth fiddle to Max Baer in "The Prize Fighter and the Lady" when he was under Metro contract. . . . Gracie McDonald was mighty worried about her brother when he wrote: "Please don't worry about me. I'm on my way." Ten days later he walked into the McDonald household when they were having dinner, and what a reunion! Seems day before his company left he came down with an ear infection, was taken off to the hospital, and wasn't released until his unit had landed overseas. Ray has now been transferred to Santa Ana.

Let's Be Sane About It

In spite of Harry Warner insisting that an isolationist group is responsible for the propaganda campaign against production and exhibition of war films and that we shall go right on making them, my mail bag disagrees with Mr. Warner. From North Africa comes a plea in behalf of the majority of Americans in this theater of war: "Going to pictures has become an apprehensive experience. We live in fear that films we're about to see will be another flag-waving nightmare. Seems every time a director finds his production sagging, he drags out our colors or injects another Gettysburg address. That may be all right for the Yanks back home, but it becomes irksome to people of other countries. We who sit among the British and hear their comments appreciate their point of view. Can't something be done about it? How would you like to get an overdose of the British royal family. I don't mean to be a squawker, but enough's enough. We'd like to keep their friendship when this war's done." And I'd like to add amen to that!

Gossip From Gotham

New York, May 25.

Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, the novelist, told this story to Wendell Willkie during his visit to the small Florida town where she lives and where the conveniences of modern civilization are unknown. She has no phone, and the nearest telegraph office is miles away. Mrs. Rawlings therefore made arrangement with the telegraph operator that he was to deliver the wires he thought important—at a 50-cent delivery fee—and send the unimportant ones by mail . . . At Easter time she received a batch of wires. The operator delivered the form wires of Easter greetings, which he believed were important, and collected the 50-cent fee. He mailed only one wire, which he thought unimportant—the wire notifying her that her book, "The Yearling," had won the Pulitzer Prize.

Paul Whiteman received a letter from David Ewen, whose "Life of George Gershwin" will be published this summer, asking the date of Whiteman's first rehearsal of "Rhapsody in Blue." Whiteman replied: "I don't remember. All I can tell you is that the first performance of the Rhapsody took place in Carnegie Hall in 1925." Ewen then wrote: "You're wrong on both counts. "I wouldn't know," Molnar confessed—and then told of a colleague in Budapest, who was assigned to address a government-sponsored conference for visiting English writers. The Hungarian writer decided to address them in English, and so he had his speech translated from the Hungarian, and memorized it, phonetically . . . . At the end of his speech, one of the puzzled Englishmen whispered to Molnar: "I never noticed it before, but there's something peculiar about your Hungarian language. Sometimes it sounds like English."

Construction Worker Glad Of Steel Job

Grinning broadly over his new job, Cleve Dudley, 35-year-old Negro, who has been a construction worker since he was "big enough to pick up a water bucket," said yesterday that he was glad to go to the Pittsburgh plants of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. so he could help in the war program.

Dudley, who has been living in Washington for eight years, was recruited yesterday by the corporation, which hopes to obtain 250 unskilled Negro laborers here to help fill the places of 34,000, or approximately one-fourth of its employes, who have gone to the armed forces. Those who registered yesterday at the offices of the United States Employment Service, 505 K Street, included husky workers who have been unemployed because of curtailment of construction in Washington.

Can't Take Families

"We can't take our families with us when we leave Thursday," Dudley explained. "But as soon as I show them I can do the new job, I'm going to send for my wife and 4-year-old son, Cleve, jr. We'll live in a company house."

Johnny Walker, 30-y e a r-old native of Savannah, Ga., who weighs 190 pounds, said he hated to leave his three children in Washington but he knew his mother-in-law would take good care of them.

He added: "I've been here since 1928 and it ain't exactly fun to leave. But the kids have to be fed and I can't find any building work around here. The Army ain't got me yet so I'm glad to help make steel to beat the Germans."

Employment Steady

Although workers will receive less wages per hour in the steel plants than in construction, they anticipated yesterday that their total earnings will be increased. The reason, they explained, is that they will work steadily indoors uninterrupted by rain or winter weather that cut sharply into their former paychecks.

Out of the first contingent of 51 migrants recruited here last week by Carnegie-Illinois, only two have returned from Pittsburgh with the story that they "couldn't take it." Employment service officials, who will continue recruiting today, described this record as "satisfactory."

Convalescent Soldiers See Russian Show

A solid stone assortment of Romans, goddesses, Greeks, cherubs and famous Americans, for years the silent onlookers at untold numbers of all-feminine shows in what was once the auditorium of National Park College, never saw the likes of the Russian entertainment put on yesterday for convalescent soldiers at the Forest Glen division of Walter Reed Hospital.

Several hundred soldiers in an all-out mood for relaxation saw and heard a full hour of gay Russian music, songs and dances from the floor show of the Balalaika, local night club. One of a series of weekly programs sponsored by the United Nations Club, it was the first time that professional entertainers had appeared.

The staid halls of the former girls' school resounded with the applause of enlisted men and a scattering of Army nurses, Red Cross workers and United Nations Club representatives. And from the extravagantly designed costumes of blonde singers to a dancer that flipped swords from his mouth—they loved it.

Housed in the strange mixture of assorted architectural designs that typify the campus, the men are in the recuperative stages from either wounds received in action, accidents or other ailments and most of them are perfectly able to move about the various buildings. Except for an occasional pair of crutches or a plaster cast here and there, yesterday's audience might easily have been made up of men from any active military unit. All wear maroon-colored hospital attire.

Commencement Monday

The twenty-ninth commencement exercises of American University will be Monday evening at Metropolitan Memorial Church on the college campus. Dr. Frederick M. Davenport, chairman of the council on personnel of the Government and president of the National Institute of Public Affairs, will deliver the principal address, "Life in the Public Interest."

New Wool Industry In Va. Hills Studied

Richmond, Va., May 25 (AP).—A committee to study the feasibility of establishing a wool industry comparable with that which now exists in Scotland in the mountain regions of Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee has been formulated, L. M. Walker, jr., commissioner of agriculture, said today.

Mr. Walker returned to Richmond today after meeting with a group of interested officials in Durham, N. C. The conferees, including commissioners of agriculture from North Carolina and Tennessee, and Governor Broughton of North Carolina, discussed general plans for the establishment of the wool tweed industry.

It has been contended that the secret of fine Scottish tweeds is that they are made from the wool of sheep raised in limestone soil regions.

HOW PEP CAME TO PATTY

BY BUD HILL

SAY, BEAUTIFUL- WHERE DID YOU GET ALL THE GO, THAT BRIGHTNESS? YOU USED TO BE SO RUN-DOWN
I LEARNED I HAD A "VITAMIN B COMPLEX DEFICIENCY" A WHAT?
OH, THAT'S ANOTHER WAY OF SAYING I WASN'T GETTING ENOUGH OF THOSE AMAZING VITAMINS FOUND SO PLENTIFULLY IN YEAST. LACK OF THEM KEEPS MILLIONS FEELING LOW. SO I BEGAN DRINKING 2 CAKES OF FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST EACH DAY
DRINKING YEAST?
YES, DRINKING FLEISCHMANN'S IN COOL MILK, WATER OR TOMATO JUICE — THAT'S A REAL VITAMIN COCKTAIL!* BUT A PERSON SHOULD STICK TO IT A WEEK OR MORE. MANY SEE RESULTS IN SEVEN DAYS!
SAY, NOW THAT I'M HOME ON FURLOUGH, I OUGHT TO TRY FLEISCHMANN'S, TOO
WHY NOT! JUST GET A WEEK'S SUPPLY OF FLEISCHMANN'S — 14 CAKES. IT KEEPS PERFECTLY IN THE REFRIGERATOR. BUT DON'T JUST DROP A CAKE IN THE LIQUID. MASH IT WITH A FORK IN A DRY GLASS. THEN ADD THE LIQUID AND STIR TILL BLENDED. FILL UP THE GLASS. DRINK IT DOWN AND JOIN IN THE CHEERS

*Two Vitamin Cocktails contain the following proportions of the minimum daily requirements: from yeast, 100% of Vits. A, B_1, and B_2; 14% to 20% of B_6; (also 2 to 3 mgs. of niacin); with tomato juice (8 oz.), 100% of Vit. C

If you bake at home, use Fleischmann's Yellow Label Yeast. It is the only yeast containing Vitamin B Complex with added amounts of both Vitamins A and D.

MEET OUR HONORARY

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

In Other Words the Hundreds of Valued Veterans Who Form

The Hecht Co. "TEN to FIFTY YEAR CLUB"

TRUE it would take a mighty big conference room to hold a Board of directors as large as this and frequent meetings would be impractical . . . but day in and day out, there they are, a group of loyal, eager folks who've "grown up with the store" . . . veterans of 10 years to 47 years of service . . . a vital factor, a helpful guide to us in our daily consumer relations. Any wonder we call them our "Honorary Board of Directors" . . . that we turn to them for support in maintaining "The Store We Owe Our Customers."

WE'VE eighteen hundred people in our store family . . . a sizable little army when you think about it. And we think about it often . . . especially at this time of year, when the members of our "Ten-to-Fifty Year Club" get together for their annual Celebration. We'r eproud of these associates . . . proud of their achievements. Prouder still of the group spirit that has held them together as a happy family for so many years.

FOR this group spirit is the bulwark of this institution, a truly priceless ingredient that permeates not only this club, but the entire store. Not through accident of happenstance. It's born of a policy of "promotion from within," evidenced by the fact that 75% of all our executives, buyers, department service heads and assistants have come from the ranks. Beginners in this store can point to top executives who not only "started from scratch," but have never forgotten it.

IS it any wonder we consider them our Honorary Board of Directors . . . that we take their counsel in facilitating our services to you? For, of course, without you neither The Hecht Co., nor The "Ten-to-Fifty Year Club" could exist. And so we speak for every worker at The Hecht Co. when we say YOUR loyal patronage and recognition is a source of daily inspiration in our service to the community.
